Schools grope for growth solution

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

"What's needed to separate the Plymouth-Canton school district into two units so that they are economically independent of one another?" That question and similar ones concerning splitting the district in two were fielded by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education at its public forum on Monday night.

Some citizens think that the district should be divided so that Canton Township, where most of the growth in the school district is taking place, can absorb the cost of growth itself.

Canton residents took on the responsibility of paying for Plymouth's schools many years ago, remarked Supt. John Hoben in response to the question.

It would take passage of a state-wide referendum to change the district's school boundaries, he added. "We cannot control it ourselves. We're under governmental control," he added.

Petitions asking for separate school districts would have to be circulated and then given to state senators or representatives to see if the question could be placed on the ballot, Hoben explained.

While some parents were advocating splitting the school district, the Livonia Board of Education decided to close Lowell Junior High School in June, 1981.

To house the increasing numbers of students in the Plymouth-Canton schools, officials have expressed an interest in either buying or renting schools for Livonia.

Lowell and Webster Elementary School may be available -- if Plymouth-Canton decides that cross-district busing would not pose any legal problems and the added cost of gas and buses could be absorbed by the district's operating budget.

According to Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, Livonia school officials have placed a tentative price tag of $1 per square foot for renting a school for one year. Lowell has 96,000 square feet and Webster has 57,000 square feet. Hoben said that he would like to bargain the price down, however.

"It's a reasonable price, but we're in the

Will Canton stop shopping center?

BY NANCY KOOL

Would Canton Township rather switch -- or fight a possible lawsuit brought by the developer of a shopping center proposed for the northeast corner of Sheldon and Palmer Roads?

For the second time in two weeks, trustees were scheduled last night to consider granting approval of the project's site plan. A switch by any one of four trustees could overturn last week's narrow, 4-3 vote to deny the O.K.

Township Attorney Bert Burgoyne has advised that boardmembers approve the plan rather than risk possible litigation from developer Robert Acchione. The township Planning Department, however, cited inadequate sewer service available to the project and recommended denial. The plaza could overload the Forest Brook subdivision's sewer system, according to township engineers Wade, Trim & Associates.

"I'm sure we'll get hit with a lawsuit very shortly," Supervisor Noel Culbert said after last week's vote. Culbert joined Treasurer Jim Donahue, Clerk John Flodin, and Trustee Carol Bodenmiller in opposing the project. "We get sued all the time anyway," the supervisor added.

But Trustee Robert Greenstein said the board "does not have the legal right to decide whether there is adequate sewer. I'm not going to get sued," he said. "I strongly suggest (we grant approval and) let our engineers deny the building permit."

School field trips return

The Plymouth-Canton school buses will roll again to take students on educational field trips starting Monday, Nov. 26. According to Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business in the school district, buses will be available on a limited basis for educational field trips.

"This reinstatement is being made on a day-to-day basis and is subject to cancellation at a moment's notice," he also noted.

A temporary moratorium had been placed on taking field trips about six weeks ago because of gas shortages and the spiraling cost of gas.

Hoedel also said that, according to a Michigan Department of Education spokesperson, school districts throughout the state haven't had problems getting gas so far this year.

Officer proposes to start Twp.'s police force

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

A $270,000 proposal to start Plymouth Township's own police department was submitted to township officials by a Northville Township officer last Tuesday.

Kenneth D. Hardesty, lieutenant with seven years' experience in Northville Township, submitted a proposal calling for a nine-man force and two police cars to provide police protection for township residents.

Negotiations between the Wayne County Sheriff's Department and Plymouth Township have stalled recently because of the county's financial troubles. Also, township officials have talked informally with the City of Plymouth and the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department about contracting for police services with them, but no official bids have been submitted by either department.

Township officials are working for a police contract to take advantage of a state law, passed last year, which gives charter townships annexation protection if they provide certain services, including police.

Hardesty said his third proposal calling for the township to set up its own police department "would be far more practical to the community."

The nine-man force would have a chief, an inspector, two sergeants, and five patrol officers, under Hardesty's proposal.

Also in his bid, Hardesty said one police car would patrol 24 hours a day while the second car would provide "almost round the clock coverage. Every now and then there would be a four-hour gap in changing shifts," he said. "But with only a nine-man shift, that (gap) couldn't be helped," he added.

Township Supervisor Tom Notebaert saw two flaws in Hardesty's proposal. His $270,000 bid does not include liability insurance or the cost of fringe benefits, he said. "About 30 per cent of a person's payroll goes for those expenses, so that cost would have to be figured in," he said. Hardesty said he would discuss the cost of liabilities and fringe benefits with the township.

A second potential problem in starting the township's own police department is in the status of civil service, said Notebaert. Since the township fire department has been on civil service for years, the township would probably have to use civil service hiring and promotion procedures for the police department, too, he said.

Hardesty said he wasn't aware that civil service might pose a problem for the township when he submitted his bid. "The only problem I might see would be in setting up the officers' wage scales to comply with civil service," he said.

Overall, Notebaert called Hardesty's proposal "a fine, elaborate idea, but more extravagant than I'd like to see in the township." He said he'd like to see a department start with only a chief and two men and "then grow as the township's needs develop."

Notebaert also criticized the chief's $25,000 salary proposal included in Hardesty's bid. Canton Township starts at $22,470 and Canton is twice as big as Plymouth Township, he said.

On Saturday afternoon, Hardesty said he hadn't heard from Plymouth Township officials since he had submitted his proposal five days earlier. "I'd be glad to come over and discuss any parts of it with them," he said.

Childs re-elected mayor

Mary Childs was expected to be re-elected mayor Plymouth at last night's City Commission meeting.

The commission was expected to retain Childs in the seat she assumed when former Mayor Thomas Turner resigned to take a new job in Venezuela this summer, according to one source. She had been mayor pro-tem under Turner.

Two new commissioners, elected at last Tuesday vote, took their seats last night -- Karl Gansler and Ronald Loiselle. Re-elected last Tuesday were Martin, while Jack Kenyon, appointed to fill Turner's seat on the commission, retained his seat via a strong write-in campaign.

Is farm preservation lagging?

BY CHAS CHILD

Are Canton Township officials making enough progress on the farmland preservation program?

The township's Planning Commission thinks not, and has asked the Board of Trustees speed up the activity of its farmland preservation director, Trustee Robert Greenstein.

"There has been very little activity on the local level," said Planning Commissioner Thom Carman. "Bob (Greenstein) has been concentrating on the legislative area in Lansing and Washington D.C. We need more local activity and we need to know what he's doing."

Greenstein replied that the township's taxpayers were not ready to consider a tax increase that would fund the preservation program. "With the library millage coming up and the high water bills, it's not the right time," he said.

"Right now, I think we have to wait to see how much federal support we'll get," he added. This summer, Greenstein traveled to Washington and testified before congressional committees considering farmland preservation proposals.

If one such bill, sponsored by Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington, were passed, Greenstein has said that Canton would stand a good chance to receive federal funds for its program.

In the November, 1978 election, Canton voters rejected a proposal to levy four mills

Landfill cleared of pollution charges

BY CHAS CHILD

No PBB, PCB, or cadmium, all hazardous to human health, were found in Canton's latest round of testing at the township's Woodland Meadows landfill.

The tests were the latest in a series ordered by the township after officials learned earlier this year that treated sewage was being dumped at the landfill on Hannan Road, in the extreme southeast corner of Canton.

The treated sewage, or sludge, contains a broad range of harmful elements and chemicals, including PBB, PCB, or cadmium.

Nonspecific tests previous to these indicated that there was pollution on the site. However, Woodland officials found that it existed on the site before they opened their landfill.

Meanwhile, Trustee Carol Bodenmiller was scheduled to ask the Board of Trustees, at last night's meeting, to decide whether it should continue to monitor the landfill's groundwater for pollution.

"I don't think the township needs to be involved," she said. "The state DNR (Department of Natural Resources) is investigating now, and there may be some duplicity of testing."

"So far, the township's spent about $2,000 on testing. It's just like anything else -- the little things add up. We don't even know what budget this is coming from," she said. "The board should decide what it wants to do."

You've looked at many houses and you've finally decided on a choice. You go back for a final look; a much more critical look than the others. Don't be timid. And when the time comes, let the REALTOR handle the actual price negotiations. This is always the toughest and most sensitive part of any home purchase. He's an expert in this type of negotiation. Settlement probably delayed until Easter

Contracts for nearly 800 teachers in the Plymouth-Canton school district will probably not be finally ratified until Easter, said John Ryder, president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA).

Bargainers from the school board and the teachers met with an administrative law judge Friday where two issues emerged as stumbling blocks.

First, the teams differ on how the compounding factor is to be applied for the teachers' salary scales. Second, a grievance charging that teachers struck over a non-mandatory contract issue was filed by the school board's team against the teachers. These two issues remain to be settled.

Other unfair labor practice charges, which were filed by both teams at the table during negotiations, were dropped in front of administrative law judge Nora Lynch of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) on Friday.

Both teams will appear before Lynch on Jan. 9, 10, and 11 so that she can hear both sides of the issues which remain to be settled.

"We dropped some charges and they did, too, but we're not finished yet," remarked Tom Cotner, vice-president of the PCEA.

Will there be any teachers' walk-outs because of the extra time needed to continue hearings? "No, no -- at least not union-sponsored," said Cotner.

"Teachers will be disappointed and angry, but I'll ask that they continue to teach," said Ryder.

At Friday's hearings, Derald McKinley, chief negotiator for the PCEA, took the witness stand for examination and cross-examination by the teams' lawyers.

According to Cotner, MERC fact-finder George Gullen -- whose recommendations lead to the end of the 10-day teachers' strike -- was prevented from testifying by MERC President Robert Pisarski. The PCEA had hoped to secure his testimony on the compounding issue because, Cotner said, "It's our word against their word on this issue. The compounding issue was settled by a verbal agreement at the table."

The school board's team has said that the compounding factor was never agreed on at the bargaining table, and if compounded the way that the teachers want, will exceed the original percentages outlined in Gullen's recommendations.

Cotner added that the PCEA may go to circuit court to ask that Gullen be allowed to testify at the MERC hearings, but "we don't know if a circuit court decision would be enforceable at a MERC hearing."

The school board's grievance against the PCEA is about collecting dues for the Voluntary Political Action Fund. "Teachers can't strike over a non-mandatory issue in the contract and the board's team says that's one reason we went out on strike," said Cotner.

Both issues will be heard by Lynch in the January hearings at MERC headquarters in downtown Detroit.

To reduce accidents, intersection to be wider

The long-awaited widening of the most hazardous intersection -- Main Street and Ann Arbor Road -- is finally getting off the ground.

The state Department of transportation has announced it is seeking comments from anyone who would like a public hearing on the proposed improvement.

Planned is the addition of a right-turn lane on Main Street for those heading west on Ann Arbor Road, and another right-turn lane for cars going south on Main Street.

Plymouth's Police Chief, Timothy Ford, said the Main-Ann Arbor Road intersection has the highest accident rate in the city. "It accounts for fully 10 per cent of all accidents in the city," he said.

And virtually all of the wrecks, he said, were turning accidents. The extra right turn lanes will relieve the congestion at the intersection, thus making both right and left turns safer, the chief said.

"Under the Michigan Action Plan, any citizen who would be affected by the proposed plan may request in writing that a formal public hearing be held concerning the social, environmental, and economic effects of this proposal," said an announcement released by the state last week.

Such a request should be mailed to Jack E. Morgan, Public Involvement Section, Michigan Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 30050, Lansing, Michigan, 48909. These requests must be received on or before Dec. 7, 1979.

Ford said a similar widening of the Sheldon Road-N. Territorial Road intersection about five years stopped accidents there for one and one-half years.

After the widening is completed, the Chief said the intersection would not have a specific left-turn traffic light on either road. However, he expects the light to hold traffic briefly with a delayed red light to give more time for left-turners to clear the intersection.

After accident Friday, Teacher in fair condition

Wayne Weimer, 50, a teacher at Canton High School, was severely injured when his car hit a telephone pole on No. Territorial Road Friday night.

According to the State Police, Weimer, eastbound on N. Territorial in a Triumph sports car, failed to negotiate a curve at Curtis Road, went off the road, and hit the pole around 10:20 p.m.

Taken by ambulance to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti, Weimer was moved out of the intensive care unit yesterday and listed in fair condition, said a hospital spokesman. He suffered a head injury, the spokesman said.

The State Police said the cause of the accident is under investigation.

The money raised for ARC, the major charity of the Junior Civitan Clubs of the U.S., will be used to publish information on the prevention of mental retardation. Last year more than $50,000 was collected by the Junior Civitans for ARC.

The Adrian College Youth Seminar is sponsored by the adult Civitan clubs.

Attending the dance-a-thon will be Salem students J. J. Steed, Luann Lennox, and Laurie Hall, Canton students Patty Constantine, Jayne Doyle, and Mike Henshaw, and Central Middle School student Kim Henshaw. They will be collecting hourly pledges all this week. Twp. OKs Omnicom for cable TV

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

Omnicom was granted a non-exclusive franchise to set up cable television for Plymouth Township residents last Tuesday night. The Board of Trustees approved the second reading of Omnicom's bid by a 7-0 vote.

May 1, 1980 is the date set by Omnicom officials for cable television to begin. According to John Raines, Omnicom president, basic services will offer 24 new TV channels including Atlanta and Chicago stations to viewers who sign up for cable TV. Although there is a regular $25 installation fee and $7.95 monthly charge, Raines said the installation fee will be waived during the first year of construction and the monthly charge will be reduced to $6.95 for two years following the date the system is turned on.

A home box office service featuring full-length movies will also be offered to viewers for an additional $6.95 per month, said Raines.

Omnicom was approved after three other cable TV companies were considered -- Maclean-Hunter, United, and Metrovision. The City of Plymouth and Northville Township have also approved Omnicom, and the City of Northville has given Omnicom a first-reading approval, said Kurt Karlson, Omnicom representative.

To install cable TV services, a one-half-inch trench must be dug about two or three feet below the ground surface to hook-up the TV line to the public utility lines already there, said Barbara Lynch, a township trustee who served on the cable TV committee with Treasurer Joe West.

In some of the older subdivisions where public utility lines are overhead, no digging will be required, said Lynch.

At the board meeting Tuesday night, Raines said if any rose bushes or shrubs were damaged while workers were installing the cable TV lines, Omnicom would be responsible. "If we damage anything, we'll pay for it," he said.

A three per cent of Omnicom's revenue will also be passed on to Plymouth Township for allowing Omnicom to set up the cable TV service. Set by the Federal Communications Commission, the franchise fee is part of Omnicom's bid.

Also as part of the service, Omnicom will offer local programs on Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meetings, Plymouth Township meetings, and other local governments, said Karlson.

West and Lynch recommended choosing Omnicom for reasons which included: Omnicom was the first to apply; Omnicom's waiver of the $25 installation fee during the first year of construction for new subscribers; and, Omnicom has an office in Plymouth at 838 S. Main St.

M-14 eases city's rush hour

Plymouth-Canton's new freeway which opened two weeks ago has done more than speed travel to University of Michigan football games -- it has greatly reduced traffic through the City of Plymouth.

City Police Chief Timothy Ford said that an informal survey taken last week shows that traffic on Main Street during rush hour may be down as much as 75 per cent.

In August, before M-14 opened, Plymouth police officers counted 40 cars per minute traveling on Main Street at Church. Last week, a similar survey, done around 4:15 p.m., counted nine cars per minute, he said.

A good bit of traffic apparently no longer needs to travel through the city to get on to old M-14, Ann Arbor Road.

Settlement for principals is close

Negotiators for the Plymouth-Canton school principals and the school board expect to have a new salary scale for principals wrapped up by the end of this week, according to Carrol Nichols, principals' bargainer.

The salary scale for the third year of the principals' contract is the only issue that's being negotiated this year. Nichols, and Supt. John Hoben reported that the teams have come to a tentative agreement. "We hope the agreement will be ratified by the board on Nov. 19 (the next school board meeting)," said Hoben. Neither Hoben nor Nichols would reveal further details on the contract proposal.

Meanwhile, negotiations for the other school employe groups, whose contracts expired last summer, are continuing, said Hoben. Alice Horstead, a spokesperson for the bus drivers, reported that their teams had finished contract language and were starting to tackle economic issues.

Negotiations for the teachers' aides, cafeteria workers, and secretaries are still continuing, said Hoben.

Loose dogs run wild on lawns

EDITOR:

I hope that we, the citizens of Canton, don't have to pay taxes for the wages of a dog catcher in the future.

Because if we do, it sure is a waste. I have lived in Canton six years and I've never, never seen the dog catcher around.

Well, I'm getting tired of it and so are my neighbors -- seeing dogs running around and cleaning off our lawns.

I spend on an average of $300 to spray and water my lawn and that doesn't include my time keeping it up. What for?

It's awful when a neighborhood boy comes in the house and leaves dog mess all over my kitchen counter, because he played on the grass and rolled in it.

I sure would appreciate a little law enforcement, so our children can play on the grass.

Bus drivers waste gas

FUMES FROM the exhaust pipes of Plymouth-Canton Community school buses rise as motors are left idling after students were dropped off at Central Middle School Monday morning. Residents on Adams Street have complained that the buses are kept running for 30 to 40 minutes each morning while drivers wait to go out on their next runs. "I have to keep on the drivers (to remind them to turn off their motors)

... it's something we try to prevent," said Robert Houghton, transportation director at the schools. Drivers should keep one bus running to monitor the radio, he added. The school district has recently been forced to cut back on field trips because of the rising cost of fuel, and idling buses only jack up the district's fuel bills. Turn off your buses, drivers. Don't waste gas. THE COMMUNITY CRIER.

There's a time-tested theory in this business that local names are the heart of local news, and with this I don't quarrel. If you were to be given a certain list, some readers might identify friends and neighbors without ever recognizing the common thread that binds the warped minds of these people together. Let's just try it, out with these names:

The sad plight that sets these otherwise exemplary citizens apart from others of our pastoral, peaceful, placid community is that they are Buckeye lovers. This is the week they must admit to bearing this cross as their beloved gridiron troops from Ohio State prepare for an inevitable defeat at Ann Arbor.

Yes, there are others of their ilk in our midst, but the sampling offered is sufficient to demonstrate that we of the righteous Wolverine clan must always be wary of a fifth column invasion.

Through the years we have found that not only do our Michigan stalwarts usually play better football than the Bucks, but we of the local Michigan alumni branch also sing better than our counterparts from below the border.

It was just a decade ago that a local tradition was born here, calling for Michigan and Ohio State followers to show up at 6 p.m. in Kellogg Park after the annual game between OSU and U-M, and while gathered around the Rotary Club fountain be entertained by the losing forces singing the winner's fight song.

who can scoff in a community whose residents go daft over such an event as a chicken race?

Usually it ends in a general sing-a-long, and last year the biggest turnout we've ever had had a pleasant surprise when a segment of our high school marching band turned up to provide blaring accompaniment.

Win, lose, or draw -- in fair weather or foul -- Fred Hill always has been the one Ohio Stater taking part. Nonetheless, there have been a couple of times when fair-minded, impartial, unprejudiced, forgiving Ann Arbor types volunteered to join him on the ledge of the fountain just so he wouldn't appear so lonesome.

Never has there been any doubt of a worthy Wolverine delegation being present, even if to take its lumps, and the strong voice of Ned Stirtion is assurance that all's right with the world, and there's always next year.

This autumn, Ohio State is flying high, wide, and handsome. The Bucks are unbeaten and untied under their new mentor, Earle Bruce. It's a team that has been awesome on offense, tremendous on defense, maybe even fabulous. In some quarters Bruce is being hailed as being a better coach than his predecessor, the unlamented Wayne Woodrow Hayes.

The Wolverines, on the other hand, have been spotty. They have lost twice and on some Saturdays may have needed luck to win. The loss to Purdue guarantees the role of underdog this week when, again, upwards of 104,000 spectators will cram into "the hole that Yoast dug, Crisler paid for, and Canham carpeted."

The plain truth, however, is that OSU peaked too early. The Wolverines on the other hand, have yet to play their one perfect game of the year. They saved it for Nov. 17.

In this storied series which began in 1897, there have been many underdog triumphs. Hoarse, off-key voices from Kellogg Park Saturday will let downtown Plymouth know of the latest OSU-BUCKS

Don't delay farmland preservation

Whatever happened to Canton Township's farmland preservation program? The township's Planning Commission is asking that question, and deservedly so. Aside from efforts by trustee Bob Greenstein, who is the township's farmland-preservation director, to procure aid from the U.S. Congress, not much has been accomplished since voters narrowly turned down a request to fund the program in November, 1978.

The planning commission would like to see more activity on the local level from Greenstein -- a reasonable request. Only with a solid consensus of township officials, landowners, and farmers on the specifics of the program can it hope to succeed.

Federal funding is nice, but the tougher battle is close to home. Greenstein argues that he can't proceed far on the local level without a new master plan and zoning ordinance, which earmarks the farmland in the western half of the township as a permanent agricultural district.

These legal tools are under study by the planning commission, and Greenstein is correct in this respect. But in a whole year, surely the trustee could have achieved more than he has.

The Board of Trustees has proposed to bring a preservation plan back before the voters in mid-1981. A lot of work needs to be done before then -- or voters may believe they're seeing the same old bowl of hash.

City, Twp. should share police

Few disagree: Plymouth Township needs police protection. But the Board of Trustees seems to be digging itself into a deeper and deeper hole trying to get it.

The whole episode started when the township board decided it needed to protect its borders from the City of Plymouth's annexation attempts.

Under a state law passed in 1978, charter townships that provide various services, including police protection, would be immune from annexation. So the township board adopted charter status and started searching for police.

But the fine print of the 1978 act said a charter township must either start its own police force or contract with the county sheriff's department. An agreement with a nearby city or township for police services would not qualify the township for protection from annexation. It seems the sheriff's union lobbyist in Lansing earned his money when that bill wound its way through the state legislature.

In any case, Plymouth Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert decided that a contract with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department was the way to go and started negotiations earlier this year.

After township voters passed in September the one-mill levy to pay for the police services, it seemed the path was clear to hire the sheriff's department.

Here the water muddied. First, the sheriff deputies union decided it wouldn't patrol the township after dark in one-man cars. It insisted upon two-man patrols, which clouded the tentative contract price agreed upon by the sheriff's representatives and the township.

If you were one traditionally suspicious of unions, your ears must be fully cocked by now. It seems the deputies union wears the pants in Wayne County. But this we've always known: unions have never been a shy bunch in Wayne affairs.

Second, the county's financial bungling finally caught up with its leaders recently. The empty payroll accounts have cast a long shadow over the negotiations between the township and the sheriff's representatives.

Third, the City of Plymouth and Notebaert hesitantly reopened the long-discussed possibility of the city policing the township. The proposal has not been formally discussed by either the city commission or the township board, but Attorney General Frank Kelley apparently ended that discussion before it began.

In a recent opinion, Kelley said the annexation-protection act specifically states only a contract with the sheriff would provide safe borders.

With some imagination, the township and city could run an end-around the sheriff's department.

This, in part, led Notebaert to open contract negotiations with the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department -- an unlikely avenue. But if it gets the Wayne County Sheriff's deputies union off dead center, praise the ghost of Joe Hill.

So now, the township finds itself without much place to go. Unless, of course, it sits down and does a little brainstorming, which it should have done in the first place.

A few things are evident: The most logical force to police the township is the City of Plymouth's. After all, the two municipalities are part of the same community; they share many ties. And the city force is ideally located.

With some imagination, the township and the city could run a fourth-quarter end-around the sheriff's department. For example, the township could hire a single person, label him its police department, and proceed to hire full-time protection from the city. The annexation law would be satisfied, simply because the township would have its own department.

Or perhaps the city and the township could form an independent police authority to provide police services to both municipalities.

But these alternatives depend upon the city's willingness to give up its annexation ambitions which prompted the recent township's actions. Otherwise, why should it help the township satisfy the very state act which would give it safe borders?

It's not too late for the township and the city to bury the hatchet and share not only police, but many services, including fire, DPW, and more.

EDITOR:
Thanks to both of you for The Crier coverage relating to the recent campaign for city commissioner.

Even if I lost, it was important to me and the system that the electorate rather than the Commission select the fourth candidate.

The running was a fulfilling experience. I expect the serving to be no less.

JACK KENYON

(Editor's note: Jack Kenyon, with a write-in campaign, won the fourth seat on the commission in last week's city election.)

Thanks, building dept.

EDITOR:

I would like to publicly thank the Canton Township Building Department for all its help over the past few months in connection with the building of our new house.

Gary Barnett was especially helpful in arranging the inspections and offering much needed, timely advice.

All of the inspectors were courteous and appeared to be genuinely interested in making sure that the house was as it should be.

Miles and miles from home,

Scandinavian students like the way we are

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

The TV show "Little House on the Prairie," "Happy Days," and "Soap" are favorites for three foreign exchange students enrolled in eleventh grade at the Centennial Educational Park this year.

All three 17-year olds hail from Scandinavian countries; all three love to ski; and, all three have studied English for five or six years. They speak English very well.

But on the subject of television, blond-haired Andrea Ingvarsson notes: "It's a crime to have TV on at our house (in Sweden) during dinner. If I turned it on then, my parents would kill me," she laughs.

The three students, whose trips were sponsored by the Youth for Understanding program, arrived in Detroit's Metropolitan Airport, where their American families greeted them, in late August.

Soft-spoken Andrea, who comes from Sweden, is staying with Joanne and Leon Jurczynsyn and their children, Cynthia, 16, Terri, 14, and Paul, 11, in Canton. Since they've had two foreign exchange students live with them previously, Joanne reports that they're old hands at it. "Andres has adjusted quite well here," says her American mom.

Andrea makes her bed, cleans up her room, clears the table after dinner, and does other household chores, says Jurczynsyn. "And," she notes, "she's in love with our garbage disposal."

Tarja Tuominen is staying with Keith and Jan Rolston and their youngsters, Kelly, 12, Kerry, 8, and Todd, 6, at their home on Enjoying their visits.....

10-acres on North Territorial Road. Tarja also pitches in to help around the house.

"She keeps her room very neat," Jan Rolston says about the petite student. "It's almost like having another adult around the house."

Tarja, has adapted to one difference well since arriving in her American home: In Finland, she's the youngest child at home, but here she's the oldest, says her mom.

As an avid swimmer, Tarja is a member of the Canton girls' swim team specializing in the butterfly and freestyle. Her qualifying times for state competition are feats that Jan Rolston recounts with a touch of pride in her voice.

Shirley Hamilton, Jens Schau-Hansen's American mother, reports that she can't keep enough strawberry jam at home to satisfy him. "We had to stop him from putting jam on his cereal," she laughs. David and Shirley Hamilton have two teenagers, 16-year old David and 14-year-old Arleen.

Jens, a city boy whose parents own a flower shop in Oslo, Norway, feeds the dogs and takes care of the cows at the Hamilton's farm on Beck Road in Canton.

"If he doesn't want to do a chore, he tells me he doesn't understand," says Shirley Hamilton. "But I tell him he's been here for three months and that he understands," she retorts. Jens as a yen for cheeseburgers here.

He also likes his speedreading class at Salem High School. "They don't have classes like that at home."

The size of CEP, where about 4,600 students are enrolled, dismayed all three students at first. The girls wear high heels and make-up to school here, a practice that's not quite so common in Sweden, says Andrea.

The three are thoughtful when asked why they'd come here as exchange students. The Andrea breaks the silence: "I wanted to go abroad for one year, but my parents wanted to send me to a German grammar school."

"I thought I'd better do something about that," she giggles. What's her biggest aim while here? "I want to learn more words. At home, I have 10 words for what I want to say. Here I have only one or two."

Readers aided

Dwight Anderson, English teacher at Salem High School, has been commended by the National Council of Teachers of English for his contribution to the revision of "High Interest - Easy Reading."

This booklist describes more than 425 current titles with special appeal for adolescents who do not yet have the reading habit. It is designed for use by junior and senior high students, as well as teachers and librarians.

Guests mingle at LWV party

On Nov. 9 city officials, school board members, business persons, and League of Women Voters' supporters mingled at the fifth annual wine and cheese party hosted by the LWV of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Lois and Eric Hoffmeister opened their Northville home to league members and guests, who contributed a minimum $10 per couple to help support various league projects. Lois Hoffmeister is the league's publications director. Party chairperson Michelle Howard and her committee served wine, cheese, French bread, crackers, a beef roll, and fruit. Howard said that 211 invitations, reproduced from a hand-calligraphed original, had been sent.

"The wine and cheese party is our way of thanking league supporters and of introducing them to their local officials," LWV President Nancy White said. "It is our only social event of the year and is looked forward to as an opportunity to meet old and new faces connected with the league in the four communities we represent."

LWV members work to promote informed, active citizen participation in government, she said. The league has recently sponsored candidates' nights in Northville and Novi, published voters guides in Plymouth, Novi, and Northville, registered voters, and collected signatures for a Wayne County Executive petition drive. The League also taped a Plymouth voters guide, on file at the Dunning-Hough library, for visually handicapped citizens.

tell it to Phyllis

By now, most schools in the district have had an official open house. It's the big night when parents get their first look at his year's teacher.

Every year it's the same old thing -- the kid lost the note and forgot to tell you about the open house, and everyone knows it would be the end of the world if you missed it. After changing your plans for the evening, you throw hot dogs together for dinner, and go dashing off to the school.

Unfortunately, every organized parent in the school arrived on time and you have to park three blocks from the school. That wouldn't be all bad if it wasn't pouring out, with the wind whipping around at 50 mph. Oh well, so you look like a drowned rat when you slide through the door.

After greeting the principal and many neighbors, you finally get your big chance to meet the teacher. There you are standing face to face and you can almost read his (her) mind. "Oh boy, that poor kid needs more help than I thought."

However, the teacher may not realize there are a pair of eyes staring back at him (her) thinking, "So this is the monster who kept me up till 10:30 the other night trying to figure out the kid's homework."

First impressions aren't always the best -- but don't worry, it won't be long before it's time for conferences.

Former Plymouth-Canton students participating in Western Michigan University Band Spectacular on Nov. 16 include Steve Hawkins in the Jazz Band, Sally Hawkins in the Concert Band, and Jill Baskins in the Marching Band.

Symphony performs Sunday

The Plymouth Symphony Society announces its second concert of the 1979-1980 season will be at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 18, in the Salem High School auditorium.

Works by Berlioz ("The Damnation of Faust") and Beethoven ("Symphony #1") will be performed in addition to the "Concerto in A minor for Violin, Cello and Orchestra" ("Double Concerto") by Brahms. Guest artists will be Alfio Pignotti, violin, from Eastern Michigan University and Samuel Mayes, cello, from the University of Michigan. Guest conductor will be Michael Krajewski, currently conducto fellow of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Born in Detroit and reared in Dearborn, Krajewski was appointed to the one-year Detroit Symphony Orchestra post by Antal Dorati. He studied at Wayne State University and Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music and served for two years as instrumental music teacher in the Ypsilanti Public Schools.

He has conducted the Buffalo Philharmonic and the Cincinnati College Conservatory of music orchestras. He came to Detroit from Kansas where he had been serving as Music Director and Conductor for the Youth Symphony of Kansas City.

Violinist Alfio Pignotti is a Professor of Music at Eastern Michigan University. Previously he had taught violin and viola at the University of Texas, Ball State University and Interlochen Arts Academy.

Pignotti has served as concertmaster of the New Orleans Philharmonic, the San Antonio Symphony, and the Chicago Little Symphony. He has appeared as violin recitalist and chamber music artist in the United States, England and on the continent.

Samuel Mayes is known as one of the great cellists of our time. Formerly principal cellist with the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony, he has been hailed throughout the world for his talent. He has been a soloist with Koussevitsky, Toscanini, Stokowski, Walter, Ormandy, Monteux, Munch, Leins-dorf, Ozawa, and Mehta. He is currently Professor of Cello at the University of Michigan. An interested sidelight about him is the fact that he is the grandson of a Cherokee Indian Chief.

Tickets for the concert will be available at the door. Advance sale tickets may be purchased at Beitner Jewelry on Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth Book World on Forest St., and Heide's Flowers, Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey.

Tickets cost $4 for adults and $2 for senior citizens. Students, kindergarten through twelfth grade are admitted free. Members of the Plymouth Symphony Society will be admitted with their season tickets. A Girl Scout troop will provide babysitting for preschoolers during the concert. Free transportation for senior citizens is provided from Tonquish Creek Manor at 3:15 p.m. on Sunday afternoon. This concert is made possible with the support of the State of Michigan through a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and a gift from the Burroughs Corp.

63 join CEP honor society

The faculty of Plymouth Centennial Education Park recently invited 63 members of Salem's and Canton's senior classes to membership in the National Honor Society. Membership is based upon four criteria: scholarship (a minimum 3.0 gradepoint average), leadership, character, and service.

Members of the National Honor Society meet once a month for a dinner meeting where they discuss their current activities. Included among such activities are tutoring for those students having difficulty in their academic subjects, planing a Christmas gift drive, and arranging for a Muscular Dystrophy Dance-a-thon to be held at the Park next spring.

The seniors named below join the current membership of about 100 Juniors and Seniors at CEP as members of the National Honor Society. Here are the new society members:

Make reading a habit, says Green

Libraries in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are sponsoring Children's Book Week until Nov. 18. If you surround a child with books, read to him, and make books easy for him to take out, you've laid the best basis for encouraging reading, says Bee Breen, library director.

There will be Book fairs at Bird, Eriksson, Smith and Hulsing schools, with others to come later. The school morning newslines number, 453-0271, will give dates for each school.

In addition to book fairs, there will be story-telling, periods set aside for everyone to read, displays of new books added to the libraries' own collections; and trips to the book fair in Detroit, where students will hear popular authors and illustrators.

The reading habit is addictive, says Green. If parents and children have not yet started, there is no better time than now, she adds.

One-half an hour a day - or more - away from the TV set and into a good book can make a lifelong difference, she says. "Try it -- you won't regret it."

CHILDREN'S AUTHOR, Kathy Osebold Galbraith and her dog, Billie were in Plymouth last week visiting her mother, and autographing her latest book, "Come Spring." Crier Photo by Phyllis Redfern

Plymouth author says, Writing's a lonely job

BY PHYLLIS REDFERN

Kathy Galbraith, author of two children's books, visited her hometown of Plymouth last week. While staying with her mother on Auburn Street, Kathy took a few minutes to talk about her books and her career.

Plymouth street names and places filter through her newest book, "Come Spring." However, Kathy said the book is not about her life here. "You limit yourself if you direct your writing toward a person or place," she said.

Growing up in Plymouth, Kathy attended Our Lady of Good Counsel School and graduated from Plymouth High School (now Central Middle School). She graduated from the University of Michigan in 1967, and earned her master's degree in 1970. While working as a children's librarian in Seattle, she met her husband, Steve. They lived in New York for the past eight years, where she worked as a business librarian at Fordham University, before becoming a librarian at the New York City Rand Institute.

Kathy said she has always been interested in writing, and for the last five years has been writing seriously. One of the things she found most helpful was getting involved in a workshop. "Writing is a very lonely business, and it's good to be with fellow writers," she said.

Kathy described writing as something that takes a tremendous amount of work, time, and discipline. "I think it is hard for new writers to realize what all is involved," she said.

Her advice to anyone interested in writing is to read extensively in his area and write every day.

Writers are constantly working, said Kathy. "Sometimes you hear an interesting name or a story and store it in the back of your mind. I think you always write for the child in you -- authors never loose touch with how they felt as a child."

Kathy described the characters in her books as "very real people, who grow as you write." What they look like physically is not as important as who they are. "You get to know what they are thinking, and what things they would or wouldn't do," she said.

"Come Spring," a book for young teens, took Kathy three years to write (she was working full-time as a librarian at the time). She rewrote the entire book three times, wanting everything to be perfect. "Spots Are Special," her first book, came easier. In a picture book, it is the concept that is important, she said.

Both books are published by Atheneum (a Margaret K. McElderry book). "Spots Are Special" is in its second printing, and was listed as a best seller in "Publishers Weekly." Zeros Publications picked it to be included in the paperback school book club, offered in the schools.

"Come Spring" is new on the market. It centers around Reenie, a 12-year-old red-head, her family, and dog. The family has moved several times, but Reenie has hopes they'll put down roots and never move again. Both books are available at Plymouth Book World.

When asked about future books, Kathy said, "Just before you finish writing a book, you start the next one in your mind."

Kathy, her husband, Steve, and their dog, Billie, are relocating in Seattle where he plans to go into business. She plans to write and hopefully work part-time as a children's librarian. "In addition to writing, I like library work and being with people," she said.

Rec chairman: Give Canton kids a place to play

BY NANCY KOOL

Citing the late hour and a tight township budget, the Canton Township Board of Trustees balked last Tuesday at approving the master plan for Flodin Park -- let alone the first $158,000 phase of the proposed four-stage development of the Saltz Road park-site.

A decision on the fate of the plan was postponed until a Nov. 20 special meeting.

The township's Recreation Advisory Committee had asked for first-year funding, to include construction costs for two ball diamonds, two tennis courts, and a play center. The current township budget has already earmarked about twice the first-phase cost -- in excess of $300,000 -- for parks, which could be used to fund the project, according to Supervisor Noel Culbert.

But the merits of the entire four-phase proposal raised debate Tuesday. As proposed, improvements over the first three years would amount to an estimated $343,000. A final, $113,300 stage could only be completed if and when Morton Road Blvd. is extended along the park's western boundary.

"We're adopting a commitment to well over $500,000, with inflation," Trustee Stephen Larson objected. "There's an impaired price tag and it is a stiff price tag."

Another trustee, Robert Greenstein, said he was "opposed to trying to jack (approval of the plan) in at 11:10 p.m." (Canton meetings are scheduled to end at 11:30 p.m.)

But Supervisor Noel Culbert said after the meeting that accepting the master plan and approving the first-year costs included no commitment to funding the final three phases.

"Adopting the plan itself is one thing, and funding is separate," said Culbert. "The first phase is where you get most of the work done. After that, we can pick and choose (additional improvements) as we please."

Of the first-year expense, the bulk would go for mass grading of the 17.1-acre northern half of the site ($51,300); two tennis courts ($30,000), a storm sewer for the west half of the site ($15,000), and play center apparatus ($12,000) make up the bulk of the remaining estimated cost.

The master-plan proposal was drawn up by architects Anderson, Lesniak & Associates, as directed by the Recreation Advisory Committee (RAC) and township Recreation Superintendent Michael Gouin. The proposal has also been the subject of three public hearings.

RAC Chairman Ralph Brinkman encouraged the board to adopt the plan: "Those kids (who live in Canton) are clamoring for something to do. You owe it to them to give them a place to play."

Canton jogger dies after being struck by car

Timothy Schroepfer, 32, of Canton Township, died last Sunday as a result of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car while jogging along Ann Arbor Road on Oct. 22.

Schroepfer lived in Canton's Stoney Brook Apartments.

A Wayne County Sheriff's Department detective said the crime is under investigation, and added that he believes a warrant will be issued later this week for the arrest of the person driving the vehicle that killed Schroepfer.

Mitchell Alan Eidenmiller, arrested in connection with the death an hour after it happened, was cleared of committing the crime, said the sheriff's spokesman.

The driver of the vehicle will probably be charged with manslaughter, he added.

Schroepfer was struck around 7:30 p.m., east of General Drive, apparently on the curb or shoulder of Ann Arbor Road, said police. He suffered injuries to his legs and his head, said a spokesman for St. Mary's Hospital, where the victim died.

Is your student immunized?

The Wayne County Health Department, in conjunction with the Plymouth-Canton Community School nurses, is holding a free immunization clinic at Salem High School for students in grades 9 through 12 on Monday through Wednesday Nov. 19-21. The clinic will be held during school hours, 7 a.m. to 2 p.m.

A form letter is being sent to parents of students inadequately immunized. The permission form can be filled in and signed by the parent and returned to the clinic at the time of immunization.

Feb. 15, 1980, is the date set by the Board of Education to exclude all students in grades 9 through 12 who have not been immunized.

Violence at Canton under study

Canton High School has been selected as one of the schools to be included in a state-wide study of vandalism and violence. A 38-member Governor's Task Force will study the problems of school violence and vandalism and make recommendations on eliminating and preventing them in the future.

Canton was chosen as part of a random sample of Michigan districts to collect data for the study, says a letter from Gov. William Milliken. For the study, students, principals, and teachers will be asked to complete a questionnaire on vandalism and some districts will be visited by task force members, says the letter.

The Plymouth-Canton district was not included in the random sample because of "any perception that violence and vandalism are particularly severe in your district," says Milliken's letter.

Approval to take part in the study was given by Supt. John Hoben and his administrative cabinet.

You can help Canton develop

Canton Township's Economic Development Corporation, which aids business development in the township, will have an opening on its board, starting Nov. 22.

Those interested in serving should submit a resume to Supervisor Noel Culbert, 1150 Canton Center Rd., by Nov. 21.

Former Supervisor Harold Stein's term on the EDC expires Nov. 22.

The EDC reviews business applicants for low-cost financing sponsored by the township.

Theater's OK depends on lawyers

Canton trustees will seek the advice of their attorney before taking action on a rezoning request to allow the construction of the township's first movie theater.

Developers have already filed suit against the township to force the zoning change

Fletcher promoted

Sgt. William Fletcher of the Plymouth Police Department will be promoted to lieutenant on Nov. 18, Police Chief Timothy Ford has announced.

Fletcher will assume supervisory duties on the night shift, said Ford.

from residential to commercial for the 10-acre property on the south side of Ford Road, between Lilley and Morton-Taylor. Canton's Planning Commission opposed the rezoning, saying it is contrary to the township's proposed master land-use plan.

"In light of the development on Ford Road," the present (single-family) zoning is "ridiculous," Michael Feiler, attorney for developer Gerald Richter, told the board last week.

Feiler called the proposed movie theater "a much needed recreational avenue for the people of the township."

The board of trustees tabled consideration of the matter until a Nov. 27 meeting.

Parent night coming

Thursday, Nov. 15 is parent-teacher conference night at Centennial Educational Park. Staff members will all be in the Canton gymnasium in order to help parents contact all of their student's teachers. Conferences will begin at 6:30 p.m. and run until 10.

Parents whose last names begin A through L are encouraged to attend between 6:30 p.m. and 8. Parents whose last names begin M through Z should plan to attend between 8:15 p.m. and 10. This can help to alleviate traffic and parking problems and minimize waiting.

Schools mull discipline policy

The conditions under which a spanking can be given in the Plymouth-Canton schools will be reviewed by a committee of students, parents, and school officials soon.

Charged with revising the Student Code of Conduct, which includes spanking and its use in the classroom, the committee will submit recommendations for changes or additions in the current eight-year-old policy. to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education. The committee's recommendations will be considered by the board at its meeting on Jan. 28, 1980, according to the resolution passed by the board Monday night.

Three groups will work on reviewing the elementary, middle, and high school codes of conduct, according to the recommendation from Supt. John Hoben. The committee will include parents, students, teachers, principals, representatives of the Parent-Teacher Organization, school officials, and other citizens.

Let's Talk Real Estate
by Barbara M. Olson

From time to time we feel it important to remind you how a mortgage actually works. A lender agrees to provide the money needed to buy a specific home or piece of property. The buyer, in turn, promises to repay the money based on terms set forth in the agreement or contract. The contract should state the amount of the loan, the interest rate, the size of the payment, and the frequency of payments. The contract also may include other provisions such as penalties, prepayment privileges and any other special conditions. The buyer pledges the home or property as security, and it remains pledged until the loan is paid.

Wine Lines

Ahmad and Shirley Jallad

There are many guidelines concerning which wines to drink with which foods. Many people dismiss these suggestions saying they will go by taste rather than rule or tradition. Wine drinking tradition is based on taste and texture and how good a particular wine with a particular type of food. The reason wine connoisseurs recommend hearty red wines for steak and roast beef is because they suit each other's taste and texture, bringing out the best qualities of each. The same applies to white wines and shell fish.

Donations needed at clothing bank

Where can you get a thick blue terry cloth man's bathrobe with a Marshall Field's label still attached free of charge?

The Plymouth-Canton Clothing Fund, established in 1975 for families whose children are eligible for free or reduced lunches in school, has this bathrobe and more at a portable classroom behind Central Middle School.

Featuring everything from lunch boxes to winter coats to tube socks, the fund gives clothing away to everyone who qualifies -- from parents to preschoolers.

"Jeans are probably the most popular item," says Flossie Tonda, a school board member who started the clothing bank four years ago. "We just can't keep enough of them in stock because everyone from toddlers to moms and dads like to wear them," she said, adding that the services help about 250 kids and their families each year. Also included this year are socks, particularly boys' tube socks, and underwear. "We can always use more donations," said Pat Warner, a parent who works at the clothing center during its hours on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

Warner outlines a good rule of thumb in giving donations to the fund. "Give what your own child would wear," she says.

"When a child feels good about the way he or she looks, then he'll learn better and like school more," Tonda said.

After the donations come to the clothing drive, all the articles are sorted, sized, and hung up or put on shelves. "We can use more volunteers to straighten shelves," Warner said. In addition to Tonda and Warner, Marie Hopper also works at the clothing center, which has been supported by the parent-teacher organizations throughout the school district, the Altar Society of Good Counsel School, and various businesses in town.

For those who visit the clothing bank, there's even a tiny dressing room with a full-length mirror tucked in a back corner for trying on new apparel.

If you'd like to donate clothing, you can take it to the clothing bank at Central Middle School from 9:30 to noon on Tuesday and Thursday or to the school district's warehouse, 180 Adams St. near Central Middle School, or call Hopper at 453-5818.

Y' shortens name process of negotiating for all the other aspects of the buildings -- maintenance, desks, and other costs," said the superintendent.

A bond proposal, which is expected to be placed before the voters in February, 1980, will help pay for some of the cost of growth in the school district, but bond money cannot be used toward rental costs, according to Hoedel.

Renting and setting up another school with teachers, books, and desks, plus the cost of busing students there, will put a "whale of a strain on the operating budget," said Hoben to the crowd of parents Monday night.

The latest Fourth Friday counts of the school district places Plymouth-Canton as about the 11th largest district in the state, with more than 16,500 students. Also, according to Wayne County figures quoted by Supt. Hoben, Plymouth-Canton will be the second largest school district in Wayne County after 1983, when 20,000 students may be enrolled.

Today's fourth grade is the peak grade, said Hoben, meaning that there were more students in that grade than others. As the "bulge grade" moves into middle school and then onto high school, those schools will be more and more crowded, said Hoben.

"Rental (in Livonia) would slow down expansion of the ESY program (extended school year), but it would probably not eliminate it," he added.

With nearly 4,700 students enrolled at Salem and Canton High schools this year (Their building capacities are about 4,400), housing students is at "a critical point there," said Hoben.

To alleviate overcrowding there, school administrators are considering two alternatives: adding an additional seventh hour of classroom instruction so that the lab rooms and other specialized classrooms could be used one more hour during the day; and, retaining the eighth grades at Central and West middle schools so that only half of the ninth graders would be attending classes at the high schools.

Hoben added that a decision on those alternatives "will probably be made within 30 days."

Furthermore, he said that the ESY program wouldn't work well at the high-school level. "We'd have problems with all the students in accelerated courses on one track and the football team on another. The same types of students would be on the same tracks," he said.

In addition to renting Livonia schools and expanding the ESY program, portable classrooms may be purchased to set up more classrooms. Although portables are a viable option, the cafeteria is equipped to feed a certain number of students and there isn't enough locker space if we add too many portables to one school, said Hoben.

The school board will probably set the amount of the bond proposal to be placed before the voters at its meeting Dec. 10.

Planners push farm preservation to fund the program without state or federal assistance.

"One problem we have is that it's been a year since that vote and there's been a high turnover of population in the township," said Carman. "We need an ongoing educational program (to inform these new residents)."

Specifically, the planning commission's resolution asks that "the Township Board provide direction to the Farmland Preservation Director, that he increase his activities, and pursue all avenues of approach with emphasis on the local aspects of the program." The commission also requested "a timetable for these efforts, and further that he (Greenstein) provide a status report of local activities to date."

"One of the next steps will be to meet with the landowners," said Greenstein, "but I have no authority to make promises. I would be happy to get a commitment from the board on what it plans to do."

"I know Thom (Carman) supports the program," he added. "I'll be happy if his move helps get the board (of trustees) off center."

Greenstein proposed the farmland preservation program during his term as supervisor, from 1974-76. After he regained a seat on the board, it named him director of the township's efforts.

The preservation proposal calls for buying from the landowner the right to develop his property. The farmer or landowner would still hold his land's deed -- he simply couldn't develop it or sell to a developer.

In 1978, the cost of purchasing the development rights was estimated at $16 million.

expires if no building permit is issued within one year, said Greenstein, "giving (approval) is giving Accchione nothing." By the time a lawsuit is concluded, however, sewer may be available to the property, and the township would have no grounds for withholding a building permit, he said.

Both Greenstein and Culbert agreed that this was the first time the township had denied approval of a site plan because of inadequate sewer or water.

The state Department of Health recently told the township to halt all new projects that would require major extensions to the township's water and sewer systems. The state said both systems are overtaxed.

Canton swimmers drop meet to Northville

BY BETTY DeLANO

The Canton swim team dropped its third league meet of the season Thursday night to Northville, 103-69 giving the Chiefs a 5-6 overall record and a 3-3 mark in the Western Six Conference.

First place finishes were few in number for the Canton squad as the Mustangs claimed seven firsts and left the Canton with three.

Tarja Tuominen paced the action in the 200 yard individual medley earning Canton's first winning time of the meet with a time of 2:25.1. Senior Kim Massey managed to claim a first place finish in the 100 yard breast stroke with a time of 1:19.16 and Elly Wagner claimed the diving title for the Chiefs with 180.15 total points.

Making an attempt of making up the difference by claiming a number of second place finishes Canton started off the meet by grasping both second and third places in the 200 yard relay.

Massey, Tuominen, Mary Reardon and Missy McMurray joined forces for second place with a time of 2:11.58 behind Northville's winning time of 1:41.31. Julie Stratton, Karen Mullen, Debbie Dickenson and Brownwyn Fitzgerald teamed up for third place with a time of 2:21.79.

Canton was denied any strong finishes in the 200 yard freestyle event after Northville placed first, second and third and then proceeded to take second and third place in the 200 yard I.M. behind Tuominen.

McMurray squeezed out a third place in the 50 yard freestyle event with a 28.93 time and Chris Wennerberg followed Wagner in the diving competition for second place with 179.25 total points.

Claiming four points in the 100 yard butterfly, Massey placed second with a time of 1:11.42. Tuominen posted a time of 57.22 in the 100 yard freestyle for second place and Reardon claimed second place in the 500 yard freestyle at 6:18.7.

Stratton and Mullen were denied any pleasure in the 100 yard backstroke, placing fourth and fifth. Fitzgerald finished out the individual competition by taking second with a time of 1:25.12.

Canton placed third in the 400 yard relay with a time of 4:40.0. Dickenson, Wagner, Kelly Salyor and Janet Powell combined their talents in that event.

Canton's next contest will be the Western-6 league meet scheduled to start tomorrow. Presently, Canton stands in third place of the league.

Chiefs clinch loop title

BY MIKE HENSHAW

The Canton girls basketball team rolled to its 12th and 13th consecutive wins last week, knocking off Walled Lake Central 55-46 last Tuesday and upping its Western Six league-leading record to 8-0 by defeating Livonia Churchill 53-42 Thursday.

The victory Churchill clinched the Western Six League.

Canton coach Mike McCauley was pleased by the way his team handled themselves in the Walled Lake Central victory, a tough, close game right down to the wire.

"Walled Lake played really well. I'm proud of the way our girls responded to the pressure," said McCauley. "It was a hustling, good game. I think it was one of our best performances of the year."

Pearlie Cunningham was high scorer for the Chiefs with 11 points, followed by Reggie Ruggerio and Vicky Cavallaro with eight points apiece. Mary Keely was the game's high scorer for Walled Lake with a total of 19 points.

Canton led 14-13 at the end of the first quarter and 25-23 at the half. The Chiefs upped their margin to 39-33 at the end of three quarters and proceeded to outscore Central 16-13 in the final stanza to secure the victory.

Canton was good on 17 of 28 freethrows and committed a total of 16 fouls. Central was 6 of 15 from the line and were guilty of 19 personals.

The Chiefs led all the way against Churchill, jumping off to a 14-4 margin at the end of the first quarter and going on to register their 14th win of the year compared to 3 losses.

AGGRESSIVE PLAY by Canton's Joni Sommerville was one of the reasons behind the Chiefs 53-42 victory over Livonia Churchill Thursday night that clinched the Western Six League title for the Canton squad. The Chiefs are now 13-3 for the season overall.

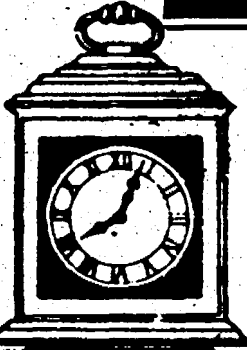

Wrestlers hold fruit sale

Members of the Canton and Salem wrestling teams are conducting their third annual Texas orange and grapefruit sale. The oranges will cost $8 for a small case (20-40 oranges) and $15 for a large case (40-80 oranges). A small case of grapefruits (18-24) costs $7 and a large case (36-48) $11.

The wrestlers have set a goal to sell 1,000 cases. The fruit will be delivered Dec. 16, in time for Christmas orders.

Proceeds of the sale will go toward the purchase of film loops, a video tape machine, and other items that cannot be included in the current athletic budget.

To order, contact a wrestler from either school or call Canton coach Dan Jhrenko at 453-3100 (ext. 398) or Salem coach Ron Krueger at 453-3100 (ext. 247).

Volleyball: the unnoticed sport

While those people that live in the Plymouth-Canton area had no alternative other than facing a steady rain Friday, I managed to get away from all that rain by heading north. The rain stopped at about St. John's and at that point I was faced with an inch of snow rather than an inch of rain.

My trip north really wasn't that far, Finch Field House at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant. But all the same as my companion for the trip and I drove farther north, we were quite surprised to find snow piled up along the side of US-27.

Being a fan of the winter's snow, my initial response was pure excitement since snow meant skiing and my skis have been dusted, waxed and adjusted in preparation for the winter season. Needless to say, my passenger wasn't as enthusiastic about the snow as I was.

The purpose of our trip to CMU was to watch the collegiate district volleyball tournament that ran all day Friday with the preliminary games and then the finals on Saturday.

Why would anyone want to go all the way to Mt. Pleasant just to watch a volleyball game and then drive all the way back to Plymouth in one night? Well when there are four Plymouth graduates playing on three of the teams at the tournament and you're a student at Eastern Michigan and EMU is competing, there are a few reasons why such a trip would be attempted.

Virtually an unnoticed sport, many sport enthusiasts forget that volleyball, just as any other sport, is a highly competitive game at any level and offers scholarships at the college level.

Three former volleyball players from Salem High School have received some form of scholarship to play college volleyball and one Canton graduate received scholarship money so long as that person played on the volleyball team.

Those Salem graduates that I am referring to include Cheri Levielle, a 1977 graduate; Clarisse Hartnett, a 1978 graduate; and Monette Recto, a 1979 graduate from Salem. Both Levielle and Hartnett play for CMU, which wound up being the eventual champions of the weekend's tournament for the second year in a row. Recto, referred to as instant help by her coach, is starting for Ferris State University as a freshman.

Canton's claim to fame in college volleyball is Kelly Heaton, who holds down a main role on the Northern Michigan University lineup.

When athletic scholarships come up in any conversation the first bell to ring is football and basketball. If volleyball is such an unnoticed sport, then it sure is nice to say there are four players from Plymouth that managed to overcome that barrier and prove that volleyball is an important part of collegiate athletics.

Since there are players that make it playing college ball other than in basketball or football, maybe it would be a wise thing if some of the people in the community and some of the administration at the high schools found time in their overcrowded schedules to watch college volleyball players in the making. Coaches Cathy Himes (Salem) and Cyndi Burnstein (Canton) are certainly putting in just as much effort to produce college hopefuls as any other coach at Canton or Salem.

One point loss hurts Salem

With 25 seconds left on the clock, the Salem girls basketball team couldn't prevent Livonia Bentley's Kim Platka from sinking what became the winning basket for the Bulldogs last night (Tuesday). The Salem loss gave up all chances for a Suburban Eight League title with a 40-39 score.

"Our girls really worked hard and there were a lot of times where we could have put the game out of reach," said Salem Coach Bob Blohm. "It was disappointing to lose (Nan) Horwood (fouled out) so early in the game. They made a lot of sensational shots at key times which really made the difference."

Junior forward Cheryl Sobkow took care of most of the Salem scoring, earning 16 total points at the buzzer. Eileen Moore added 10 to the Salem total and Patty Weidman chipped in six points.

Leading scorers for Bentley included Shiela Degrazia with 16 and Platka with 11.

"We can't look back now. We have to look at our next goal which is tomorrow's game against Trenton," said Blohm. "The game against Bentley just came down to who had the last scoring opportunity. After losing to Edsel Ford, we came back and played hard. I have to give the team credit for that."

Bentley jumped to an early 11-7 lead after the first quarter and outscored the Rocks again in the second quarter taking a halftime lead of 31-26. Salem fought its way back into contention during the third quarter with a tough man-to-man defense but the Bulldog bite was too strong and Salem was handed its fifth loss of the season against 12 wins.

13 straight wins

Diane Durocher netted 11 points to pave the way for the Chiefs, and Cunningham and Cavallaro scored eight points each. Cindy Bussart led the Chargers with 13 points, followed by Mary Watson with 11. It was another physical contest between the league rivals, Canton committing 20 team fouls to Churchill's 22. The Chiefs connected on 17 of 27 charity tosses, the Chargers 14 of 19.

"Our starters played really well," said McCauley. "The win clinched the league title for us. The hard work of the girls paid off."

After getting off to a slow 0-5 start, the junior varsity Chief team has won 10 of its last 12 games to improve its record to 10-7.

Lisa Cavell's 10 points powered the Chiefs to a 35-26 win over Walled Lake, and the hustling Canton squad edged Churchill 42-38 in overtime behind Sue Gerke's 16 point total. Earlier in the season the Chief's were beaten by that same Charger team by 19 points, making the victory even more gratifying.

Both Canton teams will continue Western Six play tomorrow night at home against Northville.

Cagers upset by Edsel Ford

BY BETTY DeLANO

Chances for a Suburban Eight League championship title for the Salem girls basketball team were diminished Thursday night when he Rocks lost an important contest to Dearborn Edsel Ford, 50-43.

"After losing to Edsel Ford we had to reorganize our priorities for the season," said Blohm. "I don't see any other team in the league having a chance to beat Bentley (8-0 in the league) besides us."

Senior Nan Horwood earned the title of high scorer against the T-birds after capitalizing on nine field goals for 18 points. Next in line was Edsel's Sue Beardslee with 16 points and Linda Jagger, also from Edsel, adding 11 points to the winning total.

For Salem, foul trouble took its toll as both Patty Weidman and Cheryl Sobkow hit the bench after adding four points to the Rocks final score.

Eileen Moore and Jacque Merrifield both added seven points to Salem's final score, hitting on two from the field and three from the line.

Joy Gornick and Denise Zonca contributed the final points to 43-point total. Cont. on pg. 28

Swimmers end season with league win

BY MIKE HENSHAW

The Salem girls swim team concluded its dual meet season on a high note Thursday by defeating Suburban Eight league foe Belleville, 49-32.

The Rocks go into tomorrow's (Thursday) league meet in fourth place in the Suburban Eight. Livonia Bentley is first, followed by Dearborn and Edsel Ford. Salem compiled an overall mark of 7-6 and finished 2-3 in the league.

"We have an outside chance of improving our final placing," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "It will depend on how well we position our swimmers in the various events, the hardest part of competing in league meets."

Terri Eudy took first place honors in the 200-yard freestyle (2:11.0) and 100 breast stroke (1:18.6) events and combined with Linda Wochna and Julie and Corrine Cabadas to win the 200-yard medley relay with a time of 2:08.2 to power the Rocks over Belleville.

Other Salem first-place finishes were recorded by Wochna in the 100-yard butterfly (1:15.8), Sharon Ross in the 100-yard freestyle (1:00.8) and Sue Evans in the 200-yard individual medley (2:38.7) events.

"We had good performances from our seniors in their last dual meet," said Olson. "When we had the win assured we tried some different people in some of the events and we had Natalie McClumpha try some different dives in order to prepare for the league meet and the diving regionals."

McClumpha finished second in the diving event with 185.90 points, the first time in league action the No. 1 ranked Suburban Eight diver did not take medalist honors.

Despite the fourth place finish in comparison to last year's league championship, Olson is pleased with his team's overall showing this season.

"I'm very happy with our girls performance this year," he said. "We swam one of the toughest schedules around, swimming against teams like Stevenson, Northville, and West Bloomfield, three of the top 10 teams in the state. We also are a member of probably the most competitive leagues in the area in the Suburban Eight."

Five Rocks honored on first team

Twelve members of Salem's 1979 varsity football squad, which posted a 7-2 overall record and finished second in the Suburban Eight at 4-1, have been honored by being mentioned on all-league ballots by coaches in the loop. Five of the 12 earned first-team designations.

Eleven of the 12 are seniors, and two were named to the first team both on offense and defense.

This pair included guard Scott Piper and quarterback Jim Anderson.

The team's co-captains, center Jeff Powers and halfback Craig Stack, also were placed on the first team on offense, while on defense linebacker Phil Anderson was among first team choices.

The offensive second team included tackle Stan Snider and Salem's only junior to make the coaches' honor roll, halfback Brian Lewandowski, who also handled Salem's extra point and field-goal kicking chores during the season.

Ends Bob LaVeck and Ron Schultz were placed on the second team on defense, and they also won honorable mention on offense along with tackle Marty Rapson. Powers, Snider, guard Ken Czaplak and halfback Julian Martinez all were on the honorable mention list on defense.

nick chipped in two points and Zonca adding one from the foul line.

Behind from the start, Salem trailed 6-5 at the end of the first period and by a six point 21-15 margin at the half.

Third-quarter action found Salem again on the bottom as Edsel Ford chalked up 14 points and held Salem to 10 to increase the lead to and even 10 points, 35-25. The final quarter gave Salem the chance to finally outscore the T-birds, 18-15, but it wasn't enough to catch the victory-bound club.

After Thursday's loss Salem's season record moved to 12-4 with a Sub-8 mark of 6-2. The Rocks will play Trenton tomorrow (Thursday) in the final league contest of the season. Game time is slated for 6 p.m. at Trenton with the junior varsity game and the varsity match-up will start at 7:45 p.m.
