Gerry Law is newest lawmaker

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Gerry Law "blew away" Bill Joyner in the hotly contested 36th District State House race yesterday.

That assessment, by Joyner's words, reflects the victory by the Republican Plymouth Township Trustee in each of the five communities that comprise the new state house district.

By a 3 to 2 margin in the overall district—unofficially at 15,144 to 10,915—Law easily outdistanced Joyner and Libertarian Keith Bilby, a distant challenger from Plymouth Township.

The closest vote-for-vote race for Law was the City of Plymouth, where he beat Joyner by 162 votes. He won Northville and Northville Township by a 2 to 1 margin, Plymouth Township by 5 to 3, and Canton by only 11 to 10.

Joyner said his future plans are uncertain and that he'd give James Blanchard at least one term as governor before announcing for that race.

Law, who will take a leave from his Ford Motor Co. job, said the Plymouth Township Board members have not discussed who might fill his shoes on the board once he resigns to accept the state house seat.

The victor was aided in his race by his brother, Bob Law, a former state representative and now an aide for Gov. Milliken.

Bilby, who garnered some 350 votes, said it's "safe to say I may make a stab at something" in the future.

All three candidates in the race were Plymouth Township residents—and Law carried each of the three home precincts there.

Plymouth-Canton goes Republican

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Voters in The Plymouth-Canton Community yesterday came out to the polls in mass and, based on the governor's race, came out solidly behind the Republican Party.

Republican candidate for governor, Richard Headlee, unofficially picked up 2,111 votes in the City of Plymouth, 4,164 in Plymouth Township and 5,707 in Canton for a total of 11,982.

The Democratic nominee for the governor's chair being vacated by William Milliken, James Blanchard, late last night appeared on his way to victory across the state but not in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

He totaled 1,636 votes in the city, 2,455 in Plymouth Township and 4,331 in Canton for a total of 8,422.

Between 65 and 75 percent of the registered voters in all three communities cast ballots.

Geake outshines Culbert

Incumbent R. Robert Geake (Republican) easily beat off the challenge of former Canton Township Supervisor Noel Culbert (Democrat) to win the State Senate seat in the 6th district.

Unofficial Plymouth-Canton totals late last night showed Geake on top, 14,230 to 8,433. Libertarian candidate John Cruz picked up 267 votes.

Geake said from his campaign headquarters in Livonia he felt the wide margin of victory was an indication the voters of the district are pleased with his performance in Lansing.

"The people obviously felt I had been doing a good job," he said. "And this was an endorsement of my past efforts.

"We expected to win by a 2-1 margin, and right now it looks pretty much like that's what it'll be."

Geake was first elected to his current seat in 1978. He is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and he said his experience at the state level played a key role in his victory.

And with the possibility of a Republican majority in the Senate, he said his years in Lansing will help him become an even more powerful voice for the 6th district.

Voters wait hours, grumble - but stay on

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

No one said voting was easy. In excess of 1,000 of the 1,873 voters registered to vote at Canton's Pct. 7 at Salem High School found that out the hard way.

The combination of a long, complex ballot and a heavy turnout resulted in a wait of up to two hours for those casting ballots there.

Although there was some grumbling concerning the lack of voting machines (there were four on hand), only a small number of people walked away in disgust without voting, according to precinct workers.

One Canton resident, Doug Page, walked in the door at 7:57 p.m. and had to walk to the end of a line of more than 200 people. He said he never considered turning around and leaving.

"Oh no, not at all," he insisted, shaking his head. "This is one right I would never consider giving up, and I just wish more people felt this way."

Another pair of Cantonites, Doug and Carolyn Barta, also never contemplated heading home. They would, however, like to see Pct. 7 could get some additional voting machines.

"I really think it's unfair to make us wait this long to vote," he said. "What surprises me is how many have stood in line for so long to vote."

"The length of this line has got to be an obstacle to those who never made it in the door because they took a quick look inside and saw how many were waiting."

Jim Miller got in line at 7 p.m. but by 9 o'clock still hadn't cast his ballot and was visibly upset.

"This is really a farce, in my opinion," he said with a sweep of his arm. "I'm worried that by the time I get up there to vote the issues and the candidates will have changed."

"I'll tell you, it certainly does discourage me."

Pursell wins

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Unofficial results show incumbent Carl Pursell (Republican) defeated Democratic challenger George Sallade in the race for the 2nd District Congressional seat.

Pursell, a Plymouth Township native, solidly carried Plymouth Township and the City of Plymouth precincts with 6,695 votes.

He also did well in Hillsdale and Lenawee counties.

a direct result, he said, of the heavy campaigning there.

"The 12,000 miles of driving we did in the new parts of the district paid off," Pursell said. "I was also grateful for the strong base of support that I received in the Plymouth area."

Pursell spent election night in the Jackson area. He said his opponent called him late Tuesday night to congratulate him on his victory. Sallade could not be reached for comment.

Did Ford win?

BY REBECCA BEACH

With unofficial results in, Democratic incumbent William D. Ford handily defeated Mitchell Moran (Republican) in the race for the seat in the 15th Congressional district.

But, as of early this morning, neither camp was willing to admit it.

The 15th district, however, which includes Canton Township, went to Ford by a margin of 7,441 to 3,779.

"Until we have conclusive results, we don't want to comment," said Ford's press secretary Roberta Stanley from his election night headquarters in the Southfield Sheraton.

The voters sent Ford back for his 10th term in Congress.

Moran, an engineer for the Ford Motor Co., said he is not willing to concede victory to his opponent.

"There are no precincts that tell me anything final," he said from his home. "One way or another, it's going to be one long night."

The American Independent Party candidate, Gerald Collins, dropped out of the race in October, and still managed to accumulate 85 votes.

A special thanks goes out to all those who worked through the night to bring this election edition to your doorstep. They are: CEP Perspective sports editor Tim McKercher, Heather Campbell, Brian Lysaght from Michigan State, Steve Johnson, Julie Lindamood, Perspective editor John Broderick, Denny Campbell, Michael P. Haggerty, Gail Eason, Michelle Wilson, Valda McClain, Bobbi Abbott, Joyce "Arnie" Arnold, Bob Cameron, Phyllis Redfern, Nancy Hayes, Karen Sattler, Mary Clare Brushingham, Billie Whiteley, Jack Wilcox, Rick Smith, Jean Wendover, Cheryl Eberwein, Mark Constantine, Rebecca Beach, and W. Edward Wendover.

WAYNE COUNTY SHERIFF William Lucas (Democrat) became the first person to be elected to the new Wayne County Executive post, easily defeating Republican candidate Robert FitzPatrick. With a majority of the precincts in The Plymouth-Canton Community reporting, Lucas picked up 10,769 votes to FitzPatrick's 7,414. Lucas, however, had a much more substantial margin of victory in the rest of the county. (Crier photo)

Mahalak re-elected

BY REBECCA BEACH

Incumbent Edward E. Mahalak has apparently won the 37th District State House race.

In a district re-defined to include a portion of Canton, Mahalak, an 18-year Democratic veteran of the House, led Republican contender Theodore W. Jacques in all Canton precinct totals by late Tuesday night.

Totals from the seven Canton precincts the new district encompasses are: 1,770 for Mahalak and 1,278 for Jacques.

"I feel real good about it (the victory)," said Mahalak from the Monroe County Courthouse early this morning, "it proves we worked real hard. We've got another two years to do in Wayne County what we did in Romulus."

According to very incomplete results in the rest of the district, Mahalak led handily. Jacques was unavailable for comment.

Mack edges Bennett

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Milton Mack (Democrat) won the battle for Wayne County Commissioner in the 11th district over Charles Hutton (Libertarian) and Loren Bennett (Republican).

Although Mack lost the vote in Bennett's hometown of Canton, overall district results gave him a clear victory.

Mack said the Canton loss was predictable, but in general the race went as expected.

"My victory is a gratifying endorsement for the Wayne County Road Commission," he said.

Bennett, in discussing the race, said the election was conducted on a "very professional level with no muckraking." He then pledged his support to Mack.

Dumas triumphs

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

In the race for the Wayne County Commissioner's seat in the 10th district, Republican Mary Dumas easily outdistanced Charles M. Jensen (Libertarian) and William Ryan (Democrat).

Dumas, in unofficial results early this morning, accumulated 7,379 votes to 3,720 for Ryan and 121 for Jensen. In the process, she captured every precinct in the district.

She was unavailable last night to comment on her victory.

Dumas' principle opponent, Ryan, said he was a little disappointed by the election results, but felt he didn't do too badly for a first race.

Teachers' union asks: 'Why no board response?'

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

The lack of a response by the Board of Education to a request by a spokesman for the Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA) to sit down and meet with them informally has prompted an angry reply from the teachers' union.

PCEA chief negotiator Candi Reece read a prepared statement to the board at its meeting last Monday in which she claimed it was important for the seven board members to hear the teacher union's arguments personally.

Now, over a week since her appearance before the board, she admitted she's upset the board hasn't gotten back to her with any kind of response.

"I didn't think they'd be this rude," she insisted. "It tells you they don't want to bargain and get this thing settled."

Board President Tom Yack said he doesn't see any point in the board meeting with the PCEA negotiators.

"We really couldn't see any benefit," he explained. "The negotiating team for the school's has been accurately reflecting the board's wishes. The negotiating team also can't give them any more than what we've set as parameters."

And as far as responding to Reece's statement calling for a bargaining session between the board and the teacher's, Yack admitted what she said "sort of" caught him by surprise.

"I didn't anticipate her making that kind of speech," he said. "I didn't want to respond and have anyone think I was responding for the board."

"Besides, I wasn't sure what kind of a response I should make."

The board will not let Reece's statement go unanswered. Yack said the board would discuss her plan at their workshop meeting held Monday.

"I'm not sure if we'll go into executive session or not," Yack admitted. "Since the news blackout has been lifted we may discuss it in open session, I'm not sure."

The meeting between the board and the PCEA negotiators is just a ploy on the part of the teacher's union to try to soften up the board, according to Yack.

"This is the fourth negotiations I've been involved in," he said. "It seems when we reach loggerheads, the teachers begin trying to work on individual board members, to soften us up or whatever."

"This is nothing more than a negotiating technique they've used in the past. I expect somewhere along the line, pretty soon now probably, they'll start blaming (Superintendent) Mike Hoben."

Omnicom asks to respond early

Canton eyes revoking cable franchise

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Omnicom Cablevision will come back swinging in reaction to Canton Township's starting procedures to revoke its cable television franchise.

That's the word from Peter C. Newell, vice president of Capital Cities Cable Co. - Omnicom's parent company - who said his company will ask the Canton board for an early opportunity to present its rebuttal of charges which were made against it.

Although the township board, by a 4 to 2 vote, set a formal public hearing on Omnicom's status for the third Tuesday in January, Newell said the company will ask to present its rebuttal at the Dec. 14 meeting.

"We have made a decision that we do want to respond to the (Canton Cable) Committee's report prior to the public hearing," Newell said. "We'll request an opportunity to appear before the township board on Dec. 14. They'll see our progress in these areas, that we're on the right track and that the time tables are there.

"Hopefully they'll find that satisfactory," Newell said.

Jim Kronberg, a member of the Cable Committee, told the township board last Tuesday that if Omnicom could answer the charges brought against it satisfactorily, the public hearing could be cancelled.

"Start now," Kronberg suggested, "and if Omnicom comes back in 30 days and all is OK, fine. If it doesn't satisfy the board, then they can come back in another 30 days (the public hearing)."

After the Cable Committee had issued its 19-point indictment of Omnicom's performance and requested the township board begin the revocation proceedings, Township Supervisor Jim Poole suggested that Omnicom be given 30 days

Will Canton action affect other communities?

Will Canton's having started revocation procedures against Omnicom Cablevision affect the other Omnicom franchise communities?

"We would make our decision independently," says Northville Township Supervisor John MacDonald, although he admits he'll be watching the situation in Canton.

MacDonald will discuss the possibility of forming a consortium of Omnicom's communities during a meeting of western Wayne County's township supervisors tomorrow. Similar consortiums have helped communities in Oakland County gain clout in dealing with a common cable company, say public officials there.

Omnicom holds franchises in the cities of Plymouth, Northville, Hamtramack, and Belleville and the townships of Plymouth, Canton and Northville. Canton is its largest franchise area.

Peter C. Newell, vice president of Capital Cities which is Omnicom's parent company, says his company is willing to consider the consortium route.

to respond to the report before the actual revocation process begin. Newell also asked for that.

But Steve Larson, Canton township trustee and also a member of the Cable Committee, objected to that idea.

"Unless you go to revocation, you'll be back in January with very little in your hands talking about going to revocation," Larson said. "I see absolutely no reason to delay the decision 30 days."

Larson, who sparred with Newell during the board meeting Tuesday, said "I'm totally frustrated" after the committee was unable, since April, to come to satisfactory agreement with Omnicom on the quality of service rendered to the township by the cable company or on the company's responses to those concerns.

"They have failed miserably," Larson said of Omnicom.

"They have breached their agreement in almost every single line of the franchise," he charged. "I'm absolutely convinced that we are well within our legal rights to begin the process.

"If they respond favorably, they're not harmed," Larson said.

Trustee Carol Bodenmiller agreed with Larson's and the Cable Committee's position. "Omnicom has had time to respond."

Poole, failing to find board support of allowing Omnicom another 30 days to respond, also suggested amending the motion to begin revocation by bouncing the matter of the township attorney first. That also failed to find support.

"This is a little bit presumptuous," Poole said of setting the public hearing. "I have a problem setting up the public hearing before seeing the responses (from Omnicom to the report)."

Jim Donahue, former Canton treasurer who chaired the cable company selection committee which picked Omnicom, said "calling for revocation does not immediately throw them out." He said the revocation clause of the Canton Cable TV ordinance is a fact-finding step with the public hearing.

Newell said that starting revocation "only creates an adversary relationship."

Newell and Betsy Seeley, Omnicom's vice president and general manager, told the board that many of the report's criticisms have already been corrected.

The report blasted Omnicom for areas from lack of local programming, technical difficulties and failure to meet promises made during the franchise proposal stages.

Following the report's presentation by Larson, Chuck Miller and Kronberg, and the lengthy and often heated discussion of the report, the board voted in favor of Larson's revocation motion.

Favoring the move were: Larson, Bodenmiller, Clerk John Flodin and Trustee Loren Bennett. Opposing it were Poole and Treasurer Maria Sterlini. Trustee Robert Padgett was absent.

3 injured in serious Twp. accidents

BY REBECCA BEACH

Three young men are hospitalized, two in intensive care, from injuries incurred in three different accidents over the weekend.

Michael Scott Lazarz, 23, of Westland, is in stable condition in Henry Ford Hospital after colliding with the back end of a semi early Saturday morning. Witnesses told police that the semi truck was stopped at a red light at the intersection of westbound Ann Arbor Road and I-275 at 1:33 a.m. Lazarz failed to stop and according to police, ran up under the trailer and broke the rear axle. Witnesses say the truck had all its lights and flashers on.

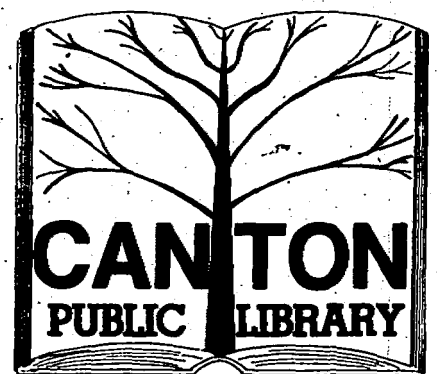

Gregg Warren Ford, 22, of Canton, crumpled a guard rail and sheared shrubs off two feet above the ground after leaving the pavement of Ann Arbor Road at Ann Arbor Trail early Sunday morning. According to police, the car he was driving rolled over at least twice, throwing Ford approximately 35 feet. The car stopped rolling approximately 150 feet from point of impact. A witness who arrived later at the scene stated that Ford had passed him a few minutes earlier at about 70 to 75 miles per hour, police said.

As Ford was transported to St. Mary's Hospital, Christopher Hoben, 22, of Birmingham struck an overpass wall on M-14 at Schoolcraft Road at 3:35 a.m. According to State Police, Hoben was eastbound on M-14, struck the wall, flipped over on its top, slid along the road upside down, hit the median wall, flipped back over onto its wheels and pinned Hoben's legs beneath it.

Both Ford and Hoben are in intensive care at St. Mary's Hospital listed in guarded condition.

Canton treasurer's office uproar continues

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

The latest in a series of squabbles between personnel in the treasurer's office of the Canton Township resulted in legal investigations and further staff alienation.

The latest trouble began Friday morning with the moving of three permanent employees from the treasurer's office to the finance department on the second floor.

According to Dan Durack, Personnel Director for the township, this move came as a result of a board decision over a month ago.

In that decision, Durack said that township Treasurer Maria Sterlini agreed to move her office out of the department as a compromise solution to her deteriorating relationship with her employees; however, she would have directed them through Gorman.

When Sterlini refused to the agreed move last week, Durack said the administration decided to move her employees out of the office instead.

Sterlini denied any knowledge of the board's original agreement and said she knew nothing of their decision to move her employees.

"When I arrived at work Friday morning, the cash registers, desks, tax records and files were all gone. I immediately filed a police report and asked for the return of these items. So far, all that has been returned is the cash register - with no one to operate it."

Sterlini said she has no personnel and had to ask for volunteer assistance as a result of the board's move. She now has two volunteers working for her on an indefinite basis.

"As far as I know, it is illegal to remove records from the treasurer. I'm waiting to see what legal action the Michigan Township Association will take against the board," Sterlini said.

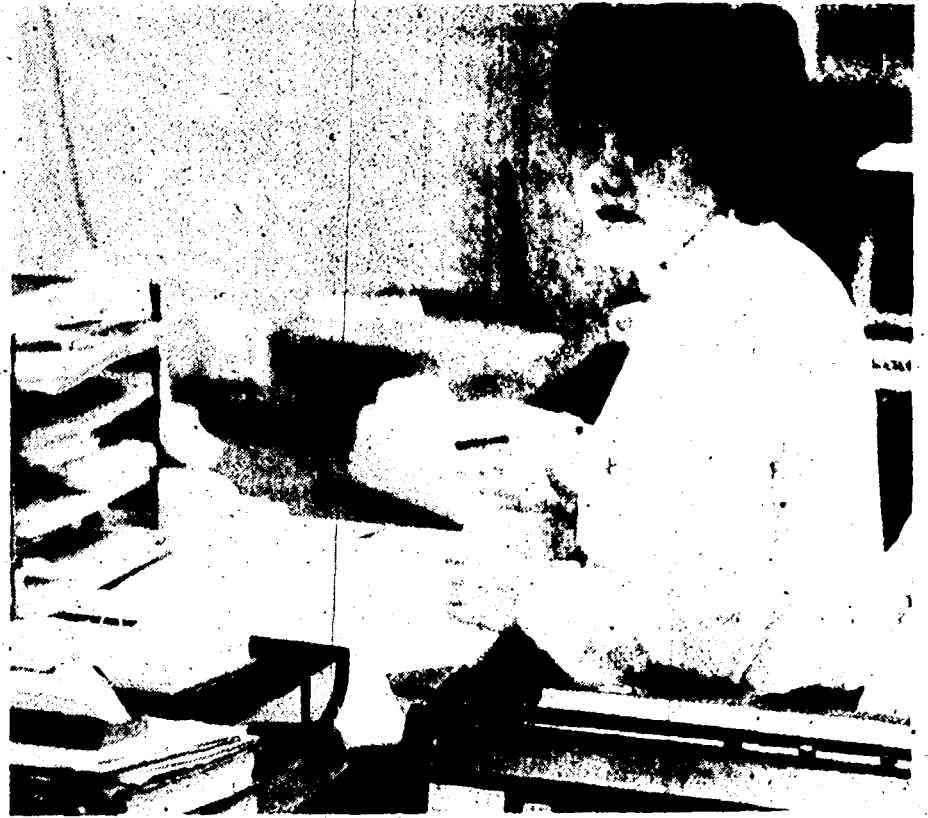

Durack mentioned that the clerical union has filed a legal grievance against Sterlini for employing non-bargaining employees in the office.

Township Supervisor, James Poole, who authorized the move of the employees, said: "She was supposed to move and she didn't, so we just moved the girls, its as simple as that."

At the board meeting last Tuesday, the board voted 4 to 2 to delay a proposal to hire an accounting firm to study the operations in the treasurer's office. Sterlini was criticized by the other board members for the status of employee relations in her department.

Trustee Carol Bodenmiller, urging the report to be shot down, said, "How is it going to help you with the personal relationships with the people you work with?"

Sterlini and Poole voted against postponing the study. Trustee Robert Padgett was absent.

A CASHIER WITHOUT A CASH REGISTER is the predicament Loraine Haack, an employee in the treasurer's office, finds herself after her department left its offices on the first floor of Canton Township Hall for new digs on the second floor. The move is another in a series of skirmishes employees of the treasurer's office have had with the Canton Treasurer, Maria Sterlini, in recent weeks. (Crier photo by Mark Constantine)

Teacher/student fates still pending

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

A decision on the fates of a teacher and a student in two separate acts of violence in the Plymouth-Canton schools have not been reached.

In one incident, a teacher at Central Middle School, Scott Kurtz, 30, allegedly used excessive force in disciplining a student.

The industrial arts instructor was suspended last week by Superintendent John Hoben, and that suspension was continued indefinitely Tuesday, according to Hoben.

"I will have to make a formal recommendation to the board once I have completed by investigation," Hoben said. "There are still a number of individuals who have to be contacted before a decision will be reached."

The schools are also waiting for the filing of formal charges against Kurtz by the student's parents, according to a spokesman for the schools.

Police cannot take any action until they youth, John James, 15, comes in and swears out a complaint, according to Police Chief Carl Berry. As of Tuesday, no warrant had been issued.

No formal complaint was filed in the incident at Canton High School in which a student took a swing at a teacher.

The teacher involved in the scuffle, Tony Lonigro, said he was trying to break up a fight when the youth punched him.

"I'd calmed down one of the kids," he explained. "But when I turned to try to talk to the other one, he told me to get out of the way. When I didn't, he took a swing at me."

"I saw it coming so I ducked, and it only grazed the side of my head."

The next day Lonigro learned the youngster had received only a three-day in-school suspension, and he said he was upset.

It wasn't long before the teachers' union got involved in the situation, and union spokesman Tom Colner made an appearance before the board last Monday calling for a stiffer penalty.

"The principal and I talked to the student's mother," Lonigro said. "And she was very understanding, she said it wasn't the first time he'd been in trouble."

"My feeling about everything now is it's unfortunate he may get suspended for the rest of the semester, but there's a principle involved here."

"You cannot send out a message to the students that's it's all right to take a swing at a teacher. If you take a swing at a cop, he isn't going to think twice about throwing you in jail. The same applies here."

The police report filed in the incident involving Kurtz states that James was grabbed by the hair, knocked to the floor, had his head pounded on the floor, his hair pulled out and his back scrapped by Kurtz when the teacher became upset because James was talking to another student.

Hoben declined to make any further comment on the matter, pending completion of his investigation and the submission of his recommendation to the board.

Farmer's Market help great

EDITOR:

The 1982 Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce Farmer's Market season has come to a close. This year's market was a great success due to the support, enthusiasm and hard work expended by many.

Among those we wish to thank for their continued support are Henry Graper and the City of Plymouth, who helped to make "The Gathering" possible, Ken Vogras and the DPW who were always willing to give that little bit extra, to Carl Berry and the Police Department who said "any way we can help" to Dave Sihbold and his committee whose hours cannot possibly be counted to Terry Bixler, John Hopkins who made sure the Chamber cart was there every week, to Elaine Kirchgatter who organized all the animals, to those who so willingly took the time to share their animals with the community. A special thanks too to The Crier and its staff who willingly responded with an article and photos of all the special events and of course all of you who supported the market regularly by shopping there.

For all of you we are grateful and thank you most sincerely. You are what makes Plymouth a special place to live, work and do business.

Thank you Cards

EDITOR:

The Canton Public Library Board expresses its thanks to their friends, Bob and Linda Card, owners of McDonald's of Canton. A breakfast honoring the library's second birthday was quite lovely and the generous birthday donation made to the library is greatly appreciated. It was an enjoyable morning highlighted by music (including "Happy Birthday to You") performed by a brass ensemble from the Centennial Education Park Band.

We wish to recognize Bob and Linda's many kindnesses during our two year association. This recent gift is one of several donated to the library by Bob and Linda. They are valued friends of the library and the community.

The Library board salutes them on the second anniversary of their service to nCanton and congratulates them on the expansion of their operations to include both their Michigan Avenue restaurant and their newest restaurant on Ford Road.

Again, we say thank you to Bob and Linda Card and their courteous staff for a grand birthday party and generous gift.

Commissioner Scott Dodge about voting in San Diego, Calif. The Dodge garage is the neighborhood's polling place where voters mark their ballots on oversized cardboard boxes amidst dogs, kids and the Dodges' lawn tools.

by W. Edward WENDOVER

With Malice Toward None

If you think you had it bad waiting in line to vote yesterday, you should be in smoggy California.

In a recent missive from Scott Dodge, former Plymouth City Commissioner who is now an attorney with Safeco Title in San Diego, he outlined "how we exercise our voting rights here.

"Basically, we just go downstairs to the garage and vote."

The GARAGE?

"That's because our garage, as do hundreds of others, turns into an instant polling place on voting day. We just break out an American Flag, nail up a poll sign, put together some oversize cardboard boxes for voting booths and we're all set.

"There's a real lack of privacy; dogs and children crawl in the booths under voters' legs, and after dark it's hard to see in the dimly lit areas.

"The ballots are hand-punched and at the end of the day, the neighborhood elders who manned the lines tally up the votes and phone them in. When the call is made, if we put a glass up to the wall, we can be the first to know how our neighborhood went on the important issues of the day," Dodge writes.

Sometimes we forget how smoothly and fairly our election system runs - it takes a story about worse conditions to remind us.

Good reporting job there by our southern California correspondent. But then that's no surprise since Dodge has just been named editor of the San Diego County Bar Association magazine.

Boosters: 'Thanks for Band Day help'

EDITOR:

On Oct. 23, the Michigan High School Marching Band State Championship Competition at the CEP was a stunning success.

Over 6,000 bandpersons and spectators from all over our State as well as Indiana and the Province of Ontario shared this unique educational experience. The responsibility and credit for this show belongs to our whole community and then some!

The following is only a partial list of the many contributors, without whom it would not have happened:

1. Over 60 local businesses and their owners and managers
2. Several Detroit-area firms;
3. Private individuals by the gross;
4. Plymouth-Canton School Administration, staff and student groups;
5. Local governmental units including

Canton and Plymouth Townships and City of Plymouth and their supporting departments;

6. Several local, county and state office holders and candidates;
7. Both of our local papers, The Crier and the Observer and their dedicated and outstanding staffs;
8. Over 25 newspapers statewide;
9. Many radio and T.V. stations and their personnel;
10. And, of course, the students, instructors, directors and parents.

By numerical count over 250 groups and/or individuals helped and that speaks well of our community. It is almost impossible to thank them all. However, the overwhelming effect of their efforts will bear fruit for years to come.

PLYMOUTH-CANTON MUSIC BOOSTERS

Would somebody please explain to me just what the hell is going on?

Trying to sort out the negotiations between the teachers and the schools is confusing to say the least. One side says one thing, the other says another, and each accuses the other of bargaining in bad faith.

If I were an average homeowner in The Plymouth-Canton Community with school-age children, I know I'd want somebody, anybody, to explain to me why the teachers are still working without a contract and threatening job action.

The teachers, on the one hand, categorically deny the major stumbling block in reaching a contract settlement is money. Candi Reece, the chief negotiator for the Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA), insisted contract language is holding up the progress on reaching an accord.

How come I don't buy that?

After all, the teachers opted to lift the news blackout surrounding the negotiations after the schools flatly rejected an offer the union submitted which called for a six percent increase the first year and eight percent increases the remainder of the three-year contract.

That sounds like money is playing a key role in the direction Reece and her cohorts are headed.

If language items are basically what are separating the two sides, why doesn't Reece spell out exactly what the problems are? She could have made a point of talking about the language differences at the news conference the teachers held a week ago. She didn't.

Does that mean the board is blameless in all this? No way.

Board President Tom Yack told me the other night he couldn't see the point of the board meeting with the PCEA negotiations team. His reasoning was that the board has a negotiating team of its own, and they know what the board has in mind as far as a suitable contract.

Baloney! What's the harm in the board, as a whole, sitting down and chewing the fat with the teachers. I don't for a moment believe the session will magically turn the negotiations around. It won't.

What it will do is prove to both sides that each is bargaining in good faith. And, if indeed the teachers have a few questions only the board can answer, they can ask them and get some answers.

What's it going to hurt to sit down and talk? If some good comes from the meeting, great. If not, nothing ventured, nothing gained.

My feeling about the entire situation is the teachers want to see more money in their paychecks every week, who doesn't, and they don't care how they get it.

There's an old expression, you can't get blood from a turnip, and that's exactly the situation the schools are facing at the moment. No one can deny the district is in a shaky financial posture with all the cutbacks that have been coming down from the state and a declining enrollment.

Cut the crap, boys and girls, and get down to the business of settling the contract. Lest we all forget, the object of everybody involved is educating the young of The Plymouth-Canton Community. So how about getting down to it. Any hardship put upon them, because of all this, is unfair and I know I resent it.

Learning is natural at Hulsing School

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

It was just another blustery fall day outside, and, normally, to a group of sixth grade students at Hulsing Elementary School it could have been just another social studies lesson inside.

But today's lesson, on the Eastern Woodland Indian, was different.

The students were actually seeing how the Indians used various trees in daily life. They were able to feel the differences in the roughness of bark types, and they could almost visualize how Indians had copied curled up leaves to invent the first teepees.

In a unique outdoor classroom setting, these students were living their lesson as they learned it.

The classroom - actually a classroom in only the vaguest sense of the imagination - is a five acre woodlot on the Hulsing School property.

Rather than keep students out of this wooded area, the Hulsing staff chose to invite them into it by establishing a nature trail through the area more than a year ago.

Sixth grade teacher and project coordinator for the nature trail, Dave Halls noted how important the woodlot has become to both staff and students alike. "Today with suburbs, shopping centers, and even video games, kids are drawn farther and farther away from their natural environment.

"It's important when teaching about ecology, plants and animals that you're able to show the kids what you're talking about. This woodlot has species representative of a changing hardwood forest as well as more than a dozen different varieties of wildflowers."

The nature trail project, completed in April of 1981, was actually proposed in 1972. However, Halls explained that at that time, no one was interested enough in the project then to get it started.

Several teachers played around with the idea of establishing a trail," he said, "but the question of trail maintenance was a deterrent. There was a debate about who would oversee the system once it was complete, so it was never started."

When Halls joined the staff at Hulsing in 1977, his interest in incorporating the woods into the school curriculum renewed the idea of establishing a nature trail.

A committee was formed, but work still progressed slowly in getting the project started.

Finally in the fall of 1981, Halls contacted Professor William B. Stapp of the School of Natural Resources at the University of Michigan. Stapp is a professor in environmental education, and under his guidance five natural resources students took on the establishment of the trail as a winter project.

In the ensuing months, a trail was cleared and a field manual was written to explain the area and its biota.

The Hulsing students themselves helped to haul and rake out the wood chips which lined the newly denoted route.

Since this original trail was completed, the students have added two new trails of their own - the Trillium Trail and the Red Maple Trail.

Halls said the woods now provides an excellent opportunity to study plants and animals. It allows students to see how things respond to seasonal changes. Best of all, it provides a place for Hulsing students to get in touch with nature.

"Sometimes we just go out and sit on a fallen tree and try to absorb all of the sounds of the forest. It's nice to enjoy the woods - to put down a few thoughts about it, touch it, taste it. We can use all of our senses when we're out there."

Because every object becomes a learning device while in the woods, Halls said that a key to teaching in such a setting is to remain flexible.

"It's not unsupervised learning, but when the students see something they interested in learning about, we usually go with it. We want to develop an interest and appreciation in the natural environment and this is one way we're doing it."

Although the trail is on the Hulsing School property, anyone can use the trail and borrow a copy of the field guide to take along as a reference. One of the goals of the trail was such community involvement.

"It would be great if the community parents would become more involved with what we have out here. Their kids could act as trail guides and show them all that there really is to see. It would be neat to see parents put that much time and interest into this project."

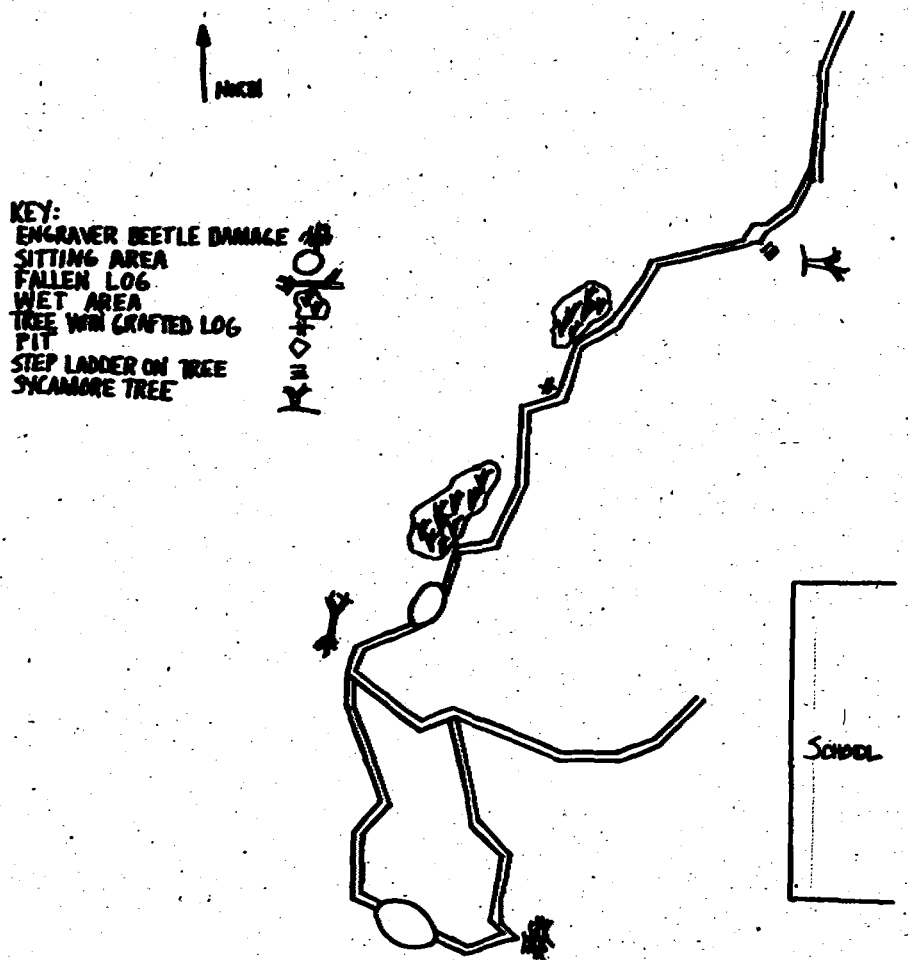

And such involvement does have its advantages.

After all, who can resist spending at least a few hours on a beautiful fall day enjoying the colors, listening to the sounds, and in general, celebrating the season with a little natural appreciation of the world?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Plymouth-Canton schools also offer two other noted nature study areas. Gallimore Elementary School, on Sheldon Road south of Joy, has a nature area and Miller Woods, located on Powell Road east of Ridge Road, provides one of the area's rare Beech-Maple forests.

HULSING SCHOOL students cluster around their teacher, Dave Halls as the kids a quick botany lesson. Halls feels kids don't take a good look at the wildlife around them and has coordinated sessions in Hulsing Woods for his sixth graders and other students. Below, an illustration from the Hulsing Woods field guide shows the layout of the woods trail. Hulsing students have since built two more trails through the area. (Crier photo by Cheryl Eberwein)

On goblins, politicians and moldy pumpkins

BY PHYLLIS REDFERN

Halloween and elections have a lot in common. Once a year ghosts and goblins appear and prepare for their big night of celebrating. Although political candidates don't usually wear costumes, they sometimes hide behind masks.

Pumpkins glow on Halloween much the same as victorious candidates on election night. However, they both usually get their share of carving before hand.

This year there was a concern over trick or treats receiving tainted candy. Voters had to shuffle through the sugared speeches made by politicians, trying to discover what issues some of them really stood behind. While we couldn't put candidates through a metal detector test, at least we had a chance to ask questions and test them on their opinions.

While kids went out trick or treating for goodies, politicians went door to door asking for votes. Hopefully the kids and voters ended up with treats and not tricks.

There is something to be said about growing moldy with age. While pumpkins last less than a week before they get thrown out, some elected officials are around for years. It's true they both start out fresh and inspiring, but only plastic pumpkins and dedicated politicians stay that way.

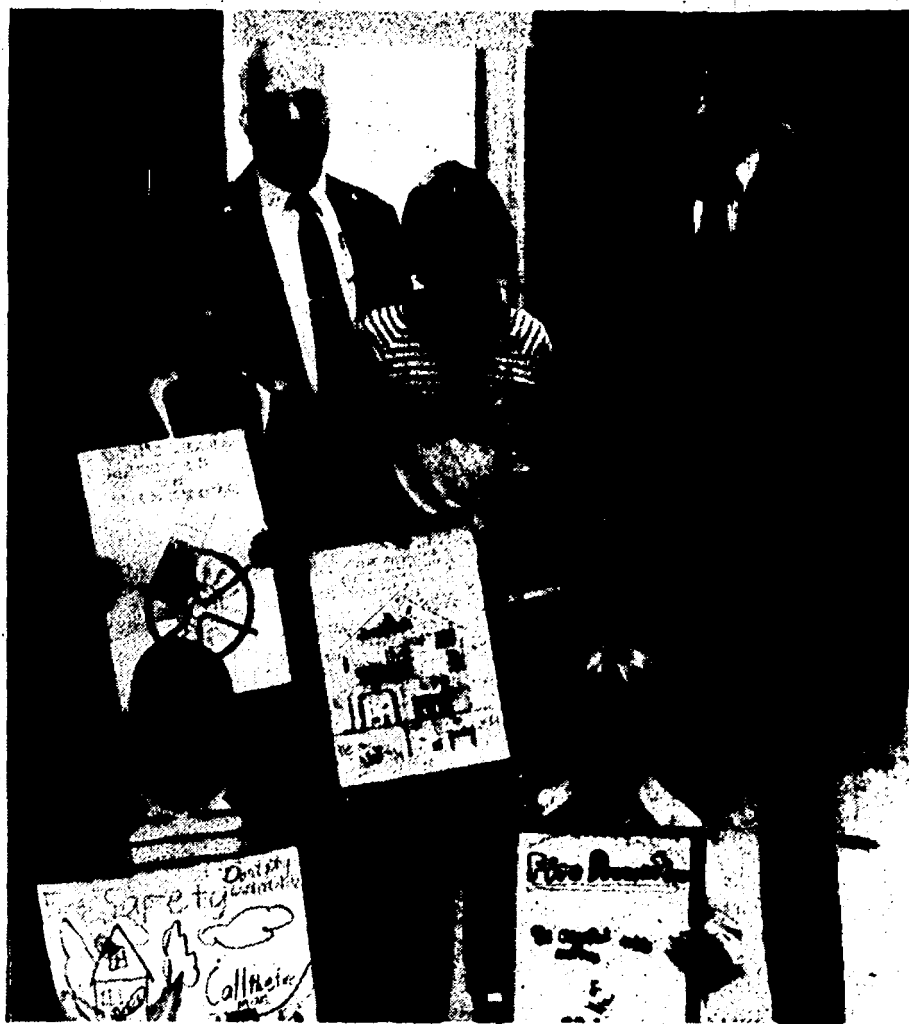

It's ironic the day after the election that withered pumpkins share the same trash can as the torn and rumpled political signs. Both served their purpose, but now it's time to go on and deal with other things.

Congratulations and good luck to the newly elected officials. The majority of our votes were behind you so please don't try any tricks and don't turn into moldy pumpkins.

Seniors gather

BY REBECCA BEACH

It's a cool, crisp Friday afternoon and Plymouth seniors are whomping each other at cards.

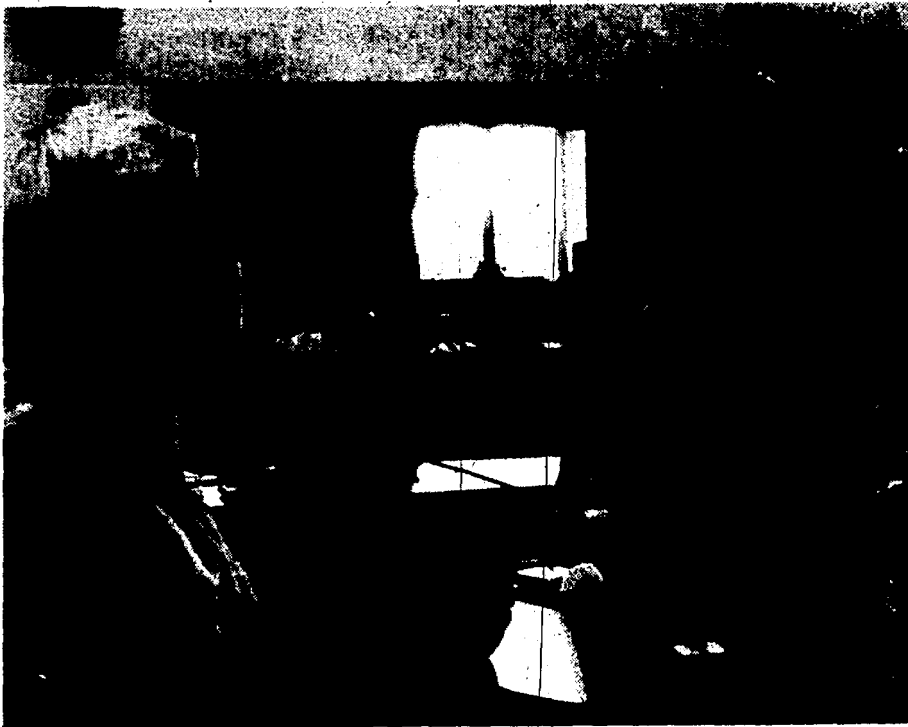

Even though on the outside, the pretty little building glows peacefully in the autumn sun, inside, active seniors from Plymouth and Plymouth Township have gathered for an afternoon of fellowship and card-playing.

Township and City seniors gather at Fellowship Hall, once a church, then a local headquarters for the State Highway Department, for conversation and refreshments several times during the week. Today is a slow card-playing day, only a few of the regulars have come by.

Lately, the otherwise regular pattern of the Fellowship Hall has been ruffled as the Plymouth Township seniors group recently voted to permit city seniors to use the facilities and join in the activities of the hall. "Not many of 'em here today," said Irv Milligan, unofficial tour guide for the day said of the city seniors. "They come, though."

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP senior Phyllis Hewer glances up from her card games to share a word with players at her table.

THE SUN GLOWS through the window of the former church and beams down on Plymouth Township seniors Loren Hopper and Dorothy Brammer as they concentrate on a fresh bridge hand. (Crier photo by Rebecca Beach)

HERE AT HOME, BUILDING TAX BASE AND JOBS

The Skatin' Station opened here a year ago this week providing wholesome recreation, tax base and jobs to our community. Woody Lynch and the people in his organization are to be commended not only for the uniqueness of the project but also for the economic blessing to the community.

Here at the credit union, we take a great deal of pride for having been chosen to handle the financing of the Skatin' Station. It represents your investment of savings dollars in Community Federal.

Our hope is that as you invest your savings, you will think of the credit union where you not only receive high dividend rates, but also put your money to work for the entire community. We congratulate the Skatin' Station on their first anniversary.

Your home town people organization has grown into much more than a bank — it cares.

TO BE!

N.Y. comes to N'ville

Northville will bring a little bit of New York City home next week.

Yes, home, because that's what Michigan is to the members of the cast of the play "Key Exchange", to be presented Nov. 11, 12, 13, 14, 18, 19, 20 and 21 at the Northville Community Center.

In addition to producer Andy Walter, formerly of Northville, other Michiganians include Keith Kallen from Hamtramck and Candelora Versace from Bloomfield Hills.

"When we cast the play, we weren't necessarily looking for Michigan people," said Walter, "but as it turned out, some of the best people were from Michigan. It puts a nice twist to the production, but the bottom line is that first and foremost, the actors cast are good. Maybe in the long run it says something nice about Michigan."

Walter, who is producing the comedy in addition to playing the leading role, is a graduate of Northville High and attended Northern Michigan University for two years where he studied Radio and Television Communications. After spending a few years in the Northville area working for the Wayne County Drain Commission and coaching softball teams, he moved to New York where, for the next three years, he trained at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Since then, he's performed in numerous off-Broadway productions and his hope is that the response to "Key Exchange" will provide the opportunity to return to Northville with other productions.

Book Week starts

The Friends of the Dunning-Hough Library will open Book Week, Nov. 15 through 20, with a distinguished guest.

Dr. Leland Jacobs, one of the foremost experts in the field of education with many children's books to his credit, will speak on the subject of Children's Literature Nov. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall Commission Chambers. Dr. Jacobs has been the editor of many texts and papers on the subject of literature as it relates to curriculum in the schools.

Halloween 1982 scary but safe

Halloween 1982 may have been one of the scariest and one of the safest on record in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

In the wake of a multitude of ghoulish product tamperings, ranging from drugs to popcorn balls, several foreign object detection stations were set up. At Four Seasons Square in downtown Plymouth, "they were lined up out the door," said Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry. "We had a very good turn out," he said.

Four packages of hot dogs were inspected and, after registering on the metal detector, were "dissected and examined, but nothing was found," said Chief Berry.

In Canton, police estimate around 900 bags of candy were inspected at both Canton McDonald's restaurant locations. No foreign objects were found.

As far as the tricks went, "it was one of the quietest Halloweens we've ever had," said Chief Berry. "The soaping of windows and the malicious destruction just didn't happen."

Creative writers honored

Several young students from the Plymouth-Canton School District have been honored recently for their achievements in creative writing. Recipients of a Laureate Prize for Literature in the Primary Division are: Aaron Karvako, Fiegel Elementary School; Gary Minneman, Smith Elementary; Melisa Ballios, Field Elementary. Three students have been awarded a Laureate Prize for Literature in the Intermediate Division. They are: Joshua Worth, Farrand Elementary; Jeremy Woods, Hulsing Elementary; Wade Garard, Smith Elementary. A Laureate Prize for Poetry has been given to Leslie Carmichael from Farrand Elementary.

On February 14 these youngsters will be presented with Laureate Medals by the Plymouth-Canton School Board. Their stories and poems will be published in the second volume of the Laureate Anthology. Copies of this anthology are placed in each elementary library so that all students may read and enjoy these outstanding works of creative writing.

Laureate Prizes for Literature were created two years ago by the Laureate Committee to encourage and recognize excellence in our children's writing.

Will board respond?

Another reason Yack said the board is unwilling to meet with the PCEA negotiating team is the differences separating the two sides revolve around money, and the board has made it clear they have no more to offer the teachers.

"Unless someone has a printing press hidden somewhere in the district, the meeting won't matter," he claimed. "If we could create some dollars somewhere this thing could be settled."

"We will not cut programs simply to fund personnel, and that's what they'd like to see us do."

Reece, meanwhile, insisted money is not the major stumbling block.

"We've said all along we want to bargain and not just on money," she said. "There are many language items that have to be cleared up, too."

"And we don't know where they stand on a lot of these things, that's why I want to meet with them."

No new negotiating sessions between the schools and teachers have been set up, and it appears it'll be awhile before the two sides sit down and talk again, according to Reece.

"We are in no hurry to crawl back to them and ask them to set up a bargaining session."

With its destiny in its own hands, Salem falters

A dream came crashing down Saturday on a wind-swept field in Farmington. And it's ironic that the Salem football team after so many weeks with its destiny in someone else's hands let an opportunity to earn a berth in the state Class A playoffs slip from its grasp when all the Rocks had to do was defeat Harrison.

Coach Tom Moshimer and his team awoke Saturday morning to find the obstacles blocking the Rock's path into the playoffs, Edsel Ford and Monroe, both had lost.

Moshimer admitted to me prior to the Harrison game he figured Edsel Ford

Offsides

with Mark Constantine would lose at least once, and now with a showdown with Fordson looming on the horizon this week, he said it's very possible Edsel Ford will drop another one.

He rubbed his hands together in glee near midfield while his team warmed up to take on Harrison, contemplating his club's direct route into post-season play.

What had once been a slim hope, at best, at making a run at the Class A title, suddenly was a distinct possibility. Only one thing went wrong, the Rocks dropped a close decision to a poised, well-disciplined Harrison contingent.

But take heart Salem supporters, all is not lost yet for the Rocks. That slim hope I talked about earlier has not vanished, it's just taken another shape.

There is still a chance Moshimer's men can qualify for the state playoffs. It won't be easy and, once again, the situation is out of the direct control of the Rocks, but stranger things have happened in the world of athletics.

First, the winner of the Edsel Ford-Fordson clash should earn a ticket into the playoff sweepstakes. But the second

Harrison hauls in WLAAA crown

The final whistle shot through Dave Slavin like an arrow.

He slumped to the ground and buried his face in his hands, and no amount of encouragement from his coaches or teammates could persuade the standout senior linebacker to get up for several minutes.

He'd given it all he had and it wasn't good enough to prevent Farmington Harrison from edging Salem, 14-7, in the Western-Lakes Activities Association championship game.

The loss also probably put an end to any hopes the Rocks had of earning a berth in the state Class A playoffs. (See today's Offsides column for more on Salem's post-season chances.)

About all the showdown Saturday in Farmington netted the Rocks were plenty of bruises, but then Harrison didn't come out of the game unscathed.

The hard-hitting affair kept the large crowd on the edge of their seats from start to finish. It was tight, close and exciting. In other words, the confrontation had all the fans could possibly want out of the game and more.

"I'm proud of our kids," Salem coach Tom Moshimer insisted. "We looked at

It's off to St. Louis for touch football contingent

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

So who needs the National Football League anyway. Certainly not Kurt Yockey and his Maxwell Video teammates. Yockey and company play touch football in a six-team league in Plymouth.

Maxwell captured the league title last year, but were not as fortunate this time around. Yockey's troops finished the regular season deadlocked with Canton Sports-Standard Paper for first place. And in a playoff game for the championship, Standard Paper prevailed.

Despite the loss, Yockey and his cohorts will not be home gobbling turkey come Thanksgiving. Instead, the Maxwell contingent will be in St. Louis taking part in a national touch football tournament sponsored by Anheuser-Busch.

Maxwell Video invited to participate in national event

Sixty-four of the finest seven-man touch football units in the country will be on hand in St. Louis competing for the national crown in the double-elimination affair.

So how did a second place squad in a local league get invited to the prestigious national event?

"We beat a team that placed in the top 25 in last year's nationals, Standard Paper," Yockey said. "We also went on to the state tourney last year and got beat in the quarterfinals."

"That showing in the state tournament last year got us an invitation to last year's tournament in St. Louis. And last year, we came in tied for 25th so taking everything into consideration they invited us again."

The road to the nationals began last spring for the Maxwell Video club. They began working out a couple of times a week in preparation for the tournament late in April in Cincinnati, Yockey said.

Then it was on to Toronto in August for another event. The season got underway late in September, and with the completion of the affair in St. Louis following Thanksgiving, it makes for a long gridiron campaign, Yockey admitted.

"It's a good compromise between not playing at all and trying to play in a tackle league," he surmised. "Most of the guys on our team are not real big, but they almost all played some in high school.

"We play hard but not reckless. Three of us, myself included, are lawyers and two or three are CPA's, so we have to get up in the morning."

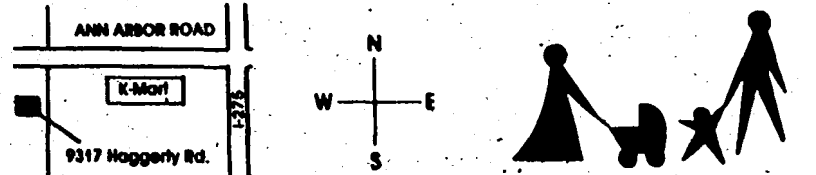

The basic rules of touch football are simple: The ballcarrier is downed when a defender gets both hands on him anywhere between the knees and shoulders. There is blocking but not below the waist.

First down lines are set up on the 20 and 40-yard lines, and whenever a team crosses one they get a first down.

Canton gridders drop heartbreaker to Central

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Any loss is tough to take, but Canton football coach Dick Barr must be bitterly disappointed after watching his Chiefs drop a 13-7 heartbreaker to Walled Lake Central Friday night.

"I really thought we'd win," Barr confessed afterwards. "We were happy with our rushing tonight, but our passing was off. If we could ever get them both going at the same time we'd really do something."

The loss was the Chiefs fifth in eight outings, and put an end to any hopes Barr's troops had of finishing the season at .500 or above.

On Friday Canton goes after victory number four at the expense of the Belleville Tigers. Belleville comes into the game, which will be played at the Centennial Education Park (CEP) field, with a string of five consecutive setbacks.

"Don't let their record fool you, Barr insisted. "They are a good team. They won their first three games before meeting up with the likes of Edsel Ford, Trenton and Monroe."

A problem the Chiefs have encountered in past games cropped up again Friday night. The Vikings scored both their touchdowns on their first possessions of each half, which left Barr shaking his head.

"I don't know what it is, but it has happened to us too many times this year not to realize it's a problem," he said disgustedly. "We're going to work on it for next year that's for sure."

Central completed its march straight down the field following the opening kick off with a 15-yard pass from Dave Menard to Steve Thiebert good for a touchdown.

It looked like a repeat performance the next time the Vikings got their hands on the ball, but a fine interception by the Chiefs' Chuck Davis stopped short the Central drive.

Canton quarterback Pat Murphy led his team towards what looked like a possible tying touchdown midway through the second stanza. The Chiefs were doing most of the damage on the ground when Barr switched gears and tried to pass it in. The move backfired.

Murphy missed a pair of receivers on first and third downs, and Canton was forced to punt the ball away.

The second half got underway with Canton trailing, 7-0, and in possession of the ball. After three downs, the Chiefs booted it away to Central and the Vikings made their way straight down the field back into the Canton end zone.

It wasn't until early in the final frame that the Chiefs were finally able to cross the Viking goal line. Davis capped a long Canton drive by out-racing a trio of Central defenders into the corner of the end zone.

A break was in order at that point if the Chiefs expected to win, and the Vikings obliged. A poor snap from center sent the Central punter scrambling for the ball, and before he could kick it away the chiefs' Matt Santilli and a couple of teammates hauled him down to the ground deep in the Viking end.

Three plays later the Chiefs were knocking on the Viking end zone, threatening to tie up the game. And since Central had its PAT following its second touchdown blocked by the Chiefs' Mike Perrot, an extra point following a Canton touchdown would have given the home side the victory.

But it was not to be. Central's coach called a time-out as the Chiefs were rolling over his team, and the move paid off. Two plays later Murphy coughed up the ball and the Vikings had the ball and the game.

In a switch from most of the Chiefs other games, the running corps, led by Dave Szary's 47 yards on six carries, picked up a total of 175 yards along the ground, while only 11 via the airways.

Simons just misses state finals

BY JOE SLEZAK

Almost.

That's what Salem cross country runner Shelly Simons must be thinking. Simons finished 24th at the regionals last Saturday, just missing the state finals.

The girls team finished eighth out of 23 teams.

Theresa Donnelly was only two paces behind Simons in 26th. Erica Bashor was only a minute and two seconds behind Donnelly, but she came in 63rd. Michelle Donnelly was 75th, Pam 79th and Julie Tortora 87th.

"We're really happy with their performance," said Rock coach Tom Williams.

The boys squad was 14th. Frank Broanan led the way in 25th for Salem. Skip Wittaker was second for the Rocks, but 40th overall.

Scott Steiner led the rest of the Rocks in 53rd. Mike Gannon finished in 115th, Tony Atwell in 118th and Eric Pedersen finished out the pack in 128th.

The competition was so tough. We had a good season," said Williams.

Williams also admitted he is looking forward to the future with many underclassmen.

Junior football winds down

Sunday was the season-ending showdown between the Plymouth-Canton Lions and the Plymouth-Canton Steelers.

And when all was said and done, the Steeler varsity stretched their record to 7-0 by beating the Lions, 7-0.

Kirk Rentz capped a 70 yard drive by running 15 yards for the score. Joe Jouppi's extra point was good, insuring the win.

The JV game went the other way. The Lions came out on top, 18-6. Signal caller Rick Genrich scored all three touchdowns in the win. He ran 10, 17 and 35 yards.

The frosh battled to a scoreless tie.

the films this morning (Sunday) and we played the best game we've palyed this season.

"It just wasn't good enough on this particular day."

Moshimer's men will have to put the Harrison defeat out of their minds this week as the Rocks prepare to take on Redford Union. Kick off will be at 7:30 p.m. on the Panthers' field.

The Rocks would have liked to have forgotten about Hawk quarterback Ken Kish Saturday. The senior signal-caller repeatedly converted third down plays into first downs with his pin-point passing.

"He came up with the big play when he had to," Moshimer admitted. "He put the ball right on the money, too. We might have made a few mistakes as far as letting their receivers off the line of scrimmage too easily, but he (Kish) certainly was the difference."

Kish helped the Rocks out early in the game by tossing an interception. The Hawks were marching down the field towards what looked like the first score of the game when Salem's Matt Broderick stepped in front of Kish's pass.

The Rocks took over near midfield and proceeded to power their way down the field into the Hawk end zone. Quarterback Dave Haut covered the final nine yards for the score.

The lead was shortlived, however, because Harrison took the ensuing kick off and made its way across the Salem goal line in short order. Kish knotted the score when he found split end Gordie Dawson behind the Rock defenders. The TD pass covered 12 yards.

Neither side mounted any threats throughout the second and third quarters. But as the final frame got underway, the Hawks launched what turned out to be the winning touchdown drive.

Spearheading the Harrison surge was sophomore John Miller. The lean, powerful halfback galloped 50 yards in consecutive plays to set up the Hawks deep in Rock territory.

Kish didn't waste the opportunity. With 11:02 left in the game Kish completed a 13-yard pass to Rick Main who had beaten a Rock defender to the corner of the end zone, and the Hawks then held on to the win.

Although Moshimer refused to alibi for his team's defeat, the loss of starting linemen Keith Urbin and Tom Walkley before the game had to hurt the Rocks.

"What it did is it meant we weren't able to rest a few of our players like we normally do," Moshimer noted. "But I'm not going to use that as an excuse. I thought the kids who filled in did just as good a job as the two who were out would have."

A pair of players Moshimer did signal out for praise were seniors Dave Houle and Ron Calhoun. "They both had outstanding games. And maybe I made a mistake by not going to Houle more, but they were putting their bigger men to his side and double covering him."

Offsides: Rock dream up in smoke spot in Region II is very much up for grabs.

The teams vying for that final spot include Monroe, Ypsilanti and Salem. The unusual aspect of all this is the top five units in Region II all have one loss, and more than likely both the clubs that make it into the playoffs from Region II will have one defeat.

The scenario for Salem to qualify for post-season play goes something like this, and even then it's not a sure bet: Monroe must lose to Trenton Friday night, Ypsilanti also has to go down to defeat that same night and the Rocks must dispose of Redford Union.

Say, for example, Monroe falls to Trenton which, by the way, isn't too bad a bet for you bettors out there, and Ypsilanti and Salem both triumph.

Nobody knows for sure, but in that case, more than likely Ypsi will just nose out the Rocks for the final spot. Only the final computer rankings will tell the tale.

So much for what might be. What already happened was one of the best prep football games I've seen in a long time. Both Salem and Harrison threw their best at each other, and in the end the better squad came out on top. Even the officials had a good game.

Rock cagers stay on a roll

BY JOE SLEZAK

Defense, defense, defense. The Salem girls basketball team used a brilliant defensive effort to beat Livonia Bentley last Tuesday, 38-33.

The win evened the season series at one game each. The Bulldogs won the first battle at Salem, and the Rocks turned the tide in Bentley territory.

"I think the defense is really doing a great job. Each player chipped in," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "Jacque Merrifield did a super job versus Kim Archer defensively."

Archer, Bentley's big gun, was held to 14 points on the evening.

Ann Glomski led Salem with 16 points, while Merrifield had 10.

Salem had a narrow, 17-15, lead at halftime. Ball control, according to Blohm, was a key to the victory.

"We forced Bentley into using the clock," he insisted.

The Rocks didn't have much breathing room midway through the second half, leading 27-23.

"Great balance" lifted the Rocks record to 15-1 on Thursday as they beat Walled Lake Central, 35-26.

The defense, once again, shone through for the blue and white.

"It was a hard game for us coming off a victory over Bentley," said Blohm.

The key was in the third quarter. Salem outscored Central, 14-6, to take control of the game. Merrifield, Pam McBride and Dawn Johnson each tallied 10 points for Salem.

Patty Fitzgerald led Central with 10 points.

"This may be best defensive team in the school's history," said Blohm.

Salem was down at the half by a score of 16-15, but came back. They led at the end of the third quarter, 29-22.

On Tuesday last week, Canton had a 15 point lead, but fell to Farmington Harrison, 60-57.

"We relaxed a lot. We had a good first quarter," said Canton Coach Phyllis Cunningham.

Harrison had to play the last 20 seconds shorthanded as all of their bench either fouled out or were injured.

Canton outscored Harrison, 18-4, in the first quarter. The Chiefs had a 34-20 halftime lead, but fell behind at the end of the third stanza, 46-42.

Sue Gerke led Canton with 21 points. Missy Aiken scored 13 points and Lou Ann Hamblin added 10.

Alice Short led Harrison and took game high scoring honors with 22 points.

Thursday, the Chiefs lost to Walled Lake Western, 64-48.

"They shot the lights out," admitted Cunningham.

A total of 24 turnovers led to the Canton downfall.

Aiken and Polly Roberts led Canton with nine points each. Frances Cullen led the Warriors with 25 points. Val Hall, only a sophomore, had 13, while Carey Artley chalked up 12.

Tomorrow starts the Western-Lakes playoffs. The Chiefs will be at Walled Lake Central, while Salem will host Livonia Churchill.

Maxwell Video invited to national tournament

Sometimes clubs are faced with first and two's and sometimes it's first and 20.

Yockey directs the Maxwell unit. He and his brother, Mike, have been involved in touch football for seven years, and have watched the popularity of the game grow each year.

"We had 35 guys show up and try out for the team," Yockey noted. "Most heard of us through word of mouth, and many wanted to join after our recent success."

Unlike most touch football teams, the Maxwell Video club doesn't use the two halfbacks set up to either side of the quarterback as only blockers.

"We're probably the only team in the country that runs an option offense," Yockey said with a smile. "We'll snap the ball to one side or the other and the quarterback, me, starts that way."

"If a rusher gets to me before I can get off a pass, I pitch it back to a trailing halfback, usually my brother Mike, who can either throw a pass or run."

Yockey's main receiver is 6-4, 190-lb Dave Nelson. The speedy Nelson played hockey in college, but has adapted to football very well, according to Yockey.

Another of the Maxwell Video stalwarts is Ron Comiglia. He played football for the University of California-Berkley, and was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings.

"He didn't make the team, but he's still quite an athlete," Yockey admitted.

The Maxwell in Maxwell Video, Bob Maxwell, handles the kicking chores. The strong-legged owner tried out with the Denver Broncos this fall, but couldn't quite make the grade.

Yockey also relies on the likes of Mike Jones, Tom Funke, Ken Lis and Mark Domen to lead the Maxwell squad to victory.

The trip to St. Louis last year was financed by the team itself. Between the $250 entry fee and the money it cost Yockey's troops to travel to Missouri and find accommodations once there, the 20-man group shelled out in the neighborhood of $1,250, Yockey guessed.

"This year we are trying to find someone to sponsor us," he admitted. "Even if we don't find somebody, though, we're still going, but we think it would be nice if someone would sponsor us."

Anyone who might want to contribute to the Maxwell Video team's trip to the nationals in St. Louis may call Yockey at 255-4720.
