Schools, PCEA eye 2-year pact

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Both the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and the teachers' union are optimistic that the current contract talks -- originally set to discuss one year -- may turn to investigating a two-year pact.

"I'm encouraged by the word that they're (the schools) going to look at a potential two-year agreement," said Tom Cotner, chief negotiator for the Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA).

Norm Kee, the schools' assistant superintendent for personnel, said "it looks like it could happen."

"We're looking at whether it's possible to go to a two-year thing," he said.

It was during an informal session on July 27 with Michigan Employment Relations Commission Mediator Ed Phillips (who was credited with bringing the two sides together during their contract dispute last year) that the idea of looking for a two-year agreement was first suggested. The current two-year pact, approved last year, called for a re-opening of talks on the school calendar and economic issues for the 1983-84 school year.

Kee discussed the idea of going for a two-year agreement with the school board last Monday night and is currently researching information needed for that bargaining stance, he said.

The next formal session between the two sides is set for Aug. 24 and 25 -- but Kee said they could meet earlier.

Thus far, the teachers' union and the schools have tentatively agreed on the school calendar for the 1983-84 school year. Changes there have added a "float" day for in-service training to the teachers' work year and replaced several four-day weekends with a one-week "mid winter" break in February.

Cotner, however, cautioned that not everything is optimistic. "I'm discouraged by the apparent difference in the table positions," he explained.

The PCEA has rented an office for a "crisis center" on Main Street and will open a bank of telephones there (459-8101) as of this Monday, he said.

Will suit stop ersatz Tonquish yacht race?

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

You may think the idea of a Tonquish Creek Yacht Race on dry land (scheduled for Saturday) is funny, but the 500 or so members of the REAL Tonquish Creek Yacht Club are not laughing very hard.

In fact, club commodore and founder Robert Delaney said the membership is considering a suit to stop Saturday's race or have it renamed at least.

Delaney said the club members take themselves seriously--despite "serious" bylaws such as no club member can own a seaworthy craft. The Chamber of Commerce's Saturday event will trivialize the club and will be frivolous, he said.

And, horror of horror, Delaney said the club's image will be commercialized with the Chamber's planned "Shipwreck Sales" and "Fisherman's Wharf".

"How would they like it if I started using the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce - Rotary - whatever to promote the legal profession, specifically to promote old lawyers such as myself?" Delaney asked.

Cantonite's murder tied to Detroit temple dispute

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

A Canton Township man became the victim of a grizzly murder which occurred Monday evening in Canton. Canton Police later traced leads from the murder to an Islamic temple in Detroit where two more dead men were found.

According to police statements, the murder took place at approximately 9:40 p.m. on Courtland Street in Canton. Police responding to a call of a shoot-out found Muzaffar Ahmad, 36, dead in the foyer of his home. Ahmad had multiple gunshot wounds to the head and wrist.

Ahmad was an anesthesiologist at Wayne County General Hospital.

Police said several family members, present in the home at the time of the slaying, told them a dispute between Ahmad and the murder suspect arose over religious beliefs. Ahmad was the secretary of an Islamic religious sect.

Witnesses inside the home at the time of the incident said the suspect suddenly produced a gun, shot Ahmad several times and then fled the scene with another suspect in a Pontiac. Police said at least five rounds of gunfire were shot in the house and at Ahmad.

One 10 year old boy was able to provide police with the license plate number of the murder suspects' car. All area police departments were notified of the number and a vehicle description.

Police traced the license plate number on the car through their lein system to a home in Detroit. Upon arriving there, they discovered the license plate had been switched. Through further investigation, Canton police discovered that the license plates on the vehicle had been switched at least twice. Police said the suspects appeared to be professional (criminals) by the way they handled the crime.

Canton police traced the suspects' car to an Islamic temple located at Belton and Wyoming Streets in Detroit. The temple had been firebombed at approximately 1 a.m. and two suspects were found dead inside the temple. According to the police, the pair had died of smoke inhalation as a result of the attack. Police have tentatively identified the deceased pair as William A. Cain, 27, of Akron, OH, and Calvin Stanley Jones, 30, of Detroit.

Canton Police Chief Jerry Cox said the murder suspects' car was found a block away from the temple. The two fire victims inside had automatic revolvers matching the description of the one used to kill Ahmad. Cox said police also found a jogging suit and hat in the suspects' car matching the description of those worn by Ahmad's murderer.

Cox said it appears that Cain and Jones went into the temple, poured a flammable liquid on the floor and ignited the temple. Cox said Cain and Jones entered the temple through the front door and may have expected to exit through the back. The back door was barred, however, and the pair was unable to escape the flaming structure.

Detroit arson and homicide detectives were on the scene when the Canton Police arrived.

Cox said the FBI will also make a preliminary investigation into the case because of its nature.

"We don't know if this murder is an isolated incident or if it was organized

Fire Dept sponsoring Fall Fest water fight

Arm yourselves... with raincoats, buckets and plenty of ambition.

The Plymouth Fire Department is again sponsoring their Fall Festival waterball fight and Muster. The Muster includes a bucket brigade and pumping contest, a hose cart race and an antique fire truck and fire apparatus parade and display.

In anticipation of the eager crowds who will join in these water-logged events, the Fall Festival Board has moved the location of the fire department specialties to Main Street between Church and Fralick streets (in front of City Hall).

Captain Al Matthews of the department has challenged community groups to compete with against firemen in the waterball contest. Groups should consist of at least six people. Heats will last three minutes. Both men and women are encouraged to form teams.

If the idea of a cool afternoon competition sounds intriguing, practice sessions for the waterball competition will be held Aug. 13, 20 and 27 at 10 a.m. Register early with Matthews to take advantage of practice sessions for the event.

The fire department is also planning several new events for children. A children's bucket brigade and pumping contest will be sponsored and certificates will be awarded in different categories.

Copies of the waterball fight rules and registration forms may be obtained through Matthews at the Plymouth Fire Department. Call 453-1234, ext. 54 for further details.

THE PLYMOUTH SYMPHONY LEAGUE will again sponsor their Fall Festival Antique Mart at the Cultural Center this year. Over 21 antique dealers from around the state will offer their collectables at the three day sale which runs Sept. 9, 10, and 11. Plymouth, 1883 style

Can you imagine what The Plymouth-Community may have looked like 100 years ago?

If so, then your vision may become the inspiration for a window display at this year's Fall Festival celebration.

"Plymouth - 100 Years Ago - 1883" is the theme for the 1983 Fall Festival window display competition. Service clubs, organizations and community groups are invited to create window displays which highlight the family, industry, farming, fashion, furniture, the arts, entertainment or technology in Plymouth in 1883.

Groups who participate in the competition will be competing for "Best Window" honors.

Pat Carne, chairman of the theme committee encourages interested groups to start planning their windows now. The Historical Museum has many ideas for possible window displays. Groups should contact a merchant for a window space and then begin planning their entry. For further information on the window competition, call Carne at 459-1170.

Matney draws 2 years for probation violation

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

It was the end of the road for William Glenn Matney.

At least for a year or two.

Matney, charged with negligent homicide in June and with drunk driving, driving on a suspended license and a probation violation in July, was sentenced to serve one to two years in a Michigan Correctional Institution by Judge Charles Kaufman of Wayne County Circuit Court Aug. 1.

The sentence came as a result of Matney's probation violation. Matney will stand trial in 35th District Court tomorrow for the drunk driving and suspended license charge.

Matney pled guilty to negligent homicide in the death of Canton resident Madonna Tharp at a June 7 circuit court hearing. He was sentenced by Kaufman to serve 117 days in the Detroit House of Corrections, pay court fines and was placed on five years probation for the Dec. 17 accident which left Tharp, dead at the intersection of Sheldon and Cherry Hill roads.

Matney was released the day of sentence because he had already served 117 days while awaiting the trial. He was arrested again July 10 by a Wayne County Sheriff's deputy for drunk driving and driving on a suspended license. He was later charged with a probation violation as well.

Matney stood mute before Judge Dunbar Davis last week at his 35th District Court hearing for the drunk driving and suspended license charge. Davis entered a plea of not guilty in both charges for Matney. He will be appointed a court lawyer and will undergo a district trial tomorrow.

"The trial will go on even though Matney has received a sentence from Judge Kaufman," Davis said. "There will be no point in putting him (Matney) on probation, and there is no reason to fine him because he has no money.

"Any jail sentence which this court hands down will have to be concurrent with the circuit court sentence," Davis continued, "so the sentence will be purely academic in nature."

Davis said Matney's license will be indefinitely suspended.

Court officials at Wayne County Circuit Court said Matney has civil litigation in the form of a lawsuit filed against him for his involvement in the Tharp accident.

Matney has an extensive record of alcohol-related traffic violations. His July 10th arrest was his fourth alcohol traffic violation.

1st school day is 1/2

Students in the Plymouth-Canton district head back to school for half-a-day Tuesday, Aug. 30, marking the start of the 1983-84 school year.

Classes begin in earnest the next day, Aug. 31, with the first full day of school for the 16,000-plus students in the district.

Teachers report back from the summer vacation on Monday, Aug. 29, to get ready for the students who will show up in their classrooms the 30th.

Centennial Education Park (CEP) students who couldn't pick up their class schedule at their regular time can get a list of their classes at a make-up session slated for Aug. 29.

Students across the district can look forward to their first vacation, Monday, Sept. 5, when Labor Day will be celebrated across the country.

The next break isn't until Thanksgiving, Nov. 24-25. The Christmas vacation will begin Dec. 22 and end on Jan. 3.

For those planning way ahead, the Easter break starts April 20 and concludes April 19. And the final day for students in kindergarten through 11th grade is June 14.

Canton youth killed in 2nd car-toy accident in month

A nine-year-old Canton boy died of injuries he sustained Aug. 2 when the skateboard he was riding on was hit by a car.

Canton rescue personnel said Danny Prince, of Carriage Hills Drive was sitting on the skateboard when a neighbor backed out of his driveway and struck the boy. Danny, physically handicapped with polio, used the skateboard to move himself around.

According to Canton fire reports, Danny suffered injuries to the back, chest and abdomen in the accident. He was transferred to Oakwood Canton Center at approximately 2:30 p.m. and was later transferred to University Hospital in Ann Arbor where he died.

Danny is the second Canton child to be fatally struck by a car while sitting on a low-riding toy in the past month.

Jeremy Mullens of Mott Road died July 8 when the big wheel tricycle he was riding was struck by a car. Police said Jeremy shot out from between two cars and into the street in the accident.

Graveside funeral services for Danny were held Aug. 5 at Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens. Memorial services were held Aug. 7 at Geneva United Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Kenneth F. Gruebel officiating at both services.

Danny is survived by his parents Alan and Judith Prince; brothers and sisters, Dennis, Hahn, Alan, Jr., Jo Anna, Judi Ann, Kathleen, Robert, Thomas, Connie, Rebecca, John, Jennifer and Gail; grandparents, Mrs. Dorothy Prince of Ypsilanti and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin F. Sheppard Sr. of South Lyon.

Danny was affiliated with the Easter Seal Society of Wayne County and the Geneva United Presbyterian Church.

Stanley assailant found

A Rochester man found that crime does not pay — especially when that crime is roughing up "Stanley."

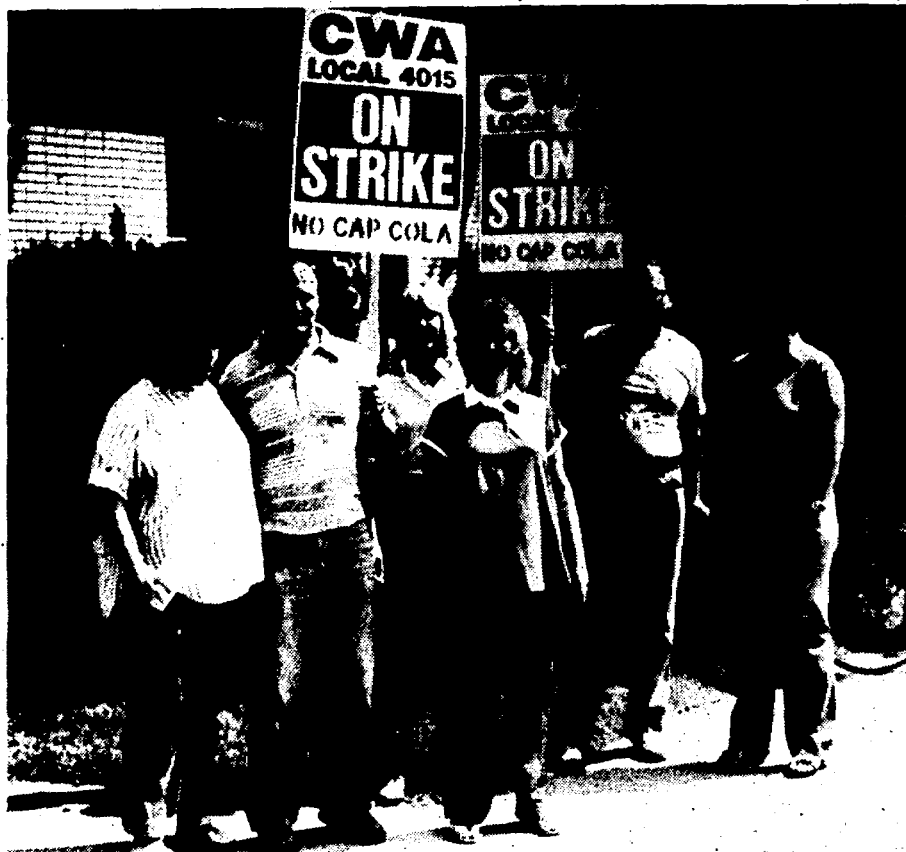

You may or may not be acquainted with Stanley, known also by his various aliases: the one-armed bandit and "that thing in Central Parking Lot."

Last week, the City of Plymouth DPW (one of the few champions of the unpopular Stanley) and the Plymouth Police tracked down William P. Pfaff of Acre Drive in Rochester. Pfaff received a letter asking him if he knew anything about the damage to the parking lot's automatic coin box and gate.

Pfaff dutifully called the Plymouth Police and confessed his part in the "Stanley Incident." According to the report filed, Pfaff was leaving the parking lot at 11:30 a.m. on July 26 when the vehicle in front of him attempted to raise the exit (Stanley's arm) but the machine jammed.

That person backed away, Pfaff told police, and Pfaff drove his 1976 Chevy up to Stanley, dutifully deposited his quarter, and nothing happened. Pfaff then attempted to back away and in doing so struck the coin and token boxes, damaging both.

In a letter to the DPW, Pfaff apologized and said his insurance would cover the cost of repaying the damages.

School board goals being revised

BY PATTI EDDINGTON

It's an impressive effort even if it isn't necessarily complete.

A hefty 22-page list of goals for the coming school year discussed by the Plymouth-Canton school board last week "is not carved in stone," School Administrative Assistant Richard Egli said.

The lengthy list of goals and objectives, which include establishing microcomputer mini-labs in the middle schools and raising the math, reading and language art skills of students, has yet to receive final approval, he said.

"The goals are not officially adopted yet. They are being reworked and will come back to the board at a later date," he said. "They may or they may not be the final objectives."

Egli said the goal making process is something the board does prior to each school year. Throughout the year progress toward achieving the goals is discussed, he added.

The top priority on the board's list of four basic objectives for the 1983-1984 school year is to better the overall curriculum in the middle school, in high school English and in K-12 math and science.

Egli said the board is also looking at "outcome based schooling", a process which would allow a third-grade student with a fifth-grade proficiency in math to study fifth grade mathematics.

Another of the suggested basic objectives is to increase communication between the administration and staff, parents, students and the public.

Egli said board president Glenn Schroeder has said the administration could do a better job of communication. He added that only about 30 percent of area residents have children attending Plymouth-Canton schools. The rest of the public may not have much interest or know much about what the school system is doing, he added.

"I think it is important, when you have a good system, to tell everyone about it," Egli said.

Other basic objectives on the proposed list are "establishing a financial control system to apprise board members, on a continuing basis, of the financial status of the district" and "evaluate on a continuing basis administrative personnel responsible for carrying out board objectives."

Egli said he is not certain when the revised list of goals and objectives will be returned to the board for a vote on approval. Board secretary Roland Thomas is currently reviewing the list and making any necessary changes, he said.

In addition to the basic proposals, the goals also include the following:

Continue the growth and expansion of the district's talented and gifted program and explore the feasibility of implementing one permanent location for the program.

Implement a computerized management system for the district's special education programs and services.

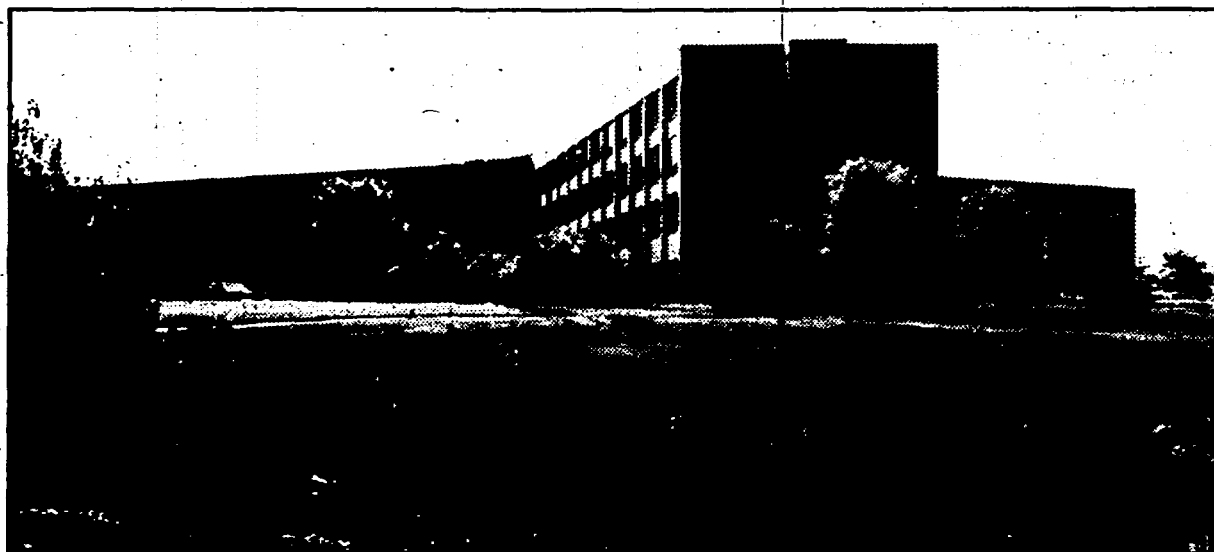

Develop a district-wide roof replacement schedule.

Develop a computerized routing system to meet student transportation needs.

Expand use of the school cable television channel, channel 11, to an average of three hours per week during the school year.

Design and conduct a series of workshops for the teaching staff which focus on essential skills of instruction and clinical supervision.

Fife & Drum Corps back from trip out East

PLYMOUTH FIFE & DRUM CORPS members have just returned from a trip out East where they drew a standing ovation at the Camden, N.Y. national Fife & Drum Corps Muster on July 30 and appeared before the largest crowd ever at a Toronto Blue Jays game. At the game, the corps performed both national anthems after taking the field (above). Blue Jays second baseman Garth Iorg tried to get Jennifer Phillips to smile — which is against Fife and Drum Corps rules — above right. Below at right, Jim Bowers stands as part of the muster honor guard. Below, local corps members (from left) Angela Munsell, Joe Keith, Keith Locke and Toby Worschek rehearse before the muster.

Is Twp. ZBA 'Communistic'?

There's usually nothing like running the U.S. flag up the pole to unite one and all in patriotic harmony.

But that's not how it turned out at last Thursday's Plymouth Township Board of Appeals meeting.

In fact, the meeting may rank as a new low in public insults as an overzealous self-described patriot threw charges of "Communist" thinking at township officials.

It all began because Jerry Loiselle, owner of Jerry's Bike Shop, wanted to erect a 70-foot flagpole.

Plymouth Township's Chief Building Inspector Joe Attard said that since the pole was to be anchored in a seven-foot cement base, the flagpole would be a permanent structure under township codes. And permanent structures are limited to 35 feet in height in that area by the code.

So Loiselle took his case to the ZBA.

ZBA Chairman Dick Gornick began the issue by explaining that the board considers granting exceptions to the codes only for extreme hardship.

Loiselle argued that it was a hardship for him to fly his flag from 35 feet instead of 70 feet. He just doesn't do anything halfway.

"I'm proud to be an American and I want to let people know it," explained Loiselle.

Gornick conceded that the ZBA felt "patriotism is a fine thing" but that the flagpole was a "structure" under the codes.

Then Loiselle, in the name of flag-wavers everywhere, began to lose his cool.

When asked if he'd also fly a "Jerry's Bikes" flag on the pole, Loiselle said Attard had asked him the same thing. (After all, Attard was simply doing his job.)

"I told him, Joe, you doggone Communist," Loiselle said emotionally. "I mean it."

By W. Edward WENDOVER

With Malice Toward None

"This is a Communistic was of thinking, and there's not enough of us who stand up and want to wave the flag," the pedal peddler said.

Although Loiselle apologized for his off-base accusations several times during the meeting, the damage was done. He succeeded in sullyng the flag he claims to love by dragging it through the dirt of innuendo.

Attard and the ZBA members -- Gornick, Andy Pruner, Lee Wollgast, and Jim Ventitelli, who all voted not to grant Loiselle's 70-foot flagpole -- may not always do what petitioners want, but that certainly doesn't mean they subscribe to "Communistic" thinking.

Fortunately for those seeking amusement, the entire episode is recorded on video tape and, probably for a fee, copies are available at township hall.

The ZBA meeting, by happen-stance, was being taped for the township's study on the use of cable television for local government. If it sells copies of that portion of the meeting to "That's Incredible," the township could make enough to pay back the federal grant for the "Theme Catalyst Project" begun last year.

And in the meantime (the ZBA also decided to have its attorney check on the legal status of calling a flagpole a structure), Loiselle's going to have to be known as being half-mast.

17-year-old should revise thinking

EDITOR:

To the 17-year-old who wrote to the editor last week saying she and her friends have no where to go.

You gotta be kidding!! You're 17 and your letter to the editor sounded like it.

Is your alternative to being "left alone" by the police, after 11 p.m. at that, "drinking, driving, stealing or vandalizing"? How frightening. You are looking for an excuse to break the law. Is murder for kicks to follow?

How many times have people coming out of the Penn Theater been harassed by teenagers in Kellogg Park? There must be a reason for the 11 p.m. curfew in Plymouth.

You say you are "basically a good girl." Perhaps you are but your thoughts are not basically good.

Don't any of you come from homes where you can entertain your friends? If not, how sad for you. But don't take it out on innocent victims and the police.

Unsolicited Remarks

By Rachael Dolson

Some people have no class

Tsk, tsk, tsk. Tacky, tacky, tacky.

Today we will explore a few points of social etiquette - a few tips from Amy Vanderbilt which have been overlooked in The Plymouth-Canton Community lately.

Our first social buffoon is David Pugh, mayor pro tem of the Plymouth City Commission. Pugh passed out a two-page memo to his fellow city commissioners at last Monday's meeting regarding some items he felt City Manager Graper has been overlooking.

Expenditure resolutions given the commission sometimes failed to note what fund the money would come from, Pugh said, despite the auditors recommendation otherwise. Also, Pugh said the commission should be kept more up-to-date on the financial condition of the equipment reserve fund.

Now don't get me wrong, I'm usually one of the first to point out when the city administration is slipping up - but this time, with Graper vacationing way out West somewhere, Pugh's actions were just not appropriate.

Plymouth will not crumble at our feet just because a few resolutions are not up to (the auditors') snuff.

Pugh's flurry of memos could have easily waited until Graper's return.

I may be overly sensitive on this issue. However, my first meeting out of college I saw the Walled Lake city council fire city manager Peter Parker who was out East visiting his sick mother.

Our next candidate for the grossly gauche award is Andy Pandy Pruner, Plymouth Township board clown.

I admit that most municipal meetings could use a little levity, however Pruner's recent "antics" when certain trustees or members of the public are speaking - rival Ringlings' circus, center ring.

Feats of eye rolling, facial contortions, smirks, frowns, gasps may amuse Observer reporter Gary Cates - but Vanderbilt would definitely characterize

Pruner's pranks as "childish" and "low-brow."

I think they show a lack of respect for his fellow board members and the citizens who have elected him - learn to doodles, play jacks or something less distracting if your attention span can't last through the meeting, Andy.

Third, but probably at the top of the socially inappropriate and tacky list, is a still-at-large thief in Canton Township.

This thief last week had the unmitigated gall to sneak into the backyard of a Canton Township home and steal the cooler out from under their residents' noses.

Adding insult to injury - the bandit made off with the 15 cans of Stroh's in the cooler as well. Tacky, tacky, tacky - leaving the residents with no liquid refreshments. How disgusting low.

And, my final example of low-class lack of character is my bosses, Ed Wendover and Phyllis Redfern.

Last week, the Chamber of Commerce called to ask if we would field a "yachting team" for some practice runs prior to the official Tonquish Creek Yacht Race scheduled for this Saturday.

Since Phyllis and Ed were both out of town at the time, but would be back in time for the practice runs - I gallantly signed them up as a team (figuring they would be well-rested after their time away from the office.)

However, I had neglected to consider the considerable lack of sports prowess that the pair possess. Consequently, they were not very happy riding the chamber's "yachts" of two old bicycles welding together.

The boom was lowered on me in the end, however, when I received by payroll check last Friday made out in the amount of 10 cents.

So, you might as well journey on down to Penniman Avenue at 4 p.m. Saturday and see Phyllis and Ed sailing on wheels - so we get our money's worth of enjoyment at least.

From the Inside

Looking Out

By Cheryl Eberwein

No one can convince me that, at least in The Plymouth-Canton Community, environmental awareness and concern aren't important issues.

In three different incidences, the environmental concerns of a few residents and community officials clashed with the typical "so what" attitudes of others. The environmental concerns won out in every case.

Case: Nearly four months ago Rosita Smith, a Plymouth resident, alerted me to sediment contamination in Tonquish Creek. Although she had approached the city of Plymouth and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) with the same concerns two years earlier, both had done little to investigate or solve the problem.

Many residents in Smith's position may have given up on the Tonquish and ignored the cloudy mess its water had become. Smith, too, might have easily ignored the problem at that point. Her house, after all, does not border on the Tonquish and she is not exposed to its water.

But Smith didn't give up. She kept on calling the DNR in the hopes of stopping the problem. The creek, as she saw it, was an asset to be protected and treasured by community residents no matter where their property lines fell.

Smith finally called The Crier about the problem in May. Through the exposure and the added pressure paper coverage was able to place on the DNR, the problem has been solved.

Heavy metals had been draining into the creek as a result of a mistake in a sewer line installation. The city and company responsible were alerted to the problem, and steps have already been taken to amend the situation.

The Tonquish may again run clear and clean someday.

Case: Only one month before problems with the Tonquish surfaced, potential problems at Woodland Meadows Landfill in Canton also became a question. Two former hazardous waste haulers told The Crier about some of the chemicals they had dumped at the Woodland Meadows site in 1974-76.

Through subsequent investigations, again by the DNR and Canton Township, the drivers' allegations were confirmed. The landfill does, in fact, contain hazardous liquid chemicals which under today's stricter standards would not be allowed in the site.

Although no enforcement action may be taken by the DNR, knowledge that these chemicals are in the landfill will allow Canton Township officials and the DNR to keep closer tabs on landfill monitor tests in case of future problems.

The waste haulers really didn't need to come forward with their concerns. They didn't have to talk to me about the problems they saw with the materials they delivered. They didn't have to take time off from work to talk to the DNR.

But they did. It was their concern that somebody know about what was in the ground at Woodland Meadows. It was their concern that water table contamination be prevented before it ever became a problem. It was their belief, that somebody, somewhere, had to start protecting the environment we all live in.

So they started.

Case in point: Two weeks ago at the Canton Township Board meeting, board members deliberated over an issue for forty-five minutes.

Anyone who has attended a township meeting, of course, knows that such deliberation goes with the territory in Canton. But I found this discussion just a little different others.

Township officials were aguing among themselves and with several businessmen over the fate of a 60-foot high maple tree.

A new restaurant being built on Ford Road had not considered the tree an asset worth saving. A driveway was taking its place. But by moving the driveway two feet over, the tree could be saved and Canton Planner Jim Kosteva repeatedly pointed this out to the board and the businessmen.

It was not without some surprise to me that a final decision was made - in favor of the tree. The township hired a professional tree expert see if the tree was, in fact, worth saving. His opinion was to determine the fate of that shady piece of relief along Ford Road.

The board saw the value of that tree, even if it was "half dead" as the businessmen described it. Like Dr. Seuss's Lorax, they saw that, all too soon, trees may become a sad memory in the minds of future residents.

It may only be one tree, but it was worth the effort of saving.

I applaud actions like these. While federal and state environmental regulations can control some problems in our world, only we can control its local destiny. The old stand-by of "I'm just one person, what can I do?" doesn't really make it anymore. There's a tremendous amount an individual can do to preserve and enhance the quality of the world in which we live.

Not grandiose, any of the above actions. But these residents and officials did what they could and thought was right.

If we all followed suit, the world would be better for the effort.

E-i-e-i-o: Ole' MacDonald had a farm

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

There will be chickens, ducks and geese.

And geese, rabbits, horses and sheep.

There will also be a host of crafts, produce exhibits and baked goods to tempt the eye and palate at the 1983 Wayne County Four-H Fair.

Over 33 Four-H members from the Plymouth-Canton Community are participating in the fair, which began Aug. 8 and will run through Aug. 13. Lafrenda Fitzgerald, leader of the Plymouth Town and Country Four-H club said members will show animals, produce and other crafts at the event.

"There will be all kinds of displays at the fair," Fitzgerald said. Anyone interested in putting meat on their table would really benefit from bidding on the meat animals at the fair," she added. "There is a list of meat processors for people purchasing the animals. This is a great way for three or four people to go together and purchase some quality meat."

Fitzgerald said that those animals auctioned off at the fair for meat have been raised by the Four-H members since the spring of the year.

"There are a few tears when the animals go," Fitzgerald said, "but that's part of the growing process of Four-H." She added that Four-H members also display other exhibits according to their ages and talents. Four-H is an active group in The Plymouth-Canton Community, Fitzgerald said. Membership has grown from only 18 members a year ago to its present membership of approximately 40 teenagers.

"At this rate, I'll never be able to keep up with the club," Fitzgerald said with a laugh.

Those interested in attending the Four-H Fair should plan on showing up at the fairgrounds early and spending the day. Pony pulls, a performing arts troupe, an antique tractor pull, a talent show and watermelon eating contest are just a very few of the highlights which will keep fair-goers busy throughout the week.

The Wayne County Four-H Fair will be held in Belleville at the county fair grounds. For further information about the Wayne County Fair, contact the fairgrounds at 697-7002 or the Wayne County Four-H programs office at 721-6576.

tell it to Phyllis

Danny Prince was a bright eyed loving child. At the age of nine, he touched the lives of many people before he was involved in an accident last week and lost his life.

As a baby, he traveled from Viet Nam to this country and in December of 1975 was welcomed into his new home in Canton by his parents, Judy and Alan Prince.

He was also greeted with open arms by his brothers and sister, Leriny (Alan Jr.), Bobby and Hanh (she was their first adopted child, also from Viet Nam).

Danny was handicapped and the doctors said he would never walk. However, Danny never let the fact that he couldn't run like the rest of the kids stand in his way. What he lacked in leg power, he made up for in energy and determination.

I'll never forget the first time I saw him walk with leg braces and a walker. When it came to playing outside, he opted for a wheeled toy to push himself around.

He made friends easily. People were immediately taken in by him warm, friendly smile. He had an abundance of love and was never afraid to share it.

Danny was part of a family where love and caring for others are priorities. Judy and Alan decided years ago to devote their time and love to helping children who at one time were considered unadoptable.

Since Danny's arrival, the Prince family has grown by leaps and bounds. The additional brothers and sisters in the family include: Dennis, JoAnna, Connie, Judi, Gail, Jennifer, Kathy, Jon, Tom and Becky.

The Prince family has had to endure hardships and other tragedies. Four years ago when their Canton home on Sheldon Road burned in the middle of the night, they lost a son, Tony. During that fire Bobby, who was nine at the time, suffered burns on his feet while rescuing Danny from the burning house.

Despite their losses, the family has remained warm and caring. They continue to go out of their way to help others.

In memory of Danny, maybe those of us who knew him can remember him by showing our love and understanding to friends and neighbors. Danny's bright smile and loving hugs can live on forever.

Parked police cars crash!

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Two parked police cars collided Saturday, according a police report prepared by Northville Township Police.

Although the incident occurred on Napier Road between Salem and Northville townships, neither cars were from those municipalities - one was a Plymouth Police vehicle and one a Wayne County Sherriff Department car.

Confusing? Would the police believe you if you came to them with a strange story like that? Well, Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry's only comment was, "Accidents do happen."

A Wayne County Sherriff deputy had been eastbound in pursuit of man on a motorcycle on Five Mile Road. Plymouth Officer Edward Kahanec had parked a Plymouth vehicle near the corner of Napier and Five Mile, police said.

The man on the motorcycle lost control, and the driver left his cycle and began to flee on foot, police said. The sherriff deputy stopped his car, put the unit in park and pursued the man on foot.

The county police car apparently slipped out of the parked position and rolled in the Plymouth vehicle, police said.

The Northville report recommended the county car be checked for a "possible defect in the transmission."

The Plymouth vehicle was taken to B and B Towing.

ZBA to waive parking?

The City of Plymouth ZBA will consider Thursday the waiving of 53 parking credits required for the proposed new development of the Main Street building which formerly housed Plymouth Furniture.

The board first considered the request from developer Jim McKeon at the Thursday, Aug. 11, ZBA meeting - but eventually tabled the matter to tomorrow night's 7:30 p.m. meeting at city hall.

McKeon said he plans to divide the large Plymouth Furniture building into space for four separate commercial establishments. A use such as furniture store requires only one parking space for every 1,500 square feet of floor space, while a commercial shop such as McKeena has proposed requires one parking space for every 400 square feet.

The building had "grandfathered" parking credits when it was a dime store, but its number of credits decreased dramatically when the dime store was converted to a furniture store.

The ZBA considered reinstating McKeon's "grandfathered" credits. The only similar action board members could remember was when the grandfathering was extended for Penniman Avenue Shop to cover the time after it burned down to the new construction.

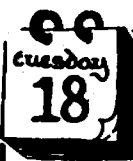

The board could not decide if a total waiver or a reinstating of the grandfathered credits was appropriate, and so tabled the matter until tomorrow.

Parking credits can be "purchased" from the city, but McKeon told the board that any parking credit costs would have to be passed on to the tenants of the building and would drive the rent past reasonable levels.

A 'Honey' moon couple

The newly wedded Verebs said they plan to reside in Canton. Married moments earlier (shown inside car) was former Nina Caram, 20, of Westland, and Erv Andrews, 28, of Lincoln Park. Both ceremonies were part of the third annual "Back Seat Wedding" sponsored by WHND "Honeyradio," 56 on the a.m. dial. Officiating at the nuptials was Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Michael J. # Elderly housing project gets SEMCOG okay

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

A federally-assisted housing development for the elderly planned in Plymouth Township was given a favorable recommendation by the southeastern Michigan council of governments (SEMCOG) and passed on to the Detroit office of housing and urban development (HUD).

Last week's SEMCOG approval came despite an internal recommendation by SEMCOG staff that the project be denied, concerns over the proposed development distance from essential services -- and the project's difficulty in finding a nonprofit sponsor.

The federal grant application is for $6 million in "federal mortgage assistance" from HUD to building a 150-unit apartment complex for the elderly and handicapped, to be located on a 28-acre site on the west side of Ridge, south of Five Mile.

Application is being made by the Plymouth Nonprofit Housing Association, 14900 Beck Road in Plymouth, whose president is township resident Frank Millington, according to federal records.

Plymouth Township, the Wayne County Planning Commission and the Out Wayne Area Agency on Aging have all indicated their support for the project.

The development as proposed would consist of one, two and three story buildings, seven in all. Fourty of the units would be efficiency and 110 would be one-bedroom units.

Thirty of the units are proposed to be "rental assisted" -- housing qualified residents with the federal government picking up the tab for all or some of the rent payment.

Millington, in the filing documents, said the association has an option on the site and has paid $750 of the proposed $300,000 price. Millington's relationship with the buyer is "business" according to a section of the application, although he was not required to name the owner in the application.

The construction site is on a slope, Millington said. The building structure would be wood frame and masonry bracing, with floors of concrete plan and wood frame. The exteriors of the buildings would be brick, stucco and panels.

A gross floor space of 107,200 square feet is listed, with 3,000 square feet dedicated as community space.

"Housing consultants" for the project are Housing Consultants, Ltd. of Southfield. The architect for the project is Charles H. Marks and Associates of Southfield.

Housing Consultants and Marks and Associates are listed on federal documents as having the same address, and both share the same phone number as Plymouth Nonprofit Housing Association.

Listed as the non-profit sponsor for the project is the Mount Olive Grand Lodge, 14801 Fenkell, in Detroit. Both the Plymouth Council on Aging and the local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) had declined to sponsor the project.

The Council of Aging was hesitant to sponsor the project because of the lack of details supplied regarding the development and the distance of the development from shopping, transportation, hospital and other services, according to the minutes of the council's board meeting.

No information was available on reasons for the AARP rejection, which came the day after the council on aging decision.

SEMCOG administrative staff, after reviewing the application and project, recommended "that SEMCOG submit an unfavorable review on the project by the Plymouth Non Profit Housing proposal based on the project's inconsistencies with the council's Housing Opportunity Plan."

Specifically mentioned in the unfavorable staff review were no access to public transportation, lack of access to shopping services, and distance from medical services.

In most cases the nearest provider for these services was in the City of Plymouth, four miles away, the report noted.

SEMCOG's review committee, composed of elected officials who reviewed the SEMCOG staff report, decided to act favorably on the project despite the staff's concern.

Millington told the review committee that a pair of 12-seat buses would be available for the residents' transportation, and that a market and drug store is planned for the site adjacent to the proposed complex.

Lee Fidge, Plymouth Township Trustee and member of the SEMCOG review committee, gave the committee a letter from Township Fire Chief Larry Groth which said the response time to the area of the proposed development ranged from seven to 13 minutes.

Also, she said the adjacent site proposed for the shopping center is not zoned for commercial use.

The review committee gave a favorable recommendation on the project, but said that shopping and transportation should be provided for as part of the total project.

Included in the application to HUD is a letter from Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen indicating that sanitary sewer and public water are available for the site.

The letter also promised $10,000 from the township if the project is successful in obtaining the section 202 financing.

A letter from Wayne County Executive William Lucas indicated the county's support of the project, based on its consistency with the county's housing assistance plan.

United States Congressman Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton) gave his support and backing to the project in a letter to Millington.

Following the SEMCOG review committees' approval, the application was forwarded on Aug. 2 to John G. Terranella, director of the housing division for the Detroit HUD office.

Canton cops assist in chase Shots fired by three suspects

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN
 Canton policemen escaped injury Monday when three fleeing suspects fired guns upon them in a high speed chase.

Police reported that the chase, which started in Van Buren Township and ended on the front lawn of Northville State Hospital, is still under investigation.

Officer Eddie Tanner of the Canton Police Department said three suspects were taken into custody. Police would not release the names of the individuals involved at press time due to pending arrest warrants.

Tanner said the chase occurred at approximately 7:23 p.m. Monday. A black Cadillac traveling on I-94 exited at Belleville Road traveling at a high rate of speed.

Van Buren Police, already in pursuit of the vehicle, radioed to the Canton Police for help.

Tanner said the car raced north on Belleville Road to Michigan Avenue where the Canton Officers joined in the chase.

Two Canton police cars pursued the racing vehicle to I-275. One car was fired upon by the three suspects while still in pursuit on the freeway.

Tanner said one of the two Canton police cars, moving along side the suspects' car, was run off the road by the suspects. The car caught fire when some brush became tangled underneath it.

Canton police said one of the three suspects, a male, jumped from the suspects' vehicle and was apprehended by the department. The other two suspects, a male and female, turned the car around and fled into Northville.

The chase ended when the two suspects crashed into the bushes on the hospital grounds and tried to escape on foot.

Northville state police officers had also joined the chase, and a state police vehicle was rammed several times by the suspects' car while in pursuit.

Tanner said police are still unsure why the trio was fleeing. He added, however, that the driver of the vehicle told police he was afraid "someone was after him."

Tanner said Canton will charge the driver of the car with a firearm felony.

The commodore said the club has been inactive for several years, but is still alive and screaming mad over this weekend's events.

"Members have been calling me from all over saying 'What are we going to do about this commodore?' there has been a real outcry," Delaney said.

The attorney said he plans to call a meeting of the club's board of directors to see what steps should be taken. "I'm all for suing the bums," he said.

Delaney said the chamber, as an afterthought, asked him to appear as commodore at the race and events, "but that was probably after they heard I was mad."

Yacht Race Saturday

Ships? A ho! Tell Biff and Muffy, Tad and Babs -- the only yachting event more important than the America's Cup is scheduled for Saturday -- the first annual Tonquish Creek Yacht Race sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Salty dogs and yacht-club prepsters alike will be competing spinnaker to jib for the coveted Captain Horatio J. Hick Cup.

Race organizer, rear admiral Mike Ball, explained that legend has it that Captain Hick sailed a fully rigged schooner up the Tonquish Creek to Plymouth in August of 1836.

Since the creek crests at about 10 inches, many historians think it is more likely that Hick drank schooners until he was fully rigged, then drown in the creek.

The Plymouth event, an entirely dry-land race, will be held on Penniman Avenue. The festivities will include two day "Shipwreck Sidewalk Sales" in stores throughout town, the race itself at 4 p.m., a fisherman's wharf at the race site from 4 to 9:30 p.m., a free street dance featuring Dave Swain and his 521 Orchestra at 6 p.m.; and a moonlight cruise on the Boblo Boat.

At $8.50 per person, the moonlight cruise includes round trip passage on Plymouth's double decker bus. Call the Chamber of Commerce at 453-1540 for reservations.

Registration to compete in the yacht race is $35. The "yachts", described as "twin tandem landlubber specials" are actually pairs of bicycles welded together.

Each team will draw their yacht immediately prior to their heat.

A sail, essentially a window shade, will be provided to each team in advance, and they will have the opportunity to personalize it with their team name and number.

Prizes, besides the coveted Hick Cup, will be awarded for most creative rigging, best crew costume, most preppy team, best cheerleaders, and slowest overall team.

Ball explained his lifelong love affair with yacht and his desire to bring the event to Plymouth: "I saw the ocean once, and at least two Great Lakes. I think they were Great Lakes. They were pretty good, anyway." Ball said he personally knows several people who had either seen or been on boats.

Admiral Ball extends his personal invitation to everyone. "Get your ascots over to Plymouth for the first annual Tonquish Creek Yacht Race."

'Cluster' housing proposed for 72 acres in Twp.

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

The Plymouth Township planning commission has tabled a request by developer Costa J. Charnas to use the cluster housing option to develop 72 acres on the north side of North Territorial Road — and instructed the township planning consultant to determine if the property could "feasibly" be developed under the residential unit development (RUD) option instead.

The parcel is already zoned appropriately for RUD and should be developed that way if feasible, the planning commission decided after a work session on the Charnas property July 27.

Charnas had first proposed using the cluster option to develop this site at a July 20 meeting, and the matter was discussed and tabled to the July 27 work session.

Charnas told the commission that he planned to develop 39 acres with 67 cluster homes and then at a later date submit a plan for the remaining 33 acres and 55 more units.

The density would stay within the zoning requirements, under Charnas' proposed plan.

Charnas said the RUD method of development would normally be used on a site as large as this, but it is not practical in this case because of the large flood plain area which dominates one-third of the site, the expressway on the north boundary, and the rolling topography.

He said his architect has worked out a plan with cluster home, maintaining the 1.7 dwellings per acre average, but placing the clusters so take advantage of the site.

Plymouth Township planner James Anulewicz said that cluster housing is relatively new in Plymouth township, and does not necessarily mean condominiums or apartment. Cluster housing in the township, he said, is designed for a single-family home concept.

Township ordinance 83 provides for dwelling which can be attached in some form, up to a maximum of four units per cluster. The density is not increased beyond what is permitted under the existing zoning, the planner said, and there is a savings in land by grouping the buildings and providing more open space and a minimum disturbance of the environment.

Charnas said his proposed units would consist of two bedrooms and a den, attached garages and be a total of 1,800 to 2,000 square feet. Many of the units, he said, would have walkout basements and private court yards. Charnas said he felt this type of development would have less impact on the environment than single family because he plans only two bedrooms per unit, meaning less family members and less traffic.

Donald Gregory, planning commissioner, said that Singh Development Company had already presented the commission a plan for an RUD subdivision at the site. That plan has received preliminary approval. Gregory said the use of cluster would have a heavier impact on the area, especially since it would be a totally different housing than currently exists in the area.

Three residents spoke at the public hearing on Charnas' request for use of the cluster option. Walt Batryn and Walt Clark both objected to cluster homes on this site. Don Souter asked if plans were available for review and was told that plans do not have to be submitted until the site plan review stage.

The commission decided to table the request for up to 60 days, and hold the work session. At the work session, the commission directed to planning consultant to determine if the parcel can economically be developed under the plan, as already approved.

Businessman protests City's handling of lights and curb

Donald Keeth, owner of Keeth Heating and Air Conditioning, is not happy with the City of Plymouth and Wayne County Road Commission's widening of Main Street.

The city has moved the street lights along the east side of Main Street twice in the last month, Keeth said, at a cost to the taxpayers of $2,100.

"What a waste," Keeth said. "I called them (city hall) and told them when they were moving it in the spring that they would have to move them again. You know they have been planning the Main Street improvements for years — it's not like they didn't know."

In the spring time the poles were moved from the road's edge to the sidewalk for safety reasons, with the Main Street widening they will be moved back another six feet.

Keeth also has a problem with the construction plans for the "curb cut" at his building at the corner of Main and Amelia.

Canton murder connected to sect dispute

crime," Cox said. "The FBI wants to determine this. This appears to be a power struggle between members of the Islamic religious sect, but we really don't know the basic cause for the dispute."

Cox said earlier in the evening, the treasurer of the same Islamic sect had escaped uninjured from his Clinton Township home after suspects firebombed the residence. Cox said a molotov cocktail was thrown through the window of the home but did not explode. Cox said police are now taking finger prints off of the explosive's glass bottle to see if they match those of Cain and Jones.

"There is some possibility that this is related to the Middle East terrorist attacks which are occurring throughout the country," Cox said. "We could find out that this whole affair is much more complicated than it appears and that the men in the temple downtown were actually victims themselves and not the murderers."

Cox added, however, that he felt this was "highly unlikely."

Road plans show Keeth's driveway on to Amelia being eliminated. "They (the city and county) say the ramp to Amelia Street is unsafe. But I will have less room for parking with the road widening and it is going to be more dangerous not to have access to the side street," Keeth said.

Keeth said there has been a curb cut to Amelia for more than 50 years since before he bought the building. "The county said I bootlegged it, but I didn't. It has always been there."

Keeth appealed to the City Commission last week to retain his driveway on Amelia Street, but was denied.

The commission and city engineer suggested other alternatives such as having the driveway further down the street, but Keeth wanted the curb cut at its present location.

DONALD KEETH puts his foot in the hole where the light pole was moved just last spring. In the background, on extreme right, is the pole's new position.

In last week's edition of The Crier, the young rotten sneaker contestant shown in the front page photo was incorrectly identified. The picture showed Ted Barker and his infamous tennis shoes and not his friend Jason Neiieneam.

Other winners in the 5th annual Rotten Sneaker competition included Brian Hendrickson with top honors for the worst pair of sneakers in town, Rob Truskowski, and Jeff Bochy. Ted Barker also was a winner in the competition.

All contestants who placed in the rotten sneaker contest won foot powder, a gift certificate (for what else but new shoes?) and trophies. The Canton Recreation Department, sponsors of the event, encourage all those contestants who didn't place to hold onto those sneakers for next year's event. The shoes will be a little older and worse for the wear in a year!

ADVERTISING
ADVICE #32
SPECIAL SECTIONS ARE SPECIAL

UNUSUALLY HIGH READERSHIP is the plum offered by topic-related special sections in newspapers. Advertising of products and services related to the topic — be it centered on an event or on a theme (such as home improvement, auto care, etc.) — is noticed by readers attracted to the topic. And, as a bonus, the ad often has double impact in that it's read at the time it's published and again by the readers who save the section to refer to later.

Special sections often offer expanded distribution in addition to regular newspaper circulation — an added advantage for the advertisers.

Traffic Jams opens after six-week renovation

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Six weeks. Correction, make that six long weeks. That's how long it took Roland Reaver to transform the Discount Beverage shop on the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Main Street into Traffic Jams, a store that will specialize in stereo systems for cars.

And now that he's open for business selling not only stereos but alarm systems and sun roofs, he can't believe how the people of The Plymouth-Canton Community have taken to his place of business.

"I've just been overwhelmed," he admitted one day last week as he leaned up against a wall in the lobby of the completely refurbished store. "I don't know why and I guess you shouldn't ask why."

"We worked to 1 a.m. last night putting in stereos and alarms. I knew it would be a good location, I certainly wouldn't have sunk $50,000 into it if I didn't, but this has all been too much."

Reaver also owns a Traffic Jams located in Rochester, and he insisted he's just a small businessman who works hard to give car stereo customers what they want.

"I'm the sole owner and hard work has helped me put two stores on this planet," he said. "We're not completely finished with this place, but I sort of ran out of money and figured it was time to see the flow turn around the other way and begin to come in instead of just go out."

Once he decided upon the Plymouth location, he had to approach various city officials to obtain building permits, etc., he said.

"City officials can either make your life easier or miserable," Reaver remarked. "Everyone here, starting with Hank Graper (City Manager) have been very helpful, I can't begin to tell you how helpful."

A highlight of Reaver's place, he insisted, will be a set-up that simulates how a customer will hear a stereo once it's in his car, van, truck, whatever.

"Putting this all together is mind boggling," Reaver said with a wave of his hand. "But we feel this is the nicest sound system in Michigan, the only place where you can really get a feel for how the stereo will sound in your car."

Car wash wins 'clean car' award

Lighthouse Car Wash in Canton Township won a first place award for best exterior design in the nation from a trade magazine, American Clean Car.

The magazine's judges chose Lighthouse for top exterior honors in the Annual Car Wash Beautiful Awards Competition, according to the publication's June 1983 edition.

Owner Michael Newbauer said he expected a certificate in the mail soon. "Also, we have been contacted by the magazine and they are come out to do a feature on our place," he said.

The four-year-old car wash, owned by Newbauer and John Howley, is a 3,700 square-foot building with an authentic-appearing lighthouse tower which carries out the nautical theme - wood decks resemble docks.

Elks luck runs dry

BY TIM McKERCHER

A successful season came to an end last Saturday for the Canton Elks baseball team.

Canton beat Rochester and Lincoln Park but was knocked out of the regional tournament by Grand Rapids and Saginaw Means.

The Elks squeezed out a win over Rochester last Wednesday 3-2. Bucky Blake took the mound for Canton and shut-out the Rochester squad for six innings. He almost lost it in the seventh when Rochester scored both its runs, but Canton managed to hang onto the lead.

Canton's offense came up with six hits on the day. Jim Dillon hit a pinch-hit homerun in the fifth and Jim Mahalick brought in two runs in the sixth with a double.

On Thursday, Lincoln Park fell victim to the Elk squad 6-4.

Rick Berberet, who was picked up from the Salem Elk team, pitched five innings and was relieved by Mike Battaglia. Marty McCarthy sparked the offense with a three-run homer. Mahalick also hit a round-tripper for the Elks.

Brian Capnerhurst scored three runs while stroking three hits. Mike Scarpello was another run scorer for the Elks and came around to score twice while knocking out two hits.

Canton drew a bye on Friday but took the diamond on Saturday morning against Grand Rapids and was routed 5-1.

John Nissen, a pick-up from Catholic Central, got the nod as the starting pitcher. He was later relieved in the game by Mark Bennet.

The Elks needed a win Saturday night against Saginaw Means but lost a close one 3-1. Battaglia took the final loss of the season for Canton who finished with a 25-6 mark.

On the run Jogging not for everyone

(Today, Crier Sports Editor Mark Constantine concludes his five-part series on running, "On the run," by examining, with the help of noted Plymouth Township physician, William Ross, D.O., alternatives to running for getting in shape.)

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Jogging or running or whatever you want to call it isn't for everyone.

That's good because not everyone should get out and run long distances.

At least that's the feeling of William Ross, D.O., a noted local physician who has worked with many different types of athletes, both amateur and professional.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said emphatically, "the best overall exercise for most average, healthy people is walking. Too many people, however, don't think of walking as an exercise when, in fact, it's a very good one."

"That means getting out and walking in the morning and the evening, you can't just walk for 10 minutes and expect it to do any good."

"The object of any form of exercise is get you heart beat up to its optimum rate, and that can be done very easily with walking."

"And once you reach you optimum rate, it's very easy just to slow your walk down."

Post-heart attack patients are prime candidates to become involved in some sort of walking program because it's a good way for them to battle back from the illness without the risk of bringing on another coronary like running can, Dr. Ross said.

Walking, though, isn't the only type of exercise Dr. Ross recommends. "Swimming can be very good, too. You work your legs, arms, heart and lungs. It's very good for total body fitness."

Dr. Ross cautioned against hopping on a bike and pedaling around town in an attempt to get in shape because of the sports' inherent dangers.

"Biking is good for your legs but, if you ride in the wrong spots, you have to worry about traffic and getting hurt," Dr. Ross remarked. "You also need the proper training in bike safety."

"Besides, biking isn't good for your arms or shoulders."

Most Americans grow up playing sports where they use their upper body, like baseball and basketball, while in Europe the emphasis is on sports like soccer where legs and feet are more important. Running combines the best of both continents, according to Dr. Ross.

"Running is a dynamic sport that combines upper and lower body movement," he noted. "Running and walking primarily help your cardiovascular system, but they both work all parts of the body."

A sport to avoid playing hard, however, if you aren't in good shape is tennis, Dr. Ross noted.

"Tennis is not a conditioning sport," he explained. "It's good after you've run or walk or swim, but you can't use it to get into shape."

"In fact, tennis requires specific hand-eye movements and sudden spurts and sprint and, if you're not in shape, you could hurt your joints."

Just remember, though, whatever type of exercise you choose to help get you into shape, Dr. Ross said you should start slowly and gradually add to what you're doing.

And, if you're over 40, you should more than likely see a doctor before hitting the streets, swimming pool or basketball court.

ACCORDING TO DR. WILLIAM ROSS, jogging may not be suited to everybody. Dr. Ross suggests that swimming and walking are good exercise besides running. (Crier photo by Chris Boyd)

Salem drops two during weekend

BY TIM McKERCHER

They came from places like Allen Park, Westland, Utica and Detroit. They all came to win the Little Ceaser's Amateur Baseball Federation Regional Tournament.

But in the end, only one team walked away with the championship and unfortunately, it wasn't Salem.

Salem DiPonio, who hosted the tournament, lost two consecutive games and was knocked out of the competition. They lost to Wayne Ford and Frank's Stadium Service, a Police Athletic League (P.A.L.) team.

Dan Knapp pitched the first game for DiPonio and shut-out Wayne Ford for six innings as Salem led 3-0. A come-from-behind four run rally brought in Salem's

Doug Nester to pitch in the seventh but the team couldn't pull out the victory. Salem lost 4-3. Chris Belhart led the offense with three hits in four trips to the plate.

In the second game Salem tried a come-from-behind rally of their own but still lost, 5-3, to Frank's Stadium Service. Brian Tiller, Dan Knapp, and Doug Nester were the pitchers for DiPonio. Belhart had two hits and Tom Moore stroked two hits in four turns at the plate.

Both teams that beat Salem, Wayne Ford and Frank's Stadium Service, were in the championship game on Saturday. The game turned out to be a disappointing end to an exciting tournament. Wayne Ford merced the P.A.L. team, 14-2, in five innings.
