White resigns, controversy explodes

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Controversy over police service in Plymouth and Plymouth Township swirled Monday night as the Plymouth Police Officers Association (PPOA) asked the city commission to reinstate Police Chief Ralph White.

Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper announced White's resignation Friday, saying White cited the pressures of the job. But PPOA President Mike Gardner said he told White of his resignation. Gardner and the PPOA charged that White had been forced to resign.

White would not comment Monday night on the matter but Graper said White will remain with the department as a lieutenant, the rank he held before being named chief last August.

Gardner read a letter from the PPOA to the city commission saying conditions surrounding the city's contract to provide police service in the township "impede and seriously hamper the work" of the city's police officers.

The PPOA is the union that represents city patrolmen. Gardner said the letter was written in response to Graper's announcement that White had resigned.

"We're not going to be victimized anymore," Gardner said.

A portion of the letter said: "The police officers have observed Mr. White's performance as a professional police officer who, through diligence, dedication and hard work made his way up through the ranks...We perceive what has happened to Mr. White as an undermining of his competence and proven leadership."

Graper, in announcing White's request to return to the rank of lieutenant, called White "an excellent police chief and certainly a leader of men."

"He asked me if I would let him go back into the ranks," Graper said.

"He felt there was a lot of stress involved in the job that he hadn't expected when he took the position," he said.

Gardner said the city commission should return White to the chief's position "because there's no reason he should have lost the job."

The PPOA letter said the police department had been operating with dual leadership. White, the letter said was denied the power necessary to properly run the department.

Gardner said Graper told him that Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry actually ran the city police department.

"Does the City of Plymouth Charter provide for Carl Berry's retention of power over the police department when he, in fact, is the Chief of Police of the township and not the city?" the PPOA letter said.

Plymouth Township pays the city $467,000 annually for police services. The PPOA inferred that Berry was given authority over the department to insure that contracted police services would continue. Rumors have circulated that township officials were not satisfied with the contract and may consider forming their own police department. City officials have said the loss of the township contract would force the layoffs of as many as nine of the 15 officers.

Graper denied that he told Gardner that Berry had any authority within the department, however.

"I never made the statement that Carl Berry ran the department," Graper said.

The PPOA letter charged that the city had returned little of the $467,000 it earned annually from the township contract back into the police department.

According to the PPOA letter, the township contract with the city results in "...less police officers, double the workload, lower department morale and no direct leadership from one police chief."

The PPOA asked for an audit of the city's 1980 and 1985 budget to report how much of the money had been pumped back into the police department's budget.

Graper said the money the city earns from the township contract is earmarked for the police department.

"It (the contract with the township) represents about 50 per cent of the cost of running the department and that's where the money is put."

After the commission meeting, the city commission met behind closed doors to discuss what Graper termed "contract problems."

Employe reports

Sterlini back to work

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

Canton Treasurer Maria Sterlini has taken over her full administrative responsibilities in office, announced her secretary, Irene Bakowski, Monday.

The treasurer has just returned to Canton from a controversial trip to Greece and has been unavailable for comment on her plans since the return June 29.

Sterlini took a 60-day leave of absence from her position as treasurer of Canton in April. Although Sterlini had told board members in a written announcement that the leave was for medical reasons, controversy over the move arose as a result of how the treasurer handled her announcement and after she refused to sign medical insurance forms necessary for the township to collect medical insurance payments on her behalf. The township sought to seek insurance reimbursement during the treasurer's absence but was unable to collect the funds as a result of Sterlini's refusal.

Sterlini contradicted herself on her reasons for leaving office, claiming May 15 that the leave was non-medical and she would not discuss accusations about the insurance issue, and at other times that leave was strictly medical and doctor ordered.

Sterlini's absence from officer created an initial stir because Canton Board members were uninformed of the leave before it actually took place. In subsequent action, the board raised the salary of Sterlini's unofficial part-time assistant Sandy Setlock nearly 50 per cent, from approximately $6 per hour to $9 per hour, to run the treasurer's Did White know of leave?

Was Plymouth Police Chief Ralph White informed of his own "resignation" from one of his patrolmen?

Officer Mike Gardner said White wasn't aware that he had left his position as chief until Friday afternoon Gardner asked White about a rumor he had heard.

White offered a firm "no comment" Monday evening when asked any questions about his resignation.

City Manager Henry Graper announced that White had resigned Friday afternoon saying White had cited the "stress" that was involved in the job.

White was named police chief August 15, 1983, replacing Carl Berry who left the city to take as police chief-administrative assistant in Plymouth Township.

White has been with the department since 1968, joining after a stint with the United States Navy.

White is a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Academy.

NEW BUSINESS IN TOWN? This interesting open-for-business notice appeared last week at 233 S. Main. A spokesman for David Schaff Architects, which occupies the former 'Pink House' next to the library, blamed the new sign on attorneys who also share the 'Pink House' offices. "We don't know for sure, but we think it could be the attorneys — if architects had done it — it would have been neater." The apparent reference to the current movie, "Ghostbusters" was removed by this week — and the Schaff employees assured us no unfriendly spirits reside in the Plymouth landmark. Oct. school ballots may have two millage requests on it

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Two millage decisions may face the voters of the Plymouth-Canton School district this fall — a repeat of the 1.74 mill operating increase request and a bond issue question of up to $5 million.

The concensus of the school board, after two lengthy workshop sessions last week, was that the district needs to raise about $5 million for building and equipment needs. The bond would be a one-shot fix of badly needed repairs and replacements, Superintendent Dr. John Hoben said. The needs are too large to be met within the general operating budget, trustee E.J. McClendon said. McClendon said it was time for the residents of the district to re-affirm their commitment to quality education for children in Plymouth and Canton.

The board did not take official action last week, but all seemed to be in agreement that a bond issue with a 16-year repayment schedule would be reasonable. The repayment plan on a principal of between $4 and $5 million would be about .50 to .65 added mills to the existing 1.74 debt millage.

The board plans to ask voters again to approve a 1.74 mill tax increase this fall. Board Secretary Elaine Kirchgatter said the public should realize that without the 1.74 mill increase the board will have to ask for a three mill increase next year.

Sometime next year the voters will be asked to renew 8.6 mills of expiring millage.

Covered under the board term of 'equipment needs' was a staff-administration wish list of computers, data management system, new desks and video equipment, and improvements to many schools, especially the elementaries of Hulsing, Field and Eriksson.

Hoben said the wish list would have to be reviewed by the state to determine which items would be eligible for purchase with a bond issue.

Murder attempt in Canton Twp.

Canton police are looking for suspects in an incident they have classified as an attempted murder which occurred July 15 at approximately 12:30 a.m.

According to Sergeant Alex Wilson of the Canton Police Department, Ella Marie Fisher, 32, and her husband Charles, 43, living in the 7500 block of Thornwood Drive in Canton, were both attacked and bound in their home.

Charles Fisher gave Canton police the following account of the incident:

Charles Fisher awoke early Sunday morning at approximately 12:10 a.m. when he heard what he thought was his wife, Ella, arriving home. Fisher got up and went into the kitchen where he was struck on the head from behind and knocked unconscious.

When Fisher regained consciousness, he found himself bound up in his bedroom. He managed to escape his bonds and found his wife in the living room bound with ropes and tape. She was unconscious.

Ella Fisher was transported to Oakwood Canton Center where she was stabilized and transported to another area hospital. Police said she had not been sexually assaulted, but the tape bonds had strangled her and she was in critical condition.

Police said the couple's truck was the only thing discovered missing from the home; the truck was later recovered in Detroit and has been brought back to Canton for processing.

Wilson said there is no motive or suspect(s) in the case.

Man hurt in HiLo mishap

AN ACCIDENT at Chembright Industries on Plymouth Road Friday injured a worker, Ken Miller of Canton. According to the Plymouth Police, Miller had driven a hilo off a loading dock and into a semi-tractor trailer at approximately 2:19 p.m. Police said the driver of the truck pulled away from the dock throwing Miller and the hilo backwards. Miller fell under the equipment as a result of the truck's movement. He was transported to St. Mary's Hospital by CEMS. (Crier photo by Rachael Dolson)

Dion Home to be sold

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Dion Nursing Home, located at 43825 Michigan Avenue in Canton, will be sold in September if an application through the Michigan Department of Public Health is approved.

The facility, which has a resident capacity of 91 and employs over 100 people, will be sold to Canton Care Center, Inc., a new health care company formed and owned by L. Brian Suter. Suter presently manages Dion Nursing Home for Mrs. Rose Getz, owner of the facility. He said he will buy the home from Getz if the Department of Public Health approves his application.

"The corporation, of which she is the primary stockholder, desires to sell the facility," Suter said. "There are some changes which will have to be made before the sale is approved, however, that are mandatory by law."

Suter said changes in the steepness of an indoor ramp in the home and changes in the room ventilation system must be made before the health department will approve the sale of the home. Suter said Dion had problems with its state operating license as a result of these problems. "The facility isn't up to code in these areas and are in direct violation of the rules, regulations and laws of the state," he said.

Suter said Getz received notice that the home has had these problems as far back as 1974. "She decided at that point to balk rather than make the changes and at that point the state attempted to deny her

P-C attendance policy toughens up on absentees

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

A stricter attendance policy - where students lose credit after five unexcused absences and teachers do fewer parent notifications - has been approved by the Plymouth-Canton School Board.

The policy also sets limits on the total number of absences - excused and unexcused - allowed. Students with 12 total absences will lose credit for the class.

The new policy for Centennial Education Park was developed in response to teaching staff and general parental feeling that the current policy was too lenient and allowed for too much abuse. A review of policies in other local districts showed a move to crackdown on attendance problems with tougher rules and the Plymouth-Canton attendance policy committee chose to follow suit.

School staff had also complained that the requirements to notify parents so frequently about attendance problems were time consuming and often ineffective.

The new policy requires parental notification after the second, fourth and fifth (final) unexcused absence. Teachers have the option of contacting the parent themselves or making a written referral to the attendance aides or administrators who will make the call to parents.

The five-and-out attendance policy says:

First unexcused absence: the teacher holds a conference with the student to explain the policy and make the student aware of his attendance.

Second unexcused absence: the teacher must either call the parent, or submit a form so that an attendance aide can make the call.

Fourth unexcused absence: the teacher submits a form to the student's area coordinator (administrator) who calls the parents to review the problem.

Fifth unexcused absence: the teacher again notifies the area coordinator who notifies the parents that the student has lost credit for the class.

Once credit is lost, the student may choose to audit the class (if he/she currently is passing) for the remainder of the semester, the policy says. However, if there is another unexcused absence the student will be removed from the classroom.

If audit privileges are lost, the student could be assigned to a study hall or will have his/her schedule reduced.

"Excessive absences, whether excused or unexcused, can have a detrimental effect on the student's classroom performance," the policy said.

When a student has a total of nine absences, excused and unexcused, the teacher will call the parent or have the area coordinator call the parent. The student loses credit if 12 total absences are reached.

Absences not included in total absences, the policy said, are: extended illness, school business, verifiable medical excuse, family bereavement, and administrative prearranged absences including suspension.

Teachers are encouraged to reward students for good attendance and to make daily class activities of impact so that presence in the class is desired and important, the policy said.

Parents, under the new policy, are required to complete a form if they plan to have their child absent for three or more days.

When a student is absent from school, the parent will call the office of the student's area coordinator by 3 p.m. the day of the absence. A daily call for each day of absence is required unless the absence is because of hospitalization, death in the family, or prearranged absence.

Teachers will provide make-up work only for excused absences. Students are responsible for obtaining and completing make up work, the policy said.

"Parents may wish to supply the area coordinator's office with an alternative mailing address (such as parents' place of

OUIL cited in M-14 crash

The Washenaw County Sheriff's Department says alcohol was involved in a head-on collision that killed six people on M-14 in Superior Township July 8.

Joseph P. McGuire of Paw Paw, who witnesses say was driving the wrong way on the highway, had a blood alcohol level of .26, a sheriff's department spokesman said. A blood alcohol level of .10 is legally impaired.

McGuire and all five people in another vehicle were killed when two cars collided.

Sgt. Mark Ptaszek said McGuire had rented space at the Michigan Association of Gift Salesman in Northville and had been drinking there earlier in the evening of July 8.

"The only thing left to determine right now is where McGuire got on the highway and we don't know if we'll ever determine that," Ptaszek said.

Police found other debris on M-14 indicating McGuire had sideswiped a car before hitting the car driven by Rev. Brian Roworth, of Toledo, OH.

School legals

The Plymouth-Canton School Board designated which local newspapers will be used for legal notices in action on the board's annual organizational meeting this month.

The Community Crier, the board decided by a 7-0 vote, will be used to publish the minutes of the board of education meetings, the annual financial and statistical report of the district, and any notices of invitation to bid. These legals represent the bulk of the board's routine advertisements.

The Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers were chosen by the board for notice of last day of registration, notice of school election, and notice of budget hearings.

The board voted that the Michigan Bond Buyer, the Michigan Investor and/or the Observer Newspapers may be used for notice on bond and tax anticipation notes.

Any legal notices requesting bids for major renovations, additions and construction should be published in the Builders Exchange of Detroit and Michigan or Dodge Reports.

State law requires that all municipal bodies annually choose the publication or publications they plan to run legal ads in.

More failures

Against All Odds?
In our community this may be more than the title of a summer movie playing at the Penn Theatre - it could be the theme of the Plymouth Canton Schools millage increase campaigns.

Superintendent Dr. John Hoben told the school board that Plymouth-Canton was not alone in experiencing a millage defeat this spring.

According to statistics released on the 400 school millage elections held in Michigan during the first half of this year, only 38 per cent of new millage requests passed.

Hoben said 97 per cent of all renewals passed and 53 per cent of renewal-new millage packages passed.

New group forms
Young Repubs to hit area

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT
An old adage states that those seeking the rewards and glories of public office must first pay their political dues.

For some - like Plymouth Township's Steve Ragan - that means entering the world of campaigns and compromise at a relatively young age.

Ragan is organizing a young Republicans' club in the Plymouth area and offering an opportunity for those with an interest in politics, to get involved.

Ragan said he hopes the organization would function as a community service group in addition to its political work. He would like to build the existing, loosely organized area group of 25 or so young party volunteers into a more permanent club.

"We're trying to set up an organization that will stick around after the '84 election," said Ragan, whose name is pronounced the same way as another high ranking party member and current president.

Ragan 18, is already somewhat of a political veteran, having worked the campaign of unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate Richard Headlee in 1982. It is Headlee who first wetted Ragan's political appetite.

He attended the state Republican convention in 1982 and campaigned for a successful youth candidate for party office there. He worked for U.S. Senate candidate Jack Lousma's campaign in Ann Arbor while attending the University of Michigan this year.

Ragan is now campaign manager for Robert Maynes, a state representative candidate in the 35th district. He is also third vice-chair of the 2nd Congressional District's Republican Party. That seat is reserved for youth representatives and along with it comes the responsibility of organizing a young Republican Club.

The last two years has seen more emphasis and support given to recruiting young members as part of "a grass roots effort" within the Republican Party in Wayne County, Ragan said. That effort makes political sense, he said.

"We (young party members) provide the numbers of people who go out door-to-door campaigning," Ragan explained. "Door-to-door efforts need hundreds - maybe thousands - of people. The only place to get that many people is from college campuses."

Ragan said young party members have usually been divided into teenage, college and young Republican clubs. The group he is trying to form is open any and all in those age groups, he said.

Ragan graduated last year from Canton High School and is studying economics and history at U of M.

He says his peers are as active politically as the youth of the 1960s.

"We've got activists but it's a more realistic form of activism than it was in the 60s." Young Republicans generally accept the party including its limitations and are willing to work "within the party structure."

Youthful Republicans are often more flexible than older members, Ragan said.

"Because we're young and coming up in a different time, we're more accepting of change." He mentioned issues like the equal rights amendment as an example. Young people have grown up accepting equal rights while older party members have not, he said.

Young Republicans are not always given the responsibility or utilized within the party as well as they could be, Ragan said. He cited a decision by Lousma campaign officials to spend thousands of dollars on a media campaign. Ragan said the money would have been better used to organize young campaign volunteers to conduct grassroots or door-to-door efforts.

 department in Sterlini's absence. Sterlini continued to receive her regular pay as an elected official during this absence.

Neither Setlock, other employes in the treasurer's office nor township officials heard from Sterlini during her 60-day leave. Part of that leave was spent in Greece.

Sterlini did not return to office in mid-June although her 60-day leave had expired by then. Personnel Director Daniel Durack said board members voted to keep Setlock's salary at its new level until the treasurer returned to her full duties as treasurer.

"The question is what happens now, now that Maria (Sterlini) is back in office on a part-time basis," Durack said. Durack said the treasurer had not communicated with him on her plans for office, but he had been told Sterlini's doctor approved her working part-time in the treasurer's office "a couple hours a day." Durack did not mention knowledge of Sterlini's Monday announcement.

"Nothing has changed with Sandy Setlock's salary," Durack said, "and I suppose it will be on the agenda for the next township meeting. My guess is that the board will keep Setlock's salary at this status quo until the treasurer is working more regular hours."

Canton Supervisor James Poole said Sterlini has not talked to him of her plans license," Suter said. "Now the health department was different mechanisms to make sure everything meets code."

Larry Payne, a representative with the Department of Public Health said the Dion sale application will take 90 days to process. It was received by the state on June 4.

Payne said the department examines all aspects of the facility's sale which would have an impact on its health care costs in the community.

"The Dion application doesn't look like there will be any changes at all," Payne said. "The facility will remain the same, with no new beds added. The fee schedule for the facility has already been submitted and is in the process of being reviewed."

Suter said management of the facility will not change much as a result of the sale. "I am 99.9 per cent sure that the same people who are working here now will be kept on to work at the facility after the sale," he said. "I think the union contract here says the union goes along with the sale of the facility."

Only Albert Kahn's architecture will remain when prisoners are gone

The paint on the walls of a room labeled "Board of Directors" is peeling and chipped. Photographs of Detroit Mayor Coleman Young hang from the walls. One, a portrait, looks about eight years old, and shows Mayor Young smiling, while another, shows the mayor facing the microphones and note pads of a handful of reporters.

This is the Detroit House of Corrections, a City of Detroit institution in the middle of the farmlands and hills of Five Mile Road in Plymouth Township.

It was designed by Albert Kahn, an architect who created dozens of fine structures in Detroit, including the Fisher Building. It was built in 1927 and its days are numbered.

DeHoCo Director (the prisoners call him warden) Emmett R. Baylor Jr., was appointed to his position by Young in 1977. He gave me a tour of the place last week.

When I was there, the inmate population was 902. It could hold 1200, Baylor says.

DeHoCo is a minimum security prison and all inmates are serving terms of a year or less. They were convicted of crimes like sexual assault, larceny, and burglary, Baylor says.

DeHoCo's maximum security prisoners are housed in a large, open rooms enclosed with bars. There is a television, a few tables and dozens of cots and the men sleep, watch television or just sit staring blankly. The ward has a strong and stale smell. There are no windows. Their outdoor opportunities are limited.

As Baylor approaches the wards, inmates stare at him curiously. They all seem to know him. Some approach him with queries, mostly about their sentences.

"I always try to have time for them, to listen to what they have to say," Baylor says.

He points to a man sleeping on a cot and tells a prisoner to wake him. The prisoner kicks the cot a few times. The man gets up and comes to the bars to speak with the warden.

Baylor asks the man about some injuries he has and the man lifts his shirt and reveals his pocked chest. The marks are remnants of shotgun pellets which wounded him as he and three other inmates tried to climb an outer fence and escape three weeks ago.

Three of the prisoners were shot and one slipped past the guards but was caught hours later.

Baylor says word had spread among the prisoners that guards' who supervised the exercise yard had shotguns loaded with harmless ammunition.

But after an escape from the yard last year, Baylor changed the load to more powerful birdshot.

"It'll sting them and knock them down, but I don't want to kill them," Baylor explained. It was birdshot, he says, which knocked the three prisoners off the fence in the most recent escape attempt.

He said the prisoners now know the the guards carry more powerful ammunition.

Homosexuals are separated from other DeHoCo prisoners. They are housed together in a group of cells as are prisoners considered most dangerous are also segregated and from others.

The minimum security prisoners within DeHoCo are called trustees. They live and roam freely in the day in a fenced compound and sleep in barracks-like buildings. There is a church, a greenhouse, school and gym there. Trustees can work in electronics, wood and motor shops. Equipment in the compound varies from ancient-looking machinery to a new Apple computer - still in its box - that had been delivered to the school.

Plans are being drawn up to transfer some prisoners to the new county jail near Detroit's Greektown. The county is currently negotiating the plan with the City of Detroit.

Prisoners were aware of the plans and asked Baylor about them.

"Warden, when are we goin' to Detroit?"

"How many days you got left?" Baylor asked in return.

"Thirty days."

"Well, you'll be outta here before you get a chance to go to Detroit."

It may take more than 30 days, but DeHoCo's days are numbered.

Why no transvestites for Miss Plymouth-Canton?

Well, well, well...

The search is on. The Plymouth-Canton Community is going to sponsor a beauty contest to find the perfect Miss Plymouth-Canton for 1984. Drag queens, transvestites, unwed mothers under the age of 26 and young divorcees older than 17 need not apply, however. You're not the stuff of which an appropriate Miss Plymouth-Canton is made.

Understand, that's not my judgement. I'm not qualified to make a decision on who is or isn't an appropriate candidate for a beauty competition. Beauty more than skin deep has always been a popular school of thought with me and in general, the idea of judging one's merits on the basis of appearance lacks sensitivity, ethical quality and tact.

But those in charge of this competition, the Miss Plymouth-Canton Pageant for 1984, have clearly conceived an image which sharply defines what a contestant should and shouldn't be. Among other things, hopefuls seeking this shallow title must:

- Not be older than 26 or younger than 17.
- Not be married and never have been married.
- Not be pregnant and never have been pregnant.
- Not be anything but a female, and never have been anything but a female.

It isn't difficult to picture the Miss Plymouth-Canton these judges have already drummed up in their minds. "Five foot two, eyes of blue, brown hair, well... we'll take you, too..."

The implications of such "requirements" are appalling. The sponsors of this competition would have done as well to require that all contestants be free of warts, body odor and communicable diseases.

A scholarship will be awarded to the winner of this contest. I hold nothing against the woman who walks away with the prize. Someone other than the sponsors somewhere should benefit from contests such as these.

How unfortunate, however, that her individuality was reduced to calculated numbers and the scrutiny of those who spent an hour with her searching for flaws and weaknesses.

And how unfortunate for the rest of The Plymouth-Canton Community that such gross discrimination and elitist thinking is tolerated in the name of "real" beauty.

Fife and Drum Corps represents community

EDITOR:

What an honor! During our vacation in Maryland, we went to Washington, D.C. to visit the Vietnam Memorial. As we approached the memorial we could hear and see a marching fife and drum corp.

When we were close enough to see the banner, we were delighted to find that it was our own Plymouth Fife and Drum Corp paying tribute to the Vietnam Veterans. Their precision timing and somber beat, brought tears to our eyes as they saluted, in a very fitting military formation, the soldiers whose names were engraved on the monument.

The commanding performance also attracted awe and respect from the many other visitors.

In our opinion, no other marching band could have paid such a dignified and moving tribute to those brave souls. To see such a disciplined performance from our local group of young people instills great pride in us. The fact that the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps consistently performs excellently in marching competitions nationwide indicates that these young people have a great deal of talent and pride in themselves. Since they represent our city in such a fine manner, we as a community, should be proud also.

We feel that our local merchants and community members should view the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps as an asset to our city and be more supportive in their endeavors to represent our city in other parts of the country. We shouldn't leave this financial burden as a deterrent to future members.

Unsolicited Remarks

By Rachael Dolson

Is there anybody I'm not picking on here?

Some folks have been questioning Gerry Ferraro's qualifications to be vice president of the United States. I won't even dignify that with a response.

But closer to home ...

I think we loyal Detroit Free Press readers should be more concerned about the qualifications of sports columnist Mike Downey to write about the Democratic National convention.

What is this, a trick to get those couch potatoes who only read sports to 'accidentally' learn the political score? Will Mondale and Hart play squash when this is all over?

I'd hate to think the Freep is getting down to its last dollar and since Downey was already out there covering the All Star Game ...

The guy's a good columnist ... but would William F. Buckley Jr. be caught dead in a locker room?

Moving even closer to home ...

Let's take a few minutes to review some of the qualifications and reputed qualifications of politicians popping up in The Plymouth Canton Community.

My hands-down favorite so far is 35th District Court judge candidate Jacqueline George. Among her 'qualifications' is that she says she will take a hard stand on drug racketeering and animal neglect.

I've seen only one animal neglect case on the police blotter since I came here, and have yet to see any dastardly animal abusers brought before the court.

As for 'racketeering' -- that general goes with 12 kilos of cocaine, guys in flashy suits with machine guns in their violin cases, and guys in 'conservative suits' saying: "This is the FBI, we have you surrounded."

Everybody knows they try all those cases downtown so the Freep can cover it easier. (Seriously, there is a limit to the jurisdiction of the district court. Most serious felonies and even some high misdemeanors are bound over to Circuit Court.)

Enough on George, I think she sealed her own fate when she printed her fundraising literature with a cartoon and slogan 'Be patient - God isn't finished with me yet.'

Let's move to the 'law and disorder' candidate Robert E. Greenstein (also a hopeful 35th district judge candidate). Among his qualifications, according to his ads and literature, is judge of Canton Township. Makes him sound pretty qualified, right? Actually, he was a magistrate back before the 35th was all consolidated at the Dunbar Davis Hall of Justice.

Technically, a magistrate is a judge in the generic sense. Just as technically Carol Teegardin writes 'journalist' under occupation on her tax forms.

With Malice Toward None

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

When the voters in the City of Plymouth adopted a tax millage limitation of 15 mills on Oct. 15, 1951, they had no way of knowing what was ahead.

Changes in the law have allowed Michigan cities to add other items above and beyond the millage limitation. Thus, in effect, Plymouth taxpayers have been given tax hikes beyond the limitation.

According to the City's newsletter -- an organ dedicated to puffing the City officials -- now even legal expenses of .45 mills have joined the ranks of garbage collection, library expenses and bonded indebtedness as special costs not limited by the City Charter's millage ceiling.

The net effect is that where City voters once thought 15 mills was all they'd pay, they now shell out a total of 18.16 mills. (This includes 1.7675 for debt service, 2.1331 for garbage collection, 1.0 for the library and .45 for legal costs including settlement of a sex discrimination suit against the City's police department.)

Supposedly, taxpayers are to be lulled into thinking the remaining 12.8192 mills levied for general operating expenses is a level far below the millage limitation originally approved by voters.

Will the laws be changed to exempt snow removal, fire protection and city manager salaries from the limitation as well?

All sales are final...

Convicted of P-C teacher slaying

Couple gets life for murder

A Ypsilanti couple convicted of the first degree murder of a Plymouth-Canton school teacher were sentenced to life imprisonment Friday by a Washtenaw County Circuit Court judge.

Machelle Pearson, 17, and Riccardo Hart, 21, were both earlier convicted of first degree murder in the death of Nancy Faber, an Ann Arbor resident and speech pathologist for the Plymouth-Canton schools. Both were sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder.

Judge Ross Campbell of the Washtenaw County Circuit Court sentenced the pair to life for Faber's murder. Campbell also sentenced the pair to 20 to 40 years for armed robbery and two years for possession of a firearm while committing a felony. All three sentences are to be served consecutively by both Pearson and Hart.

Faber, 39, died after being shot Nov. 22 near the Kroger store at Plymouth and Green Roads in Ann Arbor. Faber was shot at close range with a handgun and robbed. She died three days later without regaining consciousness. She was the wife of Don Faber, chief editorial writer for the Ann Arbor News and the mother of two children.

Canton's prepared for worst

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

When it comes to disasters in Canton Township, Supervisor James E. Poole comes first. And following closely on his heels are Clerk John Flodin, Finance Director Mike Gorman and Police Chief Jerry Cox.

That's the governmental line of succession approved by the Canton Township Board recently which will go into effect if a natural or manmade disaster strikes the township.

The governmental line of succession was only one part of an updated emergency preparedness plan which Cox submitted to the Canton Board of Trustees for approval. The original plan, based upon emergency preparedness standards established by the state and federal government, was adopted by the township in 1978 under federal act 113.

Terry Carroll, grants coordinator for Canton, said the township's emergency preparedness plan establishes a way to mobilize all of the community's resources should a natural or manmade disaster occur. The plan also gives authority to department staff members to make communities will relocate to rural parts of the country away from urban centers most likely to be the targets of nuclear warfare. Canton's plan calls for a mass exodus to Indiana in case of nuclear attack. Canton is considered to be within strike range of a nuclear attack because of its proximity to Detroit and the Enrico Fermi II Nuclear Power Plant in Monroe.

• A mass movement of people away from Canton will be successful.

Cox said, however, that such factors may be unrealistic in light of the fact that ships stationed off the coast of Florida could hit all parts of the United States with nuclear missiles.

Cox said some parts of the plan are already being used to encourage better emergency preparedness management in Canton. A radio activated tornado warning system has been approved by the Canton Township Board and will be in operation in the township within the next year.

Cox said the plan has also outlined where more tornado sirens in the township are needed and he would like to phase in the cost of more sirens into the emergency preparedness budget over the next few years.

"People never really think about emergency preparedness plans until they need one ..."

decisions in the township until the governmental officials can be called together.

Carroll said Canton receives funding through the Federal Emergency Management Agency for maintaining an emergency preparedness plan. But funding is not the only reason the plan is maintained in Canton.

"People never really think about emergency preparedness plans until they need one and realize how smoothly operations are going," said Cox. Cox has acted as coordinator of the plan since 1978. "There is a lot that goes into this. I spend at least 20 hours a week on emergency preparedness above and beyond the 40 hours I put in as police chief."

Canton's emergency preparedness plan deals with such disasters as nuclear holocaust, chemical warfare, toxic waste contamination, fires and arsons, epidemics, storms and loss of utilities and civil disturbances.

Specific parts of the plan define an emergency situation, outline who is to take charge should that emergency arise, outline which duties and responsibilities fall to which individuals overseeing the situation and identify township regulations, liabilities and penalties.

Cox said the emergency preparedness plan Canton has adopted is based on three factors:

• The United States will know three days in advance that a country is preparing for nuclear attack.

• Within that three day time frame,

Canton's emergency preparedness plan places Poole at the helm of the township when a natural or manmade disaster occurs. Poole's alternate is Flodin. Cox is the coordinator of the plan, and Chief Building Official Aaron Machnik is his alternate.

Fire Chief Melvin Paulun will handle fire and rescue operations with Art Winkel acting as his alternate. Public information on the situation, under Canton's document, will be handled by Mike Gorman with head librarian Debbie O'Connor acting as his alternate.

Police services will be handled by Lieutenant Larry Stewart of the Canton Police; his alternate will be Sergeant Alex Wilson. Public Works officers will be headed up by Jake Dingeldey with Joe Teramino acting as an alternate.

Personnel Director Daniel Durack will act as resource liaison while Machnik will assess damage to the township. An alternative damage assessment officer is Al Adams.

Canton Recreation Supervisor Mike Gouin will handle shelter operations; Bob Dates will act as his alternate. And the disaster assistance center will be run by Carroll with Tim McCurley acting in his absence.

Cox said Canton is given an amount equal to about 12 and a half per cent of his annual salary every year through the federal government to maintain the emergency preparedness plan. "This equates roughly to $1,300 to $1,500 per quarter for Canton," Cox said.

A 1983 emergency preparedness budget of approximately $25,000 was slated for the purchase of additional tornado sirens on the western portion of the township.

Readers skate through books

Looking for a way to encourage your children to get into the swing of summer reading?

The Canton Public Library will again sponsor its annual Summer Reading Club this year and children in grades one through eight are encouraged to participate.

The Reading Club is not a contest, library personnel said. It is a program designed to encourage children to continue reading throughout the summer. Children are asked to select and read library books on their reading level.

The children are not required to read a certain number of books, but a certificate is presented to those who read five or more. To add to the fun of the club, contests, prizes and programs will also be offered.

A final party for those who participated in the Club will be held Aug. 7 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Skatin' Station. The party is being sponsored by the Canton Kiwanis Club and permission slips to attend are due at the Canton Public Library, located on the third floor of Canton-Township Hall, Aug. 4 at 5 p.m.

No Charlie here Bob works eatery broaster

You probably think someone named Charlie opened Chicken Charlie's restaurant at 560 Ann Arbor Road.

Well, you're wrong.

Sixteen-year Plymouth Township resident Bob Kwasny says he opened Chicken Charlie's "by accident." No, the name wasn't an accident, going into business himself was.

Kwasny said he had originally bought the former Burger King building as an investment and he had plans to lease it out. But instead he decided to take his experience and knowledge of the food industry and become self-employed.

He thought of the restaurant name one night and by the next night had made a rough sketch of the sign. Chicken Charlie's is not part of a chain, he said.

Kwasny developed all the recipes for Chicken Charlie's himself. He has been in the food and food-related industry for 28 years, he said, since he was a 15-year-old taking classes in the commercial food program at Chadsey High in Detroit.

He was trained by Herman Breithaupt, father of Schoolcraft culinary arts program's Bob Breithaupt, and worked in several Detroit area hotels and restaurants.

Kwasny also worked as a sales representative for two national food distributors.

Kwasny and his wife Donna have chosen 'broasting' as the preferred method to prepare the chicken at Charlie's. "Our chicken is prepared in special new equipment," he said.

"The broaster injects heat units instantaneously, sears the chicken, seals in all flavorful natural juices, and cooks to the bone in seven minutes," he said.

Pure vegetable shortening is used in the broasters, making the chicken lower in cholesterol and not as greasy as some other brands.

Besides the fowl, Charlie's serves ribs and broasted cod. And for dessert - Le Dip ice cream cookies in three flavors cappuchino (coffee ice cream with raisin cookies), two tone (chocolate and vanilla ice cream on a chocolate chip cookie) and fudge royal (chocolate on a chocolate chip cookie).

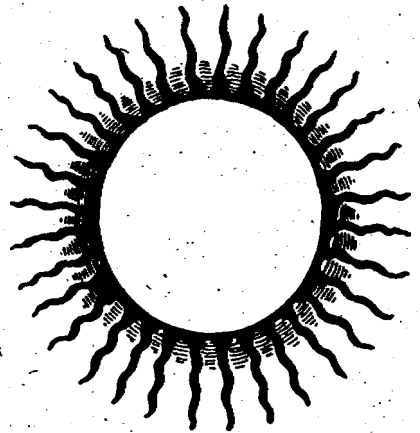

Kwasny said he is in the process of planning a special weeken grand opening celebration. He said he has had much assistance from the local government and others in the community.

Tanning salon opens in Canton

If you're worried about your tan lines this year, the Sunriser Tanning Salon may have just the answer to your woes.

The Sunriser is a new tanning salon located at 41677 Ford Road in the Rose Shores Racquet Club. The salon, opened this past spring by long-time Plymouth-Canton resident Kathie Zelek came about as the result of Zelek's own love for body-bronzing rays.

Zelek had been going to another tanning salon in the area for over a year when she decided Plymouth-Canton residents could benefit from another suntan distributor. Zelek said she chose the Rose Shores Racquet Club as a location "because health oriented people go to the racquet club."

Zelek's business includes four tanning booths and a facial tanner. Her tanning lights "are softer than the sun and less time consuming.

"In four to six half hour sessions a person will get a beautiful tan," Zelek said. "Just a few minutes a week will maintain the tan all year round."

Zelek is a member of the Canton Rotary Anns and the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

P-C School Board splits school funds among local banks

The Plymouth Canton School Board chose banking institutions -including two local financial institutions - to keep the school funds and transact financial business for the schools.

Money in the schools' general operating fund will be banked with First of America - Plymouth; National Bank of Detroit - Commerce; National Bank of Detroit; and National Bank of Detroit - Troy.

The payroll account for the schools will be kept at National Bank of Detroit, as will the smaller accounts of revolving fund and Nichols Trust Fund.

Community Federal Credit Union will be the banking institution for the cafeteria fund and will also handle school deposits to the general operating fund.

The debt retirement fund for bond issues of 1967, 1968, 1969, and 1974 will be held at Michigan National Bank.

The activity funds will be banked at First of America - Plymouth.

All money not being used immediately by the schools is to be invested in bonds and notes of the United States, certificates of deposit from banks and credit unions, and commerical paper rate prime and maturing not more than nine months from date of purchase.

Resident opens treatment center

Marcia Anderson, a 20-year Plymouth resident, has opened a mental health and substance abuse treatment center at the Renaissance Center. Anderson is a registered nurse and has a doctorate degree also.

Her company, Personalized Care, is staffed by master and doctorally prepared nurses who are certified mental health, specialists and licensed substance abuse counselors.

The program is licensed by the Michigan Department of Public Health Office of Substance Abuse Services. Many insurance companies cover the services offered by Personalized Care.

The nurses use a research-tested treatment plan called "personalized nursing" to assist clients in decreasing perceived stress and abuse of alcohol and drugs (if necessary) and to increase the client's sense of well being.

Anderson was recently invited to the National Institute of Drug Abuse to present the treatment plan at a government-sponsored conference in Washington, D.C.

Clients often report an immediate improved sense of well being with Personalized Care, Anderson said.

Several new nurses have been trained in the special techniques of Personalized Nursing and are currently actively seeking additional clients, Anderson said.

Personalized Care is located in the Renaissance Center; its phone number is 446-6811.

New Name for Plymouth Hobby

Plymouth Hobby has changed its name to Plymouth Hobby and Video Home Movies and - you guessed it - added a new line of rental home movies.

The hobby shop, located at 22 Forest Place, has a new owner, John Aversa. Aversa has some new ideas and new types of merchandise to bring to the store.

Aversa is semi-retired, he says, and has been involved in hobbies for 25 years.

His biggest change will be the addition of home movie rentals. The shop will carry movies suitable for family viewing, such as "Shogun," "Private Benjamin," and James Bond movies.

"I have great expectations ... to build this place up," Aversa said.

Plymouth Hobby and Video will stock a large selection of ships, planes, cars and fantasy games, he said. At Christmas time other toys and games will be added to the product line.

Sheep farmer, Moore, 88, dies in Plymouth

Different people will probably remember Clarence E. Moore different ways. Some will remember him as Plymouth's sheep farmer, others as a seller of fruitcakes and still others as a woodworker who helped craft the replica of Main Street in the Plymouth Historical Museum.

Mr. Moore, 88, died July 1 in Plymouth. Funeral services were private and family visitation was held July 12 at the Schrader Funeral Home.

Survivors include Mr. Moore's wife Lulu, son Richard and daughter Helen Hopkins, all of Plymouth. Other survivors include sister Beatrice Doty of Newton, NJ., brother Russell J. Moore of Fort Pierce, FL., four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

"He had many diverse talents and anything he did he put his whole heart into," said Helen Hopkins, Mr. Moore's daughter.

Mr. Moore bought seven acres of farmland on Burroughs Street in Plymouth 35 years ago. He began raising sheep on the land, adding chickens and an orchard. The sheep farm still exists on the street.

CLARENCE E. MOORE

Mrs. Hopkins said her father put in full days tending the sheep, livestock and orchard through last year.

"He was raised on a farm in New Jersey and always loved the animals and gradenting. He used to share the fruits and vegetables with neighbors, too."

"Because of his love for sheep, he went to Australia," Mrs. Hopkins said. "He was interested in seeing sheep farms there."

Mr. Moore was invited to come to Plymouth in 1932 to help start the business that became Plymouth Stamping. Plymouth Stamping is still in operation and located on Ann Arbor Road. Mr. Moore retired from the business in 1963.

He was a life member and past president of the Plymouth Kiwanis Club. Mr. Moore was known among the Kiwanis for selling more fruitcakes - which were sold as fundraisers by the club. He joined the Kiwanis in 1937 and was honored as citizen of the year in 1979 by the club, Mrs. Hopkins said.

Mr. Moore was conceived the idea of the Plymouth Hall of Fame and was inducted as one of its first members, Hopkins added.

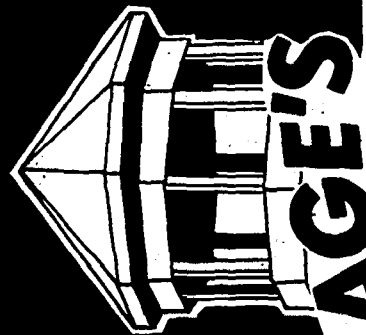

Mr. Moore was a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, a former board member of the Salvation Army and a member for 24 years of the Plymouth Credit Union Board. He was a member of the Charter Revision Board and the Cemetery Board of Riverside Cemetery.

Mr. Moore was also a member and past president of the Plymouth Historical Society. He used his skills as a carpenter to help craft the replica of Plymouth's Main Street that sits in the Plymouth Historical Museum.

"The general store at the end of Main Street (in the museum) is named for him," Hopkins said.

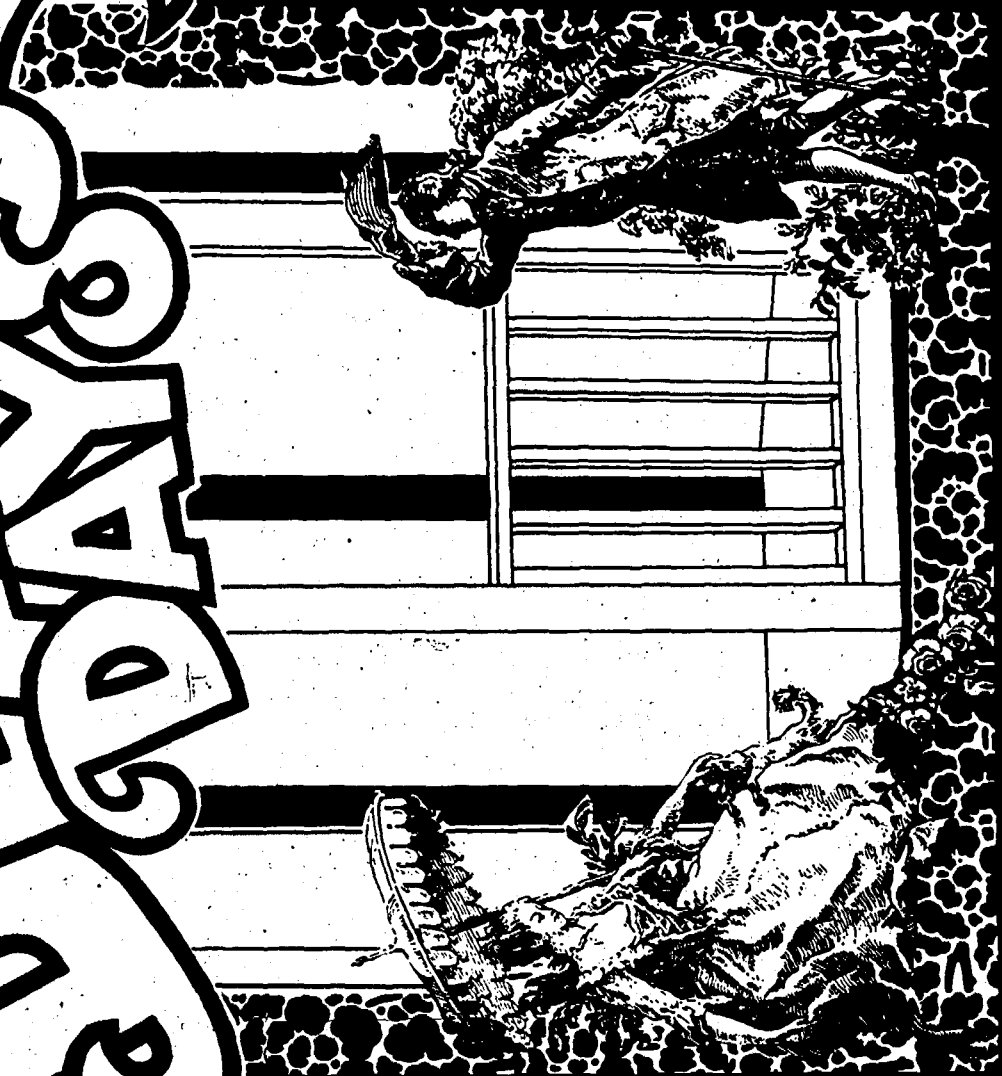

The family asks that memorial contributions be given to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, the Plymouth Historical Society, the Plymouth Evening Kiwanis or the Salvation Army.

The year of the road myth?

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Well... it's 1984 - Chinese year of the rat and Canton Township year of mythological Sheldon Center Road.

If the name sounds vaguely familiar to you then you're ahead of the game because Sheldon Center is one road which may not appear on the Canton landscape for some time.

Sheldon Center Road is a planned expanse of Wayne County highway which has been in the making for the past 21 years. The road, if built, would connect Sheldon and Canton Center roads in a wide S-shaped ribbon of two-lane concrete.

Although a 1978 consent agreement signed between the Wayne County Road Commission, Canton Township and a private subdivision company called for construction of the road to begin in 1984, commission representatives say the road has not been designed yet and they will not meet this deadline. The agreement states Wayne County will lose its right-of-way access to property involved in construction by 1985 if road construction is not started in 1984.

"We were supposed to begin design on the road this year and have it constructed by next year," Alan Richardson, assistant director of transportation at the Road Commission said. "But it looks like we're going to be late. I don't know what that's going to do to the consent agreement."

Richardson said the Road Commission could not meet its obligation to the agreement because of a manpower shortage. "We're had a lot of people retire from the commission," he said. "Given the current manpower situation, I have no idea when this project will get started."

MacDonald endorsed by 3

Northville Township Supervisor John MacDonald, a candidate for 35th District judge in The Plymouth-Canton Community, has received political endorsement from Congressman Carl Pursell (R-2nd District).

MacDonald has also received endorsements from Michigan Senator Robert Geake (R-6th District) and Michigan Representative Gerald Law (R-36th District).

Learn how to teach piano

Specialized training in piano teaching will be offered at Madonna College in Livonia this fall. A Piano Pedagogy Certification can be achieved by completing 33 semester hours in such areas as theory, applied piano, music history, piano pedagogy, and English composition.

This program is for prospective teachers who want training in piano teaching and certification without the four years of study toward a degree.

It also affords piano performance majors the opportunity to earn an additional certificate in piano teaching.

According to Sister Edith Marie, chairperson of Madonna's music department, performance and teaching are two different areas. "A pianist has to be a good performer to teach, but not every performer knows how to teach," she said.

Instructing the pedagogy courses will

"It's not permanently shelved," Richardson continued. "We recognize the obligation we have on this project, but there are a lot of things which we're committed to."

The consent agreement for Sheldon Center Road was signed Jan. 12, 1978. The agreement was the final outcome of a court case which involved property Sheldon Center Road will cross if constructed.

James Kosteva, former Canton planner, had earlier said Rescom, a private subdivision company owning land on Sheldon Road, would not relinquish right-of-way authorization to the county to put the road through. Kosteva said Canton and Wayne County refused to approve zoning for a new subdivision platt as a result of this refusal and the company took the case to court.

The cost of the road, which would feature T-intersections at Canton Center and Sheldon roads where the new road would intersect them and would also feature flare turn lanes, is unknown because the project has not been designed. Canton's share of the construction costs are also unknown, although the consent agreement does not bind the township to any charges the road might create.

"I have no idea when we're going to begin," Richardson said. "We have been in the process of securing a few right-of-way parcels needed for construction. We've been working with Canton on Haggerty Road and this project has taken a lot of our available manpower."

"I have no idea what the delay will do to the consent judgment - that's not my area," Richardson said. "I don't know if the other side (Rescom) will enter back into the agreement again or not," he said.

"I've known and worked with John (MacDonald) for 15 years," Pursell said in a press release. "During his 23 years as an attorney and in his tenure as Northville Supervisor, he has demonstrated the capabilities, temperment and high personal standards that will guarantee area residents the excellent caliber of judicial conduct that Judge Dunbar Davis has given the area."

be Linette Popoff, who has a bachelor's degree in music from Marygrove College, a master's degree from Eastern Michigan University, and has studied with Lawrence LaGore, Joseph Curt and trained at the Dorothy Taubman Institute of Piano in New York.

In this program, students will acquire the ability to teach beginning, intermediate and advanced level piano, and choose appropriate repertoire from baroque, classical, romantic, and contemporary literature, as well as evaluate piano method books.

For further information concerning the piano pedagogy certification, contact the music department at Madonna College, 591-5177.

Madonna College is a coeducational college offering bachelor's and master's degrees in some 40 career-oriented areas of study. It is located at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Polish dancing!

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Listen closely to the sounds of the next parade marching through The Plymouth-Canton Community and you may recognize the strains to a polka dance or two.

Look for the source of that music and you'll see whirling colors, smiling faces and the nimble feet of an entire army of local dancers who bring a piece of Poland to residents of The Plymouth-Canton Community every year.

The Centennial Dancers of Plymouth, a Polish ethnic dance troupe, have been performing authentic Polish folk dances in The Plymouth-Canton Community for the past five years. A popular organization from its inception, the Centennial Dancers of Plymouth has gained even more recognition recently and a growing membership in the group seems to assure this small piece of Poland will remain in the area for a long time.

DRESSED TO DANCE are: Elaine Ygeal, 15; Michelle Ygeal, 18; Denise Buda, 14; Juli Ygeal, 12; Karla Ygeal, 14; Shaunda Dale, 14.

The Centennial Dancers were started in September of 1979 through the efforts of Joanne Ygeal, the director for the group. Ygeal had been taking her daughter to Polish dance classes in Dearborn and thought a troupe could be very successful in the Plymouth-Canton-Northville area.

Ygeal found a teacher, started the group and had 60 young dancers ranging in age from four to 18 sign up for lessons the first year.

Chris Gniewek, assistant director and treasurer for the group said it took a lot for a teacher to come out to the area those first few years. But the interest of the group in learning how to dance authentically eventually attracted the interest of a mother-daughter teaching team. "The mother has been dancing for 35 years," Gniewek said.

Students who join the dance group are placed into one of several different troupes based on age and ability.

"We try to make the costumes as authentic as possible," Gniewek said. "We do use some different materials which are more practical in this country, like cotton instead of wools, but we look at pictures of actual costumes from the region to design the troupe costumes."

Although each dance troupe has a regional costume which members wear for certain dances, the entire club has a "trademark" costume which identifies the group as the Centennial Dancers in parades and festivals. For the girls, this costume consists of a ribbon skirt and flowered hair wreath. For the boys, the costume, called the "Gorlaski", consists of a vest and white pants covered with patches. The boys also carry a cane which they whirl about them while they dance.

Gniewek said more boys are participating in the Centennial Dance group because there are dances which concentrate specifically on routines performed by boys. "The dances are very athletic and involve a lot of jumping and leaping over canes. We have about 25 boys in the group right now," Gniewek said.

The Centennial Dancers have formed a performing troupe of 20 of their older students to appear at festivals and ethnic events throughout the state. This year the performing troupe will perform at a Houghton Lake Festival and have already performed at a Polish Festival held in Beayer. The performing troupe has also appeared at Cedar Point Amusement Park in Ohio and at other folk festivals in the area.

"We lose kids and gain kids every year in the group," Gniewek said. "But at least 50 of the kids who are in the group right now have been with us since it was first started five years ago.

"Most of the kids who participate in the Centennial Dancers are of Polish descent," Gniewek said. "but we do get other nationalities like Ukrainian and Hungarian as well. We've even gotten kids who dance Irish folk dances. They come to us because they say the Polish folk dancing has more pep."

In addition to Polish folk dancing, students in the Centennial Dancers also perform a contemporary dance number in their recital held annually in May.

Gniewek said the contemporary dancing helps to break up the routine of the folk dances and allows the kids to develop their own dance ideas.

The Centennial Dancers will be starting a new year of folk dancing in September. Tuition for the class is $60 for the year, with an initial $10 registration fee. The classes meet once a week September through May; students in the performing troupe practice for two hours a week.

Gniewek said students aged four through 18 are welcome to join the Centennial Dancers. For more information and registration call Gniewek after July 22 at 459-5696. Those who want to enroll their kids in the dance troupe may also contact Annette Roberts at 422-0563 after July 22.

tell it to Phyllis

These hot, muggy days of summer are about to get to most of us. It's too hot to move, it's too hot to sleep, in fact, it's too hot to do anything.

Those of us who don't have swimming pools envy our friends who have them. People who don't have air conditioning vow the next house or car they buy will have it. People who have air conditioning complain about the high cost of running it.

As you sit around thinking about all the things you should be doing but don't feel like it because of the heat, think of all the cold weather we had last winter. Remember the cold spell we had when most of the cars refused to start and those that did start slid around on ice covered streets? Remember complaining about having to wear three layers of clothes to keep from freezing to death? If we think about it, I'm sure there's not a person who didn't say, "I can't wait for the sun and warm weather of summer."

I guess we're just impossible to please. However, if you think about it, summer does have many advantages. Our lifestyles are more casual this time of year. Instead of fixing a big dinner, you can get away with simply throwing hot dogs or hamburgers on the grill. With the kids out of school and wearing shorts all day, there's less laundry to worry about. The best part is that everyone's schedules seem a little less hectic. We can find time for picnics and outdoor parties with friends.

It's time to quit complaining about the heat. Just think, by the end of next month the kids will be back in school and we'll all be wondering where those lazy, hazy days of summer went.

Her majors were in International Relations and Russian Studies. She has joined her husband, Second Lt. Curt Burnette in Aschaffenburg, West Germany and will begin graduate studies at the University of Heidelberg this fall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bennett of Northville Road, and is a 1981 graduate of Canton High School.

Students from Plymouth included on the Dean's List at Hillsdale College are: Jolene Curreri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Curreri of Sutherland is a graduate of Salem High School; Kevin Kral, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kral of Pacific is a graduate of Detroit Catholic Central; and Edward Peper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Peper of Suzan Court is a graduate of Divine Child High School.

Awards for the first session of the University of Michigan's All-State Program at Interlochen were announced at the closing concert of the Intermediate Orchestra on July 8. Meg Ruby of Plymouth won a scholarship to return to the All-State piano program next summer.

Jill Pedersen of Plymouth was included on the Lake Superior State College Dean's List for spring term.

Kathryn Rice, daughter of Ruth Wanserski of Sussex Drive in Canton, made the Dean's List at Central Michigan University.

Hot fires in hot temps.

FIRE PLAGUED the Plymouth-Canton Community last week. A fire on Nantucket St. completely destroyed a house July 10 (above) at approximately 12:45 p.m. Four firefighting vehicles were used to bring the blaze, which caused over $100,000 worth of damage, under control. Plymouth firefighters said defective electrical wiring caused the fire. Firefighters worked for an hour to control the flames; the family's pet dog died in the mishap. Another fire broke out at the Crown-Zellerbach factory (left) in Plymouth Township last Friday. Firefighters said some roofing materials being used by a contractor at the plant caught fire. Both the Plymouth and Plymouth Township Fire Departments responded to the alarm because of the paper products Crown-Zellerbach manufactures at the site, Plymouth Township Fire Chief Larry Groth said. The fire is still under investigation. (Crier photos by Chris Boyd)

Canton Mack suffers first loss of season

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

The string of seemingly never-ending Canton Elk victories came to an abrupt stop last week when an inconsistent but determined Ypsilanti team pulled the carpet out from underneath the Elks and handed them their first loss of the season.

"The kids' heads just weren't in the game," said Canton head coach Dave Racer. "I don't know if I'd say they really beat us because we pretty much beat ourselves. We gave it to them."

Ypsilanti, the home team this time, jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first. The first three batters they sent to the plate scored on two hits and a walk.

The Elks got one in the second when Tim Michalik walked, moved to second on a throwing error, and was brought in by Mark Bennetts' single.

The very next inning the Elks pulled within a run of the lead on Chris Parsons' solo shot, but fell behind by two once again when Ypsilanti scored one more time on two hits and a walk in the bottom half of the frame.

The last run either team was to push across the plate came when Cantons' Jeff Olsons' lead off blast that made the score 4-3.

John Rodgers went two and one-thirds innings before Dan Michaels entered in the third and threw the rest of the game. Michaels allowed only one hit in three and two-thirds innings.

The Elks found themselves in another tight game two days later against Bishop Borgess.

This time, they returned to their old habit, winning, as came out on top, 2-1.

Saturday, they won again against Southfield Lathrup, 5-2.

"I think we're going through a kind of midseason slump," said Racer. "It's been a long season and the kids are a little tired, but I'm sure it's nothing to worry about, they'll pick it up again."

Farmington out hits Salem Mack in slug fest

North Farmington tallied two runs in the top of the eighth inning to defeat the Salem Mickey Mantle squad, 18-17 in an extra-inning slugfest Saturday.

Rob Adams and Curt White had four hits apiece for Salem, which was down 14-5 at one point. Brian Tiller added three hits, including a home run and four runs.

Coach Scott Dawson, whose team fell to 7-8, said that lack of enthusiasm at times has been one of his squads biggest problems.

"The talent is there, and we can play with the better teams in the league," said Dawson. "But sometimes we come out and don't want to play. I know we could be up there at the top of the league."

On Friday, Salem edged Westland in an eight inning contest, 6-5.

Salem had a 5-1 advantage heading into the sixth inning, but Westland scored four runs in the top of that frame to tie it up.

In the top of the eighth, Salem scored what turned out to be the winning run. Shane Smith led off with a single and moved to third after the next batter walked and the following hitter bounced into a double-play. Smith then came home when Todd Robinson hit a hard ground ball to first base, which was booted by the first baseman.

Pitcher Brian Tiller went the distance for Salem and got the win.

Salem knocked off one of the top teams in the league on Thursday in beating Waterford, 7-5.

White had three hits for Salem, which included a home run. Dan Knapp pitched five innings and got the win.

Last Tuesday, Salem was trounced by Crestwood, 10-4.

Salem has two games remaining in the regular season before post-season play gets underway. The Salem squad will host Northville tonight at 6:30 p.m. and travel to Crestwood tomorrow at 6:30 p.m.

United girls fired up for Mid West tourney

Ten local girls and their teammates will try to bring home another title this weekend as the under-12 United team of the Bonanza league plays in the MidWest Regionals at Schoolcraft College.

Championship teams from 12 states will take part in the action. United is a select or Bonanza league team affiliated with the Western Suburban Soccer League. The team won a state cup in its age group last month and United coach Mike Morgan thinks his team will do well in this weekend's tournament.

"We expect strong competition," said Morgan who coaches the Canton High School soccer teams. "These are all championship teams. But we expect to do pretty well, too. It should be an interesting weekend."

Morgan said United finished first in its age group at the Midland Tournament and also won the Bonanza league championship, both this season. The team's record is 15-3-2.

Plymouth girls on the United team include: Kim Goff, Michelle Minton, Erin Morgan, Debra Pondant and Michelle Akers.

United players hailing from Canton include: Michelle Barta, Sara Hayes, Jennifer Juckaba, Rene Lancon and Jennifer Marshall.

The Stingers, another local Bonanza team, will compete in the Midwest Regionals. The Stingers are an under-13 girls team coached by Don Smith.

The Stinger are 26-5-1 and playing in an under-14 league. Last weekend the Stingers finished second in their age group in the Wolverine Soccer Tournament.

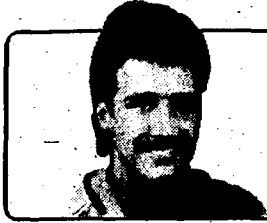

Think twice before calling high school athletes dumb

If you happen to play a sport or two during your high school career, you'll soon learn that there is a nametag hung around your neck that's as pleasant to wear as wool in the summer and as easy to remove as a pair of handcuffs:

Dumb jock.

primary hurlers as well as winning all-area honors at first base.

He also was a basketball standout. Bennett either lead or came in second in every one of his teams' scoring categories and broke all of Cantons assist records. Bennett will be attending Alma College

Just Thinkin'

By Mike McKenney

It's a stereotype that's as old as the Pollacks-are-stupid-and-inept myth, and in the case of many young athletes who excelled at sports as well as academics this year at C.E.P Park, just as absurd.

Having played one and a half years of varsity baseball and one year of junior varsity football, yours truly can say without a doubt, trying to keep your grades at an acceptable level while spending two, three or four hours a day perfecting your skills at the sport you are playing is no easy card trick.

After the practice-game is over and you find yourself slumped lifelessly against one of the cold tile walls of the second floor shower, there is still one decision left to be made.

You ask yourself, is it physically and mentally possible for me to drag the six encyclopedia-sized textbooks out of my bag, turn on my brain once again, and do my homework until one o'clock in the morning

There are those who just can't do it.

There are those who can sometimes do it.

However, there are also those who don't necessarily find it easy, but always seem to possess just enough stamina to pull themselves over the academic heartbreak hill and complete what needs to be done for their classes the next day.

In my two years at Salem high, I've not only had a chance to meet some of these multi-talented athletes, I've actually become good friends with a few of them. Ironically, they make those who believe in the dumb jock myth look even more ignorant than the character they perceive.

Mark Bennett, a 1984 Canton high school graduate, ended up in the top few academic percents of his class, and sported a whopping 3.7 grade point average.

Bennett played varsity baseball for two years, functioning as one of Canton's next year. Alma, a division III school, is not allowed to give out athletic scholarships under NCAA rules. I'm told Alma is an extraordinarily tough academic college.

Pat Walsh, who'll be a senior at Salem this fall, also combined homework with sports and came out a winner. Walsh played both varsity football and baseball and earned all-area honorable mentions at both. His grade point average was an admirable 3.83, and he scored 1,180 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. As Pat would say, "that's some kinda tough."

Linda Beale, another Canton High School graduate, was exceptional at almost everything she attempted. Besides becoming what many might call the best gymnast Canton has ever had, Beale also had a flair for academics. Over her four years at Canton, she worked for and received an incredible 3.97 grade point average, served as the vice-president of the National Honor Society, broke all of Canton's gymnastic records, and took sixth place in the balance beam at the state finals. Beale is planning to attend the University of Notre Dame this fall.

If those stats, scores, and honors won't change a few skeptical minds, nothing will.

Whether it is due to the community we live in, our educational system, or the parents that raise us, I couldn't say; but the output of academic-athletes seems to be on the rise.

If any of you never-say-die critics are still shaking your heads in disbelief, go right ahead, but keep this in mind:

The other day I asked a nine year-old baseball player who, if he could vote, he would want for president.

He stopped for a moment, looked up at the sky, and told me with a straight face that he was "pretty much undecided at the time" but felt it was "very obvious Reagan has a great advantage right now" because "the Democratic Party is very divided!"

Canton Soccer Club plans sign-up

The call is out for experienced triathlons to compete in a three-sport competition September 15 on Belle Isle in Detroit.

The course consists of a 25-mile bike race, a three mile canoe course and a 6.2-mile run and is open to men and women 18-years and older who have verifiable proof of having participated in other triathlons.

Cost is $15, the entry deadline is September 7 and the event is limited to 200 participants.

The event is sponsored by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan. Applications and information is available by calling 225-8421 weekdays.

Awards will be given to the top five male and female finishers in five age groups.

Crier ties em'

The Community Crier's pick-up softball team came from behind to tie 13-13 an equally shoddy looking team representing the Pernak family at Plymouth Township Park Sunday.

The Crier team was comprised entirely of locals while the Pernaks travelled from as far away as Ennis, Montana (good trout fishing waters). It's not clear to anyone why the Pernaks picked Plymouth Township as the site of their reunion.

Rock Tool forfeits, disputes call

THE ACTION GOT HOT and heavy Monday night in a slow pitch softball game between Plymouth Rock Saloon and Rock Tool at Massey Field. Rock Saloon eventually won the contest after the umpire call a forfeit in the seventyth inning. He said Rock Tool had made an illegal roster change. Rock Tool players said they would protest. Above: the two catchers face off as Tool catcher Craig Woolock prepares to tag Saloon catcher J. Baluck. Right: Saloon third baseman Wade tosses a runner out. (Crier photos by Chris Boyd)
