Canton city study completed

BY DAN NESS

A committee appointed to study the pros and cons of cityhood for Canton has completed its report, but committee members aren't revealing their recommendations--yet.

The city-status committee, Theodore Grabbe, Sandy Preblich, Henry Whalen and Diane Neihengen, were appointed in October after the Board of Trustees voted to look into the possibility of Canton becoming a city. David McDonald resigned as a committee-member during the study.

The committee will present its report and a recommendation either for or against cityhood to the board at the July 1 meeting, according to committee members.

"We're going to give the courtesy to the board to read it first," said Grabbe. "We should have it to the board by the deadline of June 30."

Grabbe said the report was a "lengthy document," that would probably be in excess of 50 pages when typed this week.

Committee members were in agreement that the issue of city status for Canton was more complicated than they thought. "We could have researched into October," with all the information they found, Preblich said. "It's not as cut and dried as I thought."

The committee held two public-input hearings for Canton residents, in which taxes and roads were the two main concerns, according to committee members. Most of the residents voicing their opinion at the hearings were opposed to Canton becoming a city.

During the study, the committee visited three townships and two cities in the state to make comparisons to Canton's situation. It also met with officials of the state transportation

Fireworks cancellation canceled by cars and suds

Local biz brightens the 4th

BY T.M. SMITH

The drawn out saga of The Plymouth-Canton fireworks has taken, what many hope, is its final twist. The July 4 aerial display has been rescheduled, after last minute money was donated last week.

One week ago the Plymouth Jaycees, organizers of the event, played its final chip and announced the fireworks were canceled because of lack of money. Complications, and the drop out of sponsors forced the Jaycees to call the show off.

Last Thursday, however, four area car dealers pitched in more than half of the $9,000 needed to get the show off the ground, and Coors Beer donated a similar amount to assure the show would happen.

Lowe said publicity of the cancellation was one of the main reasons sponsors were found at such a late hour.

"Once The Crier hit the streets on Wednesday the ball started rolling. I had calls Wednesday night, and by Thursday afternoon we had the money," Lowe said.

The four dealers who turned the show around include: Sunshine Honda, Don Massey Cadillac, Fox Hills Chrysler-Plymouth and Dick Scott Dodge and Buick. A late addition to the list was Hines Park Lincoln

Mercury Merkur.

Tom Bolander of Sunshine Honda said that he was surprised by the bad news a week ago and wanted to help change it.

"When I read that news in The Crier, I just thought it was terrible. We need fireworks, so I called the Jaycees and told them that we would get it going somehow," Bolander said.

Lowe agrees that it was the car dealers that really saved the show.

"They are the heroes of the day. The fact of the matter is, they paid for the show," Lowe said.

The other pleasant surprise is the fact Coors Beer reconsidered after refusing to sponsor the show, and pitched in "a substantial amount" for the show late last week.

Lowe said he isn't sure why the beer company, based out of Colorado changed its mind, but he said he isn't complaining.

Tim Nausler, the area manager for Coors, said the beer company decided to become a sponsor because nobody else had come forward.

As part of the arrangement with the car dealers, there will be a "car show" of sorts at Plymouth Township Park where the show will take place on July 4.

Lowe said he is looking forward to the show now that all the money is in place and all the plans made will now be able to carry through.

Those plans include:

•The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra playing before, during and after the fireworks, with a special choreographed selection to match the fireworks.

•Double the size of the fireworks that have been in the past.

•A special sound system for the show.

The show has been plagued by problems all year long, as promoters have had financial difficulties and have thought about canceling more than once.

This looks to be the final chapter of the saga.

Plymouthite signs up for write-in Local governor hopeful law-and-order candidate

BY DAVID PIERINI

Believe it or not.

The Plymouth-Canton Community can boast of having a gubernatorial candidate.

No joke, Michael Scott Wilson of Risman Drive in Plymouth Township, is serious.

Wilson could not be reached for comment but in a press release outlining his views, he said, "We're mad as hell and we're not going to take it anymore."

"Sound familiar? The above caption best illustrates my campaign as a write-in candidate for Governor in this year's gubernatorial election," Wilson wrote.

In his brochure entitled "Where I Stand," Wilson's platform involves Vietnam veterans, law and order, senior citizens, tax reform and health, education and welfare.

Wilson said that he's "naturally" biased when it comes to Vietnam vets and if elected, he'd create a state funded bill providing medical, educational, housing, small business loans and counseling services for all Vietnam vets.

He also said that veterans would be hired first when it comes to state funded jobs and that he would like to see a special Vietnam war memorial in Lansing.

"It's time the people, especially the politicians, quit blaming the Vietnam veterans for losing a war that was unjust, inhumane and undeclared," he said in the brochure.

Wilson said as governor, he would tighten up state laws on sentencing, calling for mandatory prison and jail sentences for crimes and the reinstatement of capital punishment for certain violent crimes.

"Why do our citizens have bars on their doors and windows? It shouldn't have to be this way, and when I'm elected governor -- it won't!"

Wilson said he'd also take care of senior citizens with the abolishment of property taxes for seniors aged 67 and over and free socialized medicine and health care.

Plymouth Chatham store to close doors in July

BY T.M. SMITH

The Chatham store on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township is one of six metro area Chathams that will close its doors for good July 26, the store manager said Monday.

The manager, who would not give his name, said his store received a letter from the parent company, Nu-Trax on Friday which informed him of the decision.

The manager said the Plymouth store employes about 30 people, and it is not known what future, if any, these people have with the company.

Nu-Trax is owned by a Flint supermarket chain, Hamady Bros. Food Markets Inc., with Alex Dandy chairman of both Hamady and Nu-Trax.

Dandy did not return repeated phone calls to respond to questions.

There are five other stores in the area which are slated to be closed at the same time as the Plymouth store, with stores in Northville, Livonia and Van Buren Township targeted.

Monday at the Plymouth Chatham work went on as usual, but workers were reluctant to talk about the situation.

He also said he'd like to see legislation which provides medical assistance to every Michigan citizen not covered under an insurance plan through work, legislation adopting school-prayer and legislation for "right to life" except in cases involving incest, rape, and when pregnancy could endanger the life of the mother.

His tax stand would call for lower property taxes, a five cent per gallon gasoline tax and an increase on tobacco and alcohol sales tax.

"We're mad as hell and we're not going to take it anymore."

--Gubernatorial candidate
Michael Scott Wilson

Wilson also supports casino gambling in Detroit and said he would like to see Sunday instituted as a "dry day" with sales of alcoholic beverages prohibited.

"It's now up to you on August 5. You can either support me with your vote, your protest vote or vote for one of the other candidates who are too busy right now to give your their political views because they're calling each other names."

Wednesday's storm knocked down these traffic signals at Geddes and Canton Center roads in Canton, while another storm Sunday nailed other utility poles in the community. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

Storm strikes area; utility poles downed

A quick storm blew through town Sunday night, leaving branches tossed about and a crosswalk pole at the corner of Penniman and Main down in the street.

Assistant DPW director Mark Hammer said the pole, which had a banner hanging over the street attached to it, was knocked down by the high winds about 3:30 in the afternoon. It landed in the street, but nobody was hurt, Hammer said.

"The banners we put up there have wind holes in them to let the air through, but when the winds come up that fast and that hard the banner just acts like a big wind sock," Hammer said.

Hammer said Edison will be replacing the pole, and the city will not be responsible to pay for the repair.

"We put a priority rush on this, so Edison should have it replaced very soon," he said.

Liquor commission cites local bar for violations

The owners of the Plymouth Rock Saloon, 8825 General Drive, in Plymouth Township, were fined $200 for two liquor violations by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission recently.

The bar was fined for allowing persons under 21 years of age to consume or possess alcoholic liquor on two instances. Plymouth Rock employees Kenneth A. Matthias and Tadd Vinson Hall were both named in the incidents for selling to minors.

Science Vermont style

Barbara M. Church, science coordinator for Plymouth-Canton Schools, has been accepted to the 1986 Institute for Development of Educational Activities, Inc.

The program, with a theme "Science for all Students," is co-sponsored by the National Science Teachers Assn. The Institute is held June 24-26 in Vermont.

The program offers expert advice from outstanding scientists and science educators, with an emphasis on science programs for elementary and secondary students who will not be entering science as a vocation.

Presenters at the program will include Don Herbert (alias "Mr. Wizard") and Harry Wong, a biology teacher from California.

Ceiling, lights approved for school

A new ceiling and hallway lighting system for East Middle School has been approved by the Plymouth-Canton School Board.

The P-C School Board unanimously approved the $27,511 purchase at its June 10 meeting. The winning bid was submitted by the Acoustic Ceiling and Partition Company of Ann Arbor. The cost will be charged to the 1986-87 operating budget.

Superintendent John M. Hoben said the move would bring East up to a "showcase" level. He said other general maintenance moves would also be done this summer at the school. Hoben cited a "negative morale" situation at East and said the moves could help.

Thomas Rose, purchasing agent for the district, said the work will be completed before school resumes next fall.

Twp explores new position

The Plymouth Township Board explored the possibility of installing an "Ordinance Enforcement Officer" who would be responsible to enforce all misdemeanor ordinances for the township, at its last meeting.

The board met Tuesday night to discuss the position, and to possibly establish it as an ordinance.

In the outlined ordinance, the position was described as a supplement officer to the enforcement authority granted to any other specific office, officer of individual.

Is this poster electioneering? Plymouth-Canton Schools officials say this is "informational," can be paid for with school funds and was legal to have near voting booths on election day. This poster was one of several made by the schools' architects which were displayed in schools during the bond issue campaign. Complaints were registered about this particular poster which was located near the Bird Elementary School voting booths on election day June 9. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

Posters raise questions

Tax $$$$ for bond?

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Did the Plymouth-Canton Community School District use tax dollars to campaign for passage of the recent bond issue?

"No," says Dick Egli, who heads community relations efforts for the schools.

But, he admits, "part of the information effort may have been construed that way."

Complaints about school politicking reported that pro-bond-issue posters were placed prominently near voting areas in some schools.

Bird Elementary (see accompanying photo) was one school where a poster was placed near the precinct area.

Both Egli and Sam Barresi, principal at Bird, said it may have appeared improper to have the poster there, but the poster was "informational."

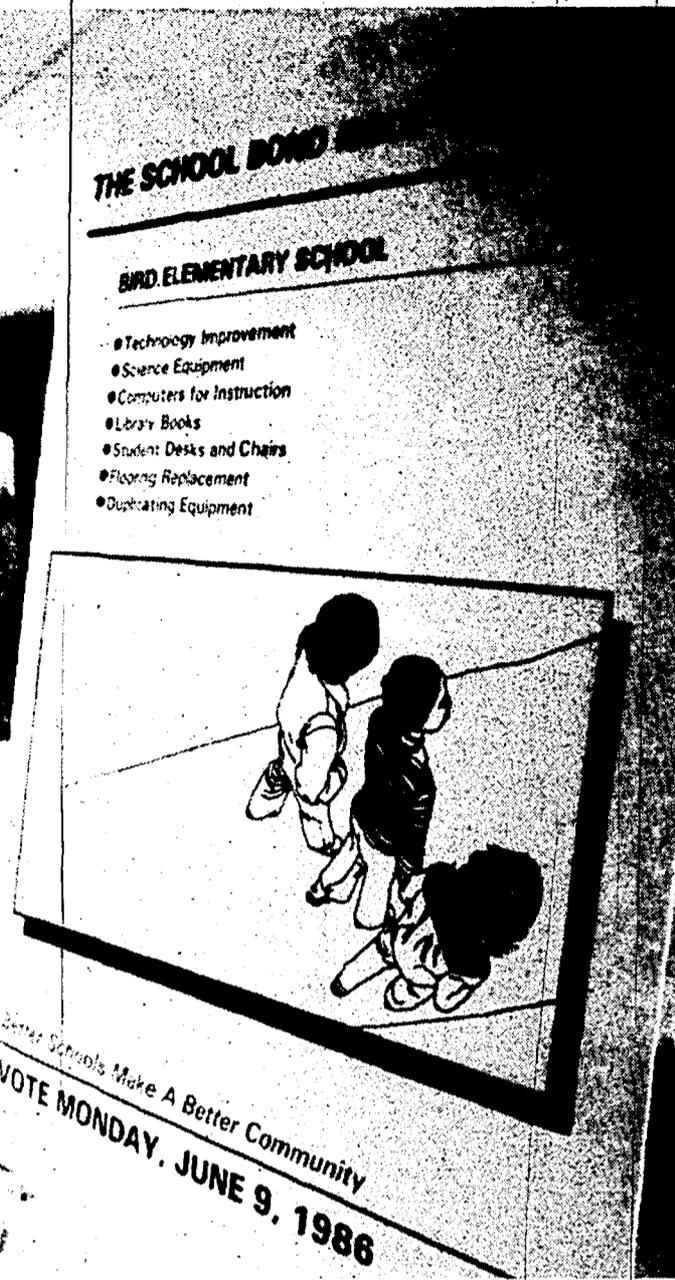

Was the poster electioneering?

"That was not our intent," Barresi said, explaining that the poster had been up in the schools for some time prior to election day June 9.

"In the confusion of the day, it was left there," the principal said.

Egli said the posters were prepared by Daverman and Associates, the proposed architects of the bond issue's building and renovation projects. Their cost -- estimated to be less than $500 but not yet billed -- will be covered by the school district.

He said the posters "are information" and can legally be paid for by the schools.

Phone calls "urging people to vote" -- but not how to vote -- were also made from school district phones, Egli said. A mix of calls were made, "some from schools and some from homes." The schools' central administration building was also used for phone calls according to Egli.

The schools' publicist said actual campaigning for a "yes" vote on the bond issue was actually done by a citizens committee headed by Steve Harper, a former school board member and head of the citizens' committee which studied the bond issue needs.

*"In the confusion of the day
it was left there."*

*--Bird Principal
Sam Barresi*

Harper said the committee spent less than $1,000 and that most of it went to mailing post-cards to voters identified as likely to vote "yes."

He said a complete financial report on the campaign would be available soon.

Community comes through with rockets blasting

Just when clouds were darkest, when all seemed lost and this year's fireworks were stamped 'canceled' The Plymouth-Canton Community came through.

The fireworks were saved by a melodramatic effort that stopped the skyrockets from fizzling out before they got started. It is an effort everyone should be proud of and thankful for.

After last week's decision by the Jaycees that the show would be aborted because of lack of money, four area car dealers rode in on white horses and saved the show with a group donation. One area dealer said he made the commitment after reading the unpleasant news of the cancellation in The Community Crier.

With that news, Coors Beer, which had decided earlier not to sponsor the event, changed its mind and offered support for the event. Within a matter of days after the Jaycees had released the news of the cancellation, the show was back on schedule.

This is mainly due to the ability of The Plymouth-Canton Community to rally behind a cause when it counts and get the job done.

Now the Jaycees, through all their hard work have something to be proud of. They have organized what looks to be a great show. The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra has promised a musical show to match the 'rockets red glare'. It took a great deal of effort to get this show off the ground, and now through a small miracle it will happen. Hard work and elbow grease does pay off.

Underneath all this rebuilt rubble are a couple of lessons. This community ranks at the top of the list in its "get the job done" commitment. And unpleasant news is sometimes needed to spur on better things.

In this case the very real threat of no Fourth of July fireworks for the first time in many years for Plymouth was bad news to write and bad news to read.

But from behind it all came the car dealers in their white hats, followed by Coors Beer. They deserve a great deal of credit for keeping the show alive.

It is this kind of community support from the area businesses that makes Plymouth-Canton stand high above other communities.

In fact, applause should extend past the car dealers and into others in the community. Organizer Chuck Lowe of the Jaycees said many more individuals and organizations called in an attempt to contribute, but Lowe said more than enough money had been raised for the event.

It is encouraging to know when the chips are down, and it really counts, there are enough people who are around to save the day.

The trick now is to find these kind of people before the day needs saving -- which will save a lot of sweaty palms.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

Last week's Canton Country Festival was a blast. Congrats to the organizers for putting on a great show and to The Plymouth-Canton Community for rallying in the final hour to put together the upcoming July 4th fireworks.

With Malice Toward None

He was once a good county exec

Why is Bill Lucas leaving job undone?

"Wayne County's gotten a Clean Bill of Health."

Had Wayne County Executive Bill Lucas kept on track with his job at straightening out Wayne County, that could be the slogan he'd be plastering on freeway billboards right now while seeking re-election.

But somewhere, somehow Lucas blew it.

Instead of following through on his "clean up Wayne County" pledge and pushing for the fiscal and organizational reforms still needed, Lucas took sick.

He caught a dose of Grand River Féver. And if he's not careful, it'll worsen into Potomac Fever.

The former sheriff promised to straighten out the county's woes and, for a time, he seemed to be making the right moves that way.

Then Ron Reagan gave him a phone call. Maybe he promised Lucas a ride on Air Force One to jump parties. Or maybe he promised him a nice Washington post after he serves as sacrificial lamb in the Michigan gubernatorial race.

As of that point, Lucas was a goner as far as Wayne County was concerned.

The county executive began campaigning -- in the guise of promoting Wayne County -- and stopped fulfilling his role at the City-County Building. He has still been taking his salary though and using county tax dollars to turn out an avalanche of publicity photos and releases about what a great guy he is.

If Lucas had concentrated on doing his job, re-election to his current post would have been a cakewalk. After taking office, he even convinced many of his detractors that he was committed to county reform and belt-tightening. Even they'd vote for him.

After re-election and continued tough management, Lucas would have stood a good shot at beating U.S. Senator Don Riegle -- at least a better shot than at beating Blanchard.

Now he will enter the history books as a politico who didn't remember the adage, "Do the job right or don't do it at all."

Lucas has, sadly, abandoned Wayne County.

As a result, he'll lose the governor's race -- unless Jim Blanchard gets caught at Canton's I-275 rest stop between now and election eve. (Even then it would be a close race.)

An appointment by Reagan will leave him in never-never land with his biggest job being to show up for "photo opportunities" when the Republicans feel they need more Black votes.

It's a sad comedown for one of the most popular politicians to appear in the Plymouth July Fourth Parade and the now-extinct Canton Country Fest Parade.

But Lucas brought it on himself by acting like a little kid in a bakery... his political eyes are bigger than his political stomach.

The Bill Lucas who started out as the catalyst to turn Wayne County around is already missing in inaction. And there's no turning back.

At least the folks in Wayne County can say they knew him when.

Lucas 'exploits' are fodder for tax-paid PR

Lucas, U.S. Attorney General Ed Meese, and an unidentified law enforcement robot, at left.

To The Point
By Dan Ness

Ever get the feeling you've met someone before, upon meeting them for the first time?

If I ever meet would-be-governor Bill Lucas in person, there's no doubt I will be overwhelmed in a swirl of deja-vu.

In fact, I feel like I've known Bill for years already -- heck, even had him over for dinner a few times -- after being the chosen recipient of candidate Lucas's press releases for the last 11 months.

In my position at The Crier, I get first crack at all press releases, and my unofficial tally has Lucas's county executive orders leading any other individual in press-release-per-official-action-taken by a Wayne County mile. Lucas's publicity machine churns out press releases like Louis L'Amour pumps out westerns, with none of the wild, untamed prose lost in the process, to boot.

Case in point -- an exceptionally untame Lucas press release dated June 20:

"It's not over yet.

"After 3½ years of vigilantly scouring the County landscape for waste and inefficiency, the quest of Wayne County Executive William Lucas is still paying dividends."

The press release paints a vivid picture in my mind, and I see Hoss Lucas poised on his trusty steed, pushing his Stetson back on his head, as he takes one last draw on his Marlboro and announces, "I want to combine the food services of the new Wayne County jail in Detroit's Greektown and the Wayne County Youth Home on East Forest, thereby saving taxpayers a half a million dollars annually," with eyes squinting into the western-Wayne sunset.

But, the press release ends too soon.

I might add that Lucas is also vigilantly scouring the County landscape for photo opportunities, since many of the exciting vignettes sent my way come fully illustrated (hence the Lucas publicity-photo collage I've decided to share with readers on this page).

My favorite, though, is the one where executive-turned-meteorologist Lucas warns, in headline form, "Elderly, infants at greatest risk in cold weather," dated January 30. Paragraph two reads, "Older people have more difficulty maintaining body heat because often the mechanism to regulate their temperature doesn't function as well," said Executive Lucas.

The release continues, "Executive Lucas said County residents should be aware that human flesh can freeze within one minute when exposed to a wind chill factor lower than 25 degrees below zero Fahrenheit."

And, the release concludes, "Executive Lucas urges anyone coming across a victim of hypothermia or frostbite to seek medical help immediately."

I will admit feeling much more secure last winter after reading our county executive's warning to residents -- especially infants and the elderly -- of the dangers of exposing one's skin to 25 below Fahrenheit weather. As I recall, I slammed my fist to my desk and gritted "It's about time," after reading Lucas's timely warning.

What this all goes to show is that Wayne County has its answer to the Great Communicator in Washington, D.C., and I may be reading the next adventures of Wild Bill Lucas from Lansing instead of Detroit after November 1986.

Lucas is currently the GOP front-runner for the governor's race, and shows no signs of slowing. Gov. James Blanchard, judging only by my press-release-per-official-action-taken quotient, is lagging far behind, and will lose in the general election. One of Blanchard's problems is that he lets his wife, Paula, author a series of press releases about products Made in Michigan, which, frankly, pale in comparison to the stirring narration of Lucas vigilantly scouring the County landscape.

Hopefully, when Lucas's gubernatorial quest fructifies, his publicity writers will continue to fill me in on his exploits. And, hopefully, if that day arrives, Lucas will put as much energy into running the state as he does into running his publicity machine.

Canton homeowner's sue developer of sub.

BY DAVID PIERINI

A Canton homeowner's association is suing its subdivision developers for, what they call, unkept promises.

Homeowners from the Brookside West subdivision, located at Cherry Hill and Lotz, are suing Robert Lewiston, co-owner and president of Practical Home Builders and Management in Oak Park. They say Lewiston failed to complete sidewalks and a park footbridge, that were supposed to be constructed in 1975.

A pre-trial is scheduled for 9 a.m. tomorrow in Wayne County Circuit Court.

"This guy has made so many promises, so many unfulfilled promises," said Ken Linden, treasurer of the homeowner's association. "It's kind of like the boy who cried wolf."

Linden said Lewiston had made several written and verbal promises that a footbridge would be constructed over the Clark County Drain which separates Brookside West from the main Brookside subdivision.

"It's very hazardous, just crossing it without a bridge," Linden said.

Dates of 1979, June of 1985 and a deadline of tomorrow were among the promised completion dates according to Linden.

Richard Lewiston said that his company just recently submitted the plans and pending approval, construction could start within the next couple of weeks.

Lewiston said he didn't want to comment on his company's delay and that he's "not interested in rehashing the past."

There are other phases of the lawsuit.

Each owner is assessed a $15 lot charge which eventually goes back to the homeowner's association. Out of $8,820 collected, Linden said the group only received $4,000.

Another phase involves Lewiston's partners and associates who Linden said misled the homeowners.

"We're correct in our lawsuit," Linden said. "In a sense we've forced them (Canton Township) into doing what they should've done in the first place."

Linden and his group are bitter over Canton Township's involvement in the matter. After years of prodding township building officials for action, it wasn't until July 1984 that Canton got involved, joining the suit.

"They joined in after we filed but they didn't offer a reason why they didn't get involved sooner," Linden said. "They should've enforced the amended PUD (Planned Unit Development ordinance) a long time ago."

Linden said that State Representative James Kosteva, then director of the planning department, was the person the homeowner's association directed their complaints to, and that he did little to solve the problem.

Supervisor Jim Poole said he got involved as soon as he learned about it. "When it was brought to my attention," Poole said, "I took charge because that's the kind of guy I am. I don't know why the township didn't get involved sooner, I wasn't around then."

Since joining the homeowner's association suit, the township has reimbursed a portion of the legal fees. Officials admit that they should've filed suit, according to Poole and Linden.

Since filing, Linden said the lawsuit put pressure on Lewiston's company and that, as a direct result, other subdivisions have benefited from the suit.

The developers have since finished a portion of the sidewalks in Brookside West and also cleared up incomplete-project problems in other Canton subdivisions, two of which are Mayfair and Sunflower.

Wayne County offers free meal program

The Wayne County Department of Health is offering a free meal program to all children through age 18, and to certain handicapped adults, in 11 Wayne County communities this summer, including Canton.

The Canton site is at Canton Commons, 1568 Stacy.

The Summer Food Service Program provides lunches in areas where most children receive free or reduced-price school meals during the school year. The program is for all children, without charge, regardless of income.

No application or enrollment for the program is necessary. Lunches will be provided on a first-come, first-serve basis. Federal regulations expressly forbid discrimination on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, sex or handicap.

Meals will also be provided for people over 18 who are determined to be mentally or physically handicapped by a state or local educational agency, and participate in a public or private non-profit school program for the handicapped.

Most sites will begin serving immediately, and will operate either five or six days per week throughout the summer.

For more information, call 467-3338.

SAXTON

When Dean Saxton started a feed business in Northville in 1928, he could not have envisioned it growing into one of the largest lawn and garden equipment dealers in the state.

The secret of this growth, according to Dean, is that its always been a family business.

Actually, the idea for the business came from Dean's father, Fred. Now the ideas come from Dean's son Bill and wife Val; their children Alan, Craig, Karen, Chris and his wife Terry. All are full-time employees.

Dean is president, but semi-retired. "He comes in and checks up on us," says Bill, who is general manager. "Everyone has contributed to the success of the operation."

Including, Chris and Terry's three-and-a-half-year-old daughter who handles the job of polishing lawn mowers on the showroom floor.

"I believe in starting them out young," laughs grandfather Bill.

With 58 years of operation under its belt, Saxtons longevity is reassuring to customers because tractors and mowers are frequently in use for many years.

"Some customers are still using equipment purchased here 25 years ago," says Bill.

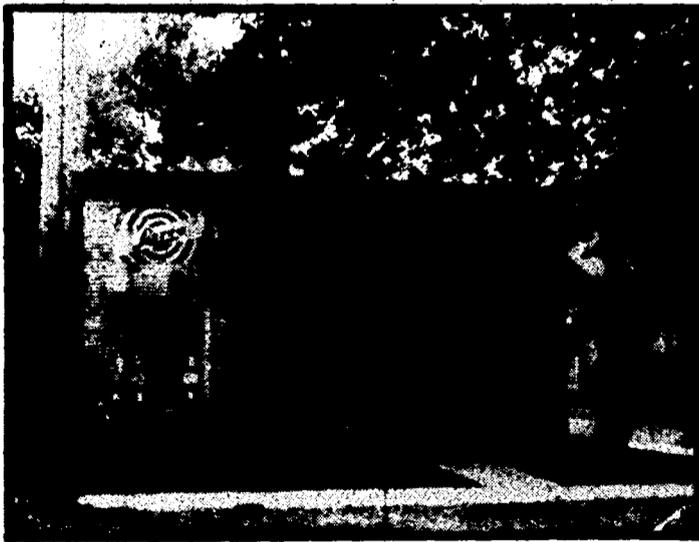

Bill worked at Saxtons as a youngster and joined his father's business permanently in 1949. He said he's pleased to see his children following in his footsteps.

"It's quite satisfying to see someone come along and take an interest," says Bill.

Saxtons has been at the same location at 587 W. Ann Arbor Trail since 1937.

Lawnmowers and garden tillers are their stock and trade, but Saxtons also sells seeds, pet supplies, and generators. And, if you ever need repairs, Saxtons has thousands of parts and their personal service will make you feel like family.

CLOVERDALE

Taking a good thing and making it better. That's what the Tomlinson family did when they took over Cloverdale Farms Dairy.

Cloverdale was started as a restaurant and dairy outlet by Herman Bakhaus in 1933. In 1971, he sold stock to his plant manager Jim Tomlinson and sales manager Tony Gonzalez.

Bakhaus sold the business to Tomlinson and Gonzalez in 1974. Not long after, Tomlinson bought out Gonzalez and later passed the business on to his former wife, Joyce and sons, Jim Jr. and Bob.

Cloverdale stopped processing milk in 1976 but continues as one of the few remaining ice cream manufacturers in southeastern Michigan.

"We've gotten a lot of business since '74 when we took over," said restaurant manager Bob.

What do they attribute the increase in business to? They raised the standards of their product by using all natural flavors.

"We went to an all-naturally flavored ice cream right around the time people started going through that all-natural foods phase," Bob said.

With the marriage of George Kallos to the former Joyce Tomlinson three years ago, came a boom to the business.

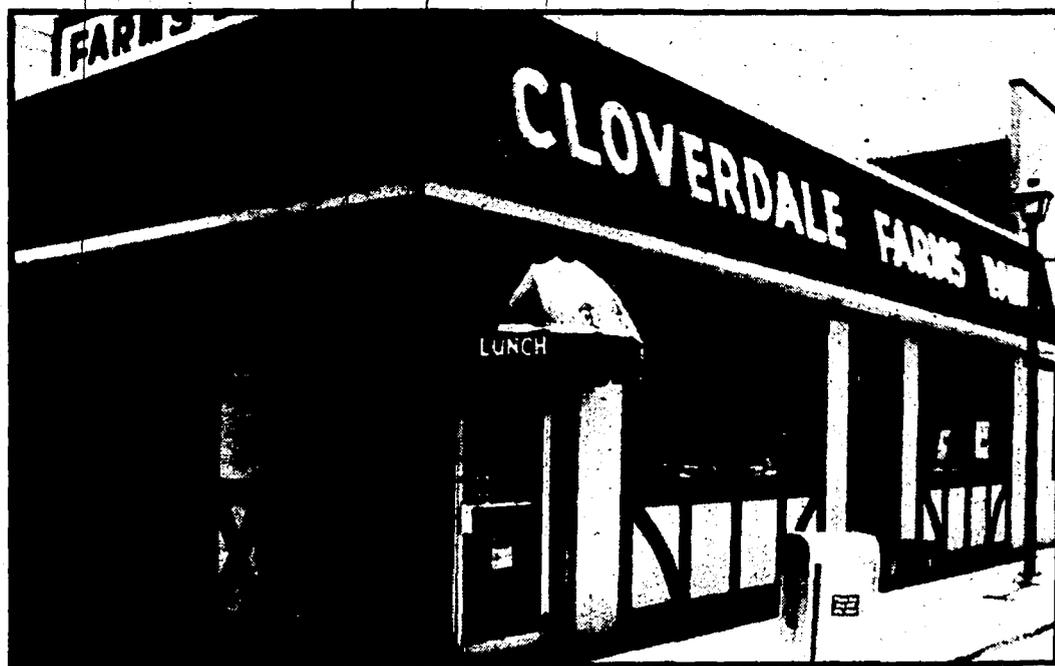

Kallow, who used to teach English in Kuwait, took an interest in Cloverdale, doing a lot of footwork to get big accounts.

In addition to the 25 small accounts, George rounded up 13 supermarkets and got three-year state correctional facilities.

"He has been a tremendous boom for us," Joyce said. "He was so optimistic and I was pessimistic. He just kept plugging away."

"I usually make six contacts," George said. "The first I'm told 'get out of my face' but after the second or third contact they decide that you're serious and it develops into a snowball after that."

In addition to the ice cream, Cloverdale is one of the most popular lunch counters in Plymouth and one of the most successful growth stories in the area.

MANS

Mans Do it Center

Contrary to popular belief, it may not all be in a name.

Take Mans Do it Center. Mans does not refer to the men of the world who shop for lumber and nails -- it is the name of the individual who founded the lumber store 86 years ago.

In 1900 it all began when Nicholas A. Mans began selling coal and lumber in Trenton. From the 1930's to the early 1960's the business expanded under the guidance of Nicholas' sons -- Nick, Fred, George and Paul.

From the original small sled and stable, Mans Lumber has developed into a full service building center, headed by Mike, Dick and Nick, grandsons of the company's founder.

The newest location is on Ford Road in Canton which opened in 1983, and manager Bob Goode hopes to continue the Mans tradition.

Serving The Plymouth-Canton Community in the same honest, straight-forward manner the founder started in 1900 is Bob's main objective.

Throughout the years the customer has always been the first concern, and they are pledged to offer the best service and products available.

JAWOR

John, John, Frank and Stan Jawor.

Two hundred sixty years of golfing experience.

Pretty impressive, especially when you consider that all 260 years of golfing expertise is coming from one family — the Jawors.

The resident golf pros at Hilltop Golf Course in Plymouth Township, John, brother Frank, and John (Frank's nephew) have turned Hilltop into one of the busiest courses in the area, and plan to keep it that way.

"We have a junior golf program going strong out here through Plymouth Continuing Education," Frank says, and adds that about 50 youngsters are learning the game in the program.

"And, we have between 140 and 150 adults in the continuing education program," John says. "That's a lot of people taking up the game."

John Jawor took over as director of the township-leased course in 1979, and since that time, Hilltop has started to make money for the township and hosted more tournaments than ever before. John obviously has a lot to be proud of.

"The golf course is maturing now," he says. "People are amazed at how fast the golf course has improved."

Frank, who also started in 1979 as associate pro, and the younger John, who became the other associate pro in 1981, say this year should be a busy one for golfing events at Hilltop.

Hilltop will host the Midwestern Invitational, the state high school Class A regional tourney in the fall, the Michigan Open qualifier tourney, and a junior tournament co-sponsored by the Plymouth Elks and Hilltop coming up July 18.

"We've got about 100 entries for that tournament already," John said. "We hope to make that an annual affair."

Besides the local Jawors, there are three other members of their family who work in the golfing business in the metro-Detroit area. Cass is the pro at Hampton Golf Course in Rochester; Chet is the pro at Gratiot Golf Range in Roseville; and Stan is the pro at Southland Driving Range in Southgate.

And, although the Jawors make their living in the game, they take it seriously when in competition.

Stan just recently qualified for the USGA Senior's Open, being held at Scioto Country Club in Columbus, OH tomorrow through Sunday. Stan was the medalist in the Michigan regional qualifier tourney, with his 70 setting the pace for 51 other competitors.

And Frank's son, also Frank, has the Hilltop course record score of 69.

The father, Frank, is also coach of the Wayne State University golf team, and secretary of the Michigan Section of the Professional Golfer's Association (PGA).

But, more than love of the game itself, the Jawors take pride in getting others — especially youngsters — interested in the game of golf.

"That's where the future of the game really is, in the juniors," says John.

Hilltop Golf Course is located on Ann Arbor and Powell roads in west Plymouth Township.

"We'd like to thank the people for patronizing this golf course," say the Jawors.

RIFFLE

When Bob Riffle leaped into the restaurant business three years ago -- it was with the idea of just being a business investment. He knew this area was ready to boom and he saw the restaurant as a wise investment.

That original investment didn't pan out, however. so he rolled up his sleeves, called in the family and turned the business into one of the hottest eating establishments in the area.

Today Riffle's is composed of no less than five people with the last name to match the store name, with owner-manager Bob behind the helm.

"It started out as a 'fine eating' type restaurant, but that didn't work. So I bought out the other partners and changed it to my liking," he said. said.

And in the last six months 'his liking' has started to take hold, with what Bob calls an 'American style menu' that has a broad appeal and excellent food.

It has taken several years of 'family' work to get the place where it is today, and Bob credits this success to his family.

Besides Bob, the restaurant is run by sister, Joan; brother, Bill; dad, Robert and mom, Aileen. All combine to give the energy and drive necessary for success.

Joan runs the books and is the "money and office manager" of the place.

Bill, who started as a line cook in the original restaurant, is now the head of the kitchen and the No. 1 chef.

Robert, is the first person in the building in the morning and makes sure all is in order and ship-shape. Aileen, works as the daytime hostess.

Bob describes the 'family' this way, and how they fit into the larger scheme of things.

"Mom and dad are the 'heart' of the restaurant. They have been on call 24 hours a day since we opened, helping out anyway they possibly can.

Joan and Bill are the 'backbone' of this place, keeping everything running smoothly and they way it should.

"And me, well I am the 'smiles' of the place. I keep the happy face while I take the brunt of everything," he said.

This family combination is what Bob Riffle believes makes his restaurant one of the up-and-coming places in the area.

"I have great expectations for this place, it has been rewarding and I expect it to grow very fast from this point."

Where can seniors get discounts?

BY DAVID PIERINI

Which Plymouth area businesses offer senior citizen discounts?

Soon, there'll be a guide senior citizens can consult.

The Plymouth Community Council on Aging is putting together a guide of nearly 110 Plymouth area businesses that offer discounts to seniors. The book will be available sometime next month.

The book will outline businesses that offer discounts in health and beauty care, automotive care, clothes cleaning, restaurants and the like. The average discount will be 10-25 per cent.

"This will be a great opportunity for senior citizens," said Bill McNamara, president of the Plymouth Community Council on Aging. "For example, we have more senior widows than senior males and those widows aren't equipped financially as when their husbands were alive. This will benefit them."

A committee of six people, chaired by Niles Baugrand, has been responsible for contacting local merchants and producing the book. After years of scimp coupon sheets, this is the first discount guide for Plymouth seniors.

The discount guide will go to all members of the Council on Aging, A.A.R.P. members and will be made available to all other senior citizens at City Hall.

"There are no expiration dates on the discounts," said former mayor and committee member Harold Guenther. "Businesses can discontinue or add discounts. We'll inform senior citizens of these changes and it's up to them to update their book."

The guide is the size of a checkbook and can be easily carried in a purse or pocket.

McNamara said he'd like to see all city and township merchants participate.

The tiles can be purchased at the museum for $7.50. The money earned from the shop helps to operate the museum, which is non-profit.

Poster winner

Lisa Parmer, of Plymouth, received a runner-up award in the Schoolcraft College Summer Celebration poster contest. She will win an undisclosed cash prize, because, according to art professor Lincoln T. Lao, the caliber of submitted work was so high.

Tang is named Academic All-Star

Canton High senior Gale Tang has been named an Academic All-Star, one of only 10 in the state in Class A school districts. This is the first time for a Plymouth-Canton student to attain this recognition.

Gale will enter the University of Michigan for a seven-year medical program to prepare for a career in medical research. Her goal is to research in the areas of neurology and cancer.

Gale is a National Merit Finalist and managing editor of the student newspaper, the CEP Perspective. She is the daughter of Sing and Kin Tang of Plymouth.

ISTANBUL—CROSSROADS OF CONTINENTS

You step on a stone in Istanbul, Turkey. There's a chance that it dates back to the city's Roman era. Today, it boasts that its location is the only metropolis astride two continents, Europe and Asia.

The stones that dot a field near the famous Blue Mosque were once a Roman palace, and indeed the builders of the Blue Mosque placed it squarely atop Roman palace ruins. Two stories of arches across Ataturk Boulevard form a famous aqueduct built by the Romans.

The ancient Hippodrome, built in the third Century A.D. after a model of the Circus Maximus in Rome, contains not only the 3,500 year-old Egyptian monolith of Thutmose III, but also a Serpentine column that once stood at Apollo's shrine in Delphi.

Of Istanbul's more than 500 mosques, one of the first to see is St. Sophia, an architectural masterpiece built in the sixth century by Justinian. But the most beautiful of the city's mosques is that of Sultan Ahmet, called the Blue Mosque after the thousands of blue glazed tiles that cover its inner walls. This building is considered the masterpiece of Turkish architecture.

getting down to business

Dairy-Go-Round, horses, ice cream is kids paradise

BY T.M. SMITH

David Phipps used to think most ice cream stands were not built with kids in mind. He described most of them as square and rectangular block building, "uninviting to children."

So, Phipps decided to build his own ice cream stand that kids would enjoy and have fun at, and it is this idea that has made "Dairy-Go-Round", on S. Main a tremendous success in Plymouth in less than two weeks being in business.

Phipps, who built the building, has wife, Karen and two daughters Holly and Jenny running the business, that he describes as a "concept" idea.

The 'concept' of the stand is a merry-go-round type atmosphere that was created with the building structure and the props around the building.

With a large tent-like canopy overhead, and miniature merry-go-round horses all around the service windows, it is easy to imagine why kids find the new store so enticing -- not that kids need a reason to eat ice cream.

"This makes it more of a fun thing for the kids, and we believe it helps add to the family adventure," Karen Phipps said.

Once at the stand, however, it is hard to believe that it is just a family-run operation.

"We have been asked where we got the franchise from -- and people are surprised when we tell them it isn't a franchise. We have the rights to the name, and maybe someday we might franchise, but not now."

This is a chance Phipps wanted to create for his daughters.

"They are the young entrepreneurs," he said. "Holly and Jenny are the two that will make it go."

But, don't be fooled into thinking the Phipp's family is trying to sell an idea without a quality product. They pride on product as much as atmosphere.

In addition to the softserve, Dairy-Go-Round features eight homemade flavors of ice cream at a time that is hand made in the back of the store, they use the quality ingredients and believe this attention to detail will pay off.

"We want to appeal to the kids, but we also want to show the people who enjoy ice cream that we have good products here," Karen said.

For whatever the reason, it seems the people of Plymouth have caught on to this notion. Opening night was packed with long lines, and helped erased any first night jitters.

"We went from wondering about if they would try us, to -- how are we going to handle all of this," Jenny and Holly said.

Fits like a glove

Keepin' bats and mitts in the ballgame

BY DAVID PIERINI

He was a short little guy, couldn't have been more than seven-years-old.

He leaned over the rail, stretching his neck to catch a glimpse of the artist at work.

"Almost finished," Tony Pironti said.

Pironti was careful. His eyes were intense and his hand, steady. Like all artists, he takes pride in his work and even more pride when he can satisfy an admirer or this case, a customer.

"Here you are Scott. Now I want you to take good care of that mitt. I put in a new piece of leather here, tightened it there and there's your name, right near the thumb. You ready to touch it? Go for it and don't make any errors now."

Scott didn't say much, just smiled and nodded his head a whole lot. He just had his Rawlings catcher's glove in for a tune-up by the guys who tend to the mits of Ozzie Smith, Dave Parker, Pete Rose, Mike Schmidt and other major league stars.

"I put in a new piece of leather ... You ready to touch it/ Go for it and don't make any errors."

Got a problem holding those sliders, snagging the hot grounders or sprawling for those over-the-fence fly balls?

Is your lumber custom made for your swing?

If you still have these questions you may have to wait before the professional's professionals come back to town.

The Rawlings Sports Caravan made a stop at Plymouth's Trading Post Sporting Goods store Monday en route to a stop in Toledo and then Pittsburgh's Three-Rivers Stadium.

The St. Louis based Rawlings, maker of baseball, football and other sporting equipment, has sponsored the traveling portable baseball museum and bat and glove factory for five years and the two-trailer caravan made it's first stop here on Monday.

One of the trailers is 22-feet of baseball glove evolution, samples from 1880 to the present. The other trailer is where Pironti hand stitches baseball gloves and partner and national equipment service technician Tony Amendola carves out bats — one every 30 minutes — on a simple motor-driven lathe.

The two Tonys are the only ones that travel coast to coast with the caravan and they are on the road from January to August, from spring training, stadium stops, right down to the sporting goods stores that handle Rawlings equipment.

"The traveling can be tiresome," said Pironti, a New York native who is in his second year with the caravan. "But we're meeting a great cross section of people. Ages 9-months-old to 90-years-old, men and women, it doesn't matter, they talk and love baseball."

The caravan is a public relations tour designed to promote Rawlings sporting goods and to educate people on the makings of baseball bats and gloves.

"Keep two balls in that glove when you're breaking it in," Pironti says, handing a youngster a new baseball mitt that was just oiled.

"It's something when you meet all of the players," he said. "I couldn't think of a better retirement job."

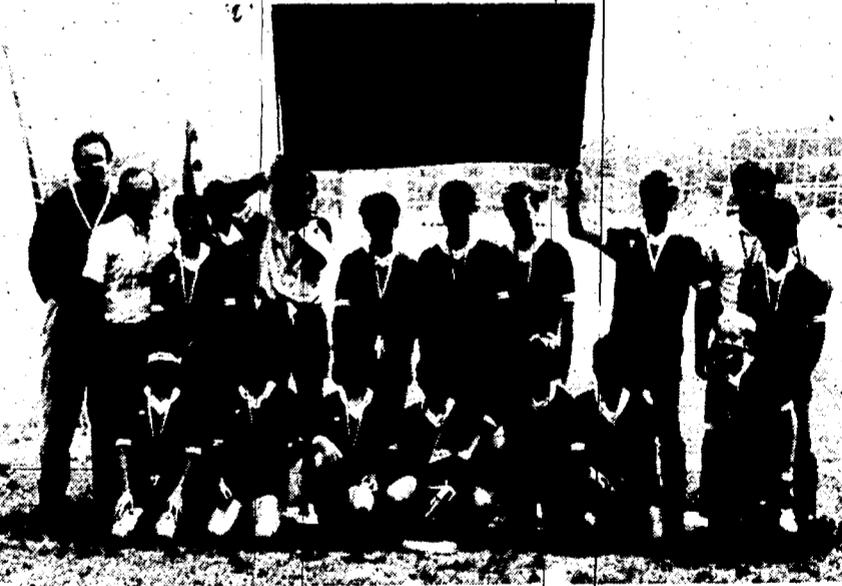

Connecticut is his home and it was there, Amendola played semi-pro baseball. He's once again, close to the game.

After stops in Lansing, Novi and Sturgis, here was the last Michigan stop.

 department and officials from the State Boundary Commission, to discuss the possibility of Canton being annexed by a neighboring city.

Boundary Commission officials have stated that Canton stands very little chance, if any, of being annexed while it is a township.

City-status committee members said their report would explore the pros and cons of cityhood, with breakdowns of the matter as it would affect each department of the township government.

According to one member, not all issues examined in the study were agreed upon by committee members, but the final recommendation was agreed upon. "We have one recommendation," the member said.
