

Petitions available for 4 city seats

Filing petitions for the four future vacancies on Plymouth's City Commission are available at the Deputy Clerk's office.

The petitions are available for any Plymouth resident who wishes to run for one of those seats in the August primary.

The last day to turn in the petitions will be June 16 at 4 p.m. in the city clerk's office.

Deputy Clerk Linda Langmasser said that no petitions have yet gone out of her office, and that at least eight people need to file to warrant a primary. If fewer than eight file, the election would take place in November, with the top four vote-getters being elected.

The four commissioners seats who are up for grabs are: Dennis Bila, Mary Childs, Donald Keller and Jim Jabara. Langmasser said none of those have yet picked up a petition to run for another term.

In order to qualify for the election, a potential candidate would need no fewer than 25 registered voters to sign, but not more than 50, Langmasser said.

Once a person files, he has three days after the deadline to withdraw.

The grassroots of Plymouth-Canton

Residents in The Plymouth-Canton Community have discovered that you can fight city hall.

Add to that township hall and the zoning board of appeals and the school board and any other legislative body designed to serve the public.

Neighbors start talking about common interests, strangers meet out of similar concerns, and things get done at the grassroots level.

The Plymouth-Canton Community has several examples of people organizing at the grassroots level and accomplishing their goals. Recent cases include the residents of Sunflower Village subdivision successfully stopping a developer from building houses on property that abuts their neighborhood in Canton; Plymouth residents successfully making the city take a second look at its proposed expansion of the Downtown Development District; and Haggerty residents getting part of that paved near their homes, after waiting for it for years.

All of these informal groups have one thing in common — they all took interest in an issue and saw to it that it was resolved, not by someone else, but by themselves. First, they made the system listen, then, they made the system work for them.

The stories that follow on page 16 spotlight an individual, a group of residents, and two neighborhoods and a development firm that demonstrate issues can be resolved, starting from the grassroots.

FAREWELL: Joe Henshaw and Lt. Dan Carpenter will have more time for themselves, and the community will miss them. See pages 3 and 32.

WINGS: Fashions of the streets and elsewhere spring to life in The Crier's Wings of Spring pullout section, starting on page 17.

Millington's mottos guide community

BY T.M. SMITH

Seconds after Frank Millington settled his frame into his "work chair," he begins to recount his years of rebel rousing in Plymouth Township.

From behind his glasses, Millington's 87-year-old eyes flare and then ignite with passion as he explains why he has been such a loud and clear voice for the past 40 years in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

"I have a saying," Millington begins.

And it soon becomes clear that Millington has more than one "saying" — in fact he has many sayings, and he tries to live his life to each of them.

He likes to call them his mottos, and each of them sheds a little more light on this man. A few of those mottos he shared in just under an hour include:

• "When in doubt, move forward."
• "A working minority will govern the majority."
• "Give the job to a man who wants it."

• "Give the job to a busy man."
• "If you don't win the first time, then win the second time."

These philosophies, and probably many more, have guided Millington through years of change.

They have been years of change because that is the way Millington wanted it. He describes himself as a man always looking for a "better way to do things."

Whether that be on the job at GM's Cadillac Plant, or in the community he lives in, Millington searches for and finds a way to change the status quo.

From his house on Beck Road in Plymouth Township, which he proudly points out as the "highest point in Wayne County," Millington recounted his years of serving on committees, battling tax increases, beating city hall or writing letters to the editors of

Sewer stall in Canton may be over

BY DAN NESS

The sewer permit holdup implemented by the state Department of Natural Resources upon developers in Canton may be over.

The DNR may allow sewer construction permits for four developments that had stalled in Canton after the Canton Board of Trustees approved a resolution that by all appearances complies with a DNR "final order of abatement" of the sewer ban, according to a DNR official.

"If (the board resolution) is satisfactory, then we have gone on record as saying we will go ahead with Act 98 (sewer) permits covered in the agreements," said Tom Kneuve, environmental engineer with the DNR's Surface Water Quality Division.

The board, on April 7, authorized township engineer Tom Casari to request proposals from firms to meter the township's sanitary sewer system as soon as May. Casari would then also perform a study of the results, to determine if recent efforts by the township have helped stem sewer overflows in times of heavy rains. He would submit the report to the DNR.

The board stipulated that it would not perform the metering until the DNR forwards the Act 98 sewer permits to the four developments awaiting approval. The developments are: the Haggerty Road AMC theater complex, Arbor Village condominiums, Lilley Pointe condominiums and the Canton Motor Mall, according to Kneuve.

The board's resolution "basically concurred" with the DNR's final order of abatement, Kneuve said. Canton's resolution now goes before the state Water Resources Commission (WRC) Thursday. Final approval of the

Henshaw: I'm not flashy

BY KEN VOYLES

No bones about it

Joe Henshaw lightens up the mood in a CEP 12th grade science class recently. Henshaw will retire this year after 25 years of teaching. (Crier photo by Ken Voyles)

The unsung heroes of teaching — the ones who are solid and steady, with years of experience — usually go unrecognized even when they end a long and productive career.

Joe Henshaw, a biology instructor in the Plymouth-Canton Schools, didn't become a teacher to win accolades; he has never been a flashy instructor.

And yet Henshaw epitomizes the fine qualities of most teachers in the district, many of whom retire without ever having been heard from or recognized.

Henshaw, 57 in July, will hang up his teaching robes at the end of this school year, capping 25 years at Canton High and two of the district's middle schools.

"I think I'm representative of a lot of teachers," he said. "Most of us never get a pat on the back for being there. We're just common people getting the job done day in, and day out."

"I really feel pretty good about my total career here," the Plymouth Township resident said. "I consider myself a middle of the roader. I'm not flashy. I use most of the conventional teaching methods."

But most of the rewards have been intrinsic ones — watching the progress of his students each semester, talking with former students he may have influenced, serving on dozens of district committees, and working with the teachers union as an officer.

"I've gotten my major satisfaction watching the students make progress from where they may have been at the beginning of a year," he said. "It's tough to measure but it is rewarding."

Henshaw began teaching in the district in 1962 after getting a degree from Central Michigan University.

Parking deck top priority

The Downtown Development Authority board and the Plymouth City Commission met in a joint meeting Monday night to discuss a 'project priority list.'

The DDA board submitted seven itemized projects it would like to see completed. It listed the completion of the Central Parking Deck as the most important item on the list.

The meeting of the two groups was called after a proposed expansion of the DDA's boundaries was stalled with citizen complaints, and an unclear picture of what the DDA was in need of.

The proposed expansion of the DDA would pull in properties that are currently under construction or are proposed for construction, and increase the generated revenue for the DDA.

The citizens have voiced concern with the move because of a fear that the expansion will erode the residential areas surrounding the downtown.

At Monday's meeting, the citizens were further frustrated when the commission announced it would not accept public comments and would only allow discussion of the priority list with the DDA board and commissioners.

Other than the No. 1 project of completing the parking deck, which has an estimated price tag of $1 million; the DDA also listed 'Utility relocation' around the parking deck, a 'Police foot patrol' and 'Planter conversions' as high priority items.

The report by the DDA also listed three major projects that would be captured by the new boundaries, should the expansion be approved.

These three projects were estimated to net the DDA about $190,000 in added revenue by the year 1990.

These three projects are: the Meadows Condominiums being built on the Moore Sheep Farm, improvements to the Farmer Jack Store and the Finlan Insurance project.

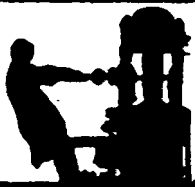

Easter eggs waiting

Boys and girls in The Plymouth-Canton Community will get to hunt for Easter Eggs this Saturday (April 18) at both the Plymouth Township Park and Griffin Community Park in Canton.

The Plymouth Jaycees and the Canton Parks and Recreation Department will host their annual egg hunts for local kids 12 years of age and younger.

The Jaycees' hunt will be held at Township Park (Ann Arbor Trail and McClumpha) beginning at 11 a.m. Children 12 years of age or younger are invited.

The Canton egg hunt is set to begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday at Griffin Park off of Canton Center Road. The hunt is open to youths four and under, 5-7 years of age and 8-10.

Item 13 - Consider Request from Township Engineer to Monitor Sanitary Sewer System.

Prenczky moved to adopt the following resolution:

WHEREAS, the Township Board has expended monies for sanitary sewer system rehabilitation work in an effort to reduce wet weather infiltration and inflow so that the frequency and volume of bypasses to surface waters can be reduced; and

WHEREAS, the Township Board has taken and will continue to take all necessary steps to enter into an agreement with the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority (YCUA) for the purpose of providing additional sanitary sewer capacity; and

WHEREAS, the Township Board deems it beneficial to meter its sanitary sewer flows so that wet weather flows and existing dry weather peak flows can be determined, and

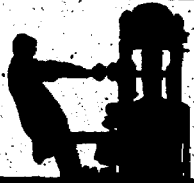

WHEREAS, the Township Board deems it beneficial that a report which determines a correlation between the efficiency of our sanitary sewer rehabilitation efforts and a reduction in the frequency and volume of bypasses be prepared; and

WHEREAS, the Township Board endorses the concept of reducing and eliminating water pollution in the Rouge Basin and throughout the State of Michigan;

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

1. The Township Engineer is directed to request proposals for professional services to meter the Township's sanitary sewer system, to bring those proposals to the Township Board for acceptance, and approval to hire one of the firms to meter the Township's sanitary sewer system during the month of May, or as soon as is reasonably possible.

2. Upon completion of the metering project, the Township Engineer is directed to prepare a correlation report on the efficiency of the sanitary sewer rehabilitation efforts relative to the reduction in the frequency and volume of sanitary wastewater bypasses experienced in the Township.

Public notices

3. The Township engineer is directed to provide the metering information and the correlation report to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

4. The Township Board agrees in concept with entry of a final order of abatement with the Water Resources Commission, the terms and language thereof subject to approval of Township legal council, and reserving the right to review and comment prior to submission of the final order to the Water Resources Commission.

5. This resolution is conditional upon Michigan Department of Natural Resources approving and delivering all pending Act 98 sewer permits for Canton Township property no later than seven (7) days from the date hereof.

A Day for George

COMMUNITY Federal Credit Union invites you to an open-house, to be held April 21st, in honor of George Lawton, General Manager of COMMUNITY Federal. George, who has been our manager for twenty-nine years is planning to set sail on a new career.

We'd like to give everyone an opportunity to do what so many people, new or veteran members and community leaders, have requested over the years. To come in and "see George". We invite you to come in on the 21st and share special memories, anecdotes, stories and experiences with George that you've had as a member of COMMUNITY Federal.

We look forward to seeing you on the April 21st, and hope many of you will bring your good wishes to George as he sets sail on his new adventures!

Once again, let Canton voters decide

Canton Supervisor James Poole is asking for a meeting with the Board of Trustees to discuss the possibility of changing the township's governmental system to a superintendent system.

Discussions on the superintendent form of government were initiated in the fall of 1985 by the trustees, who wanted a change. Under the superintendent system, a hired professional would run the day-to-day operations of the township government, and the supervisor, clerk and treasurer's positions would become part-time.

The trustees want to make this change by the 1988 elections. They also want to implement the change without an advisory vote by the residents of Canton. Under the law, the trustees don't need an advisory vote.

Poole is asking for an advisory vote before any changes are made. The advisory vote issue has been raised before, and will be raised again.

The trustees should not change Canton's governmental system without a vote of the people. A change in the system without getting the most basic input from the citizens -- a vote -- would betray the trust the board members have earned from the residents by being elected.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

City should let citizenry speak out

Government is often its own worst enemy.

Governmental hotshots forget, all too often, from whence they derive their "power." This malaise strikes at all levels from the local town hall to the White House.

The plague has spread to Plymouth City Hall.

Citizens expect to have input into their government. Maybe it's because they're inspired by the famous Norman Rockwell painting which shows an ordinary guy speaking at a town hall meeting. It could also be that the citizenry take the "redress of grievances" wording in the First Amendment seriously. Or maybe it's because of the Michigan Open Meetings Act which allows public input.

Regardless of why the citizens are so inclined, it's not too much to ask of government to allow input.

Monday night's meeting at City Hall was scheduled to have the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) board present its priorities to the City Commission. From the outset, the city said the meeting was not being held to take public comments. Clearly the City Hall types have been frustrated by past debates during which some anti-DDA types slip into Never-Never Land.

But before the meeting room was cleared out Monday, this hard-line feeling produced rancor, raised voices and a frustrated citizenry.

An hour of public discussion of the DDA wouldn't have hurt the city politicians, the DDA volunteers (Jim McKeon is thick-skinned enough to take care of himself) or the citizenry (Jack Moehle and Bill McAninch can hold their own). And such discussion just might have raised another important aspect to the prioritizing of downtown Plymouth projects.

One Christmas Eve past, City Manager Henry Graper and then-Planning Commissioner Dennis Bila (now a City Commissioner) mixed it up over why citizens are appointed to policy-making boards while professionals are hired to carry out the policies. (Guess who took which side.)

The natural extension of that argument is that the citizens be allowed to express their opinions on policy matters.

Since there was no opportunity afforded Monday night -- when it would have been logical to address the DDA board and the City Commission jointly -- the next opportunity for citizens to discuss the DDA is this Monday night's City Commission meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the commission chambers. (The pre-Commission meeting is at 7 p.m. in the City Manager's conference room and is also open to the public.) If no DDA item is on the agenda, public comments in general are taken after the Pledge of Allegiance.

Denying citizen comments last Monday was foolish.

As one fellow in Monday's audience said, "This is my first meeting at City Hall. Is it always like this?" Probably, he'll be back.

It doesn't hurt to listen.

Crier was Enquirer on Wiland firing story

EDITOR:

In reading our local paper a week ago, I thought I had picked up the National Enquirer by mistake.

Since when do we put a person's name and picture in the paper and announce they have been fired? I could give you a list of people that have been fired by the company I work for but whose business is that?

This is not an elected official and I found it in very bad taste. I feel you are confusing your opinions with the fourth estate.

When it is my turn to be pink-slipped should I expect the same treatment? Front page coverage?

JOAN EILEEN RANK

EDITOR:

Your recent article concerning the firing of George Wiland was, in my opinion, in very bad taste. George should be given sufficient reason for his dismissal and this matter should be handled between himself and his former employer. I do not feel this action was the business of the entire community-at-large.

The whole article smacked of journalism one would expect to find in the Enquirer and other such magazines.

Breen's gamble

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Brian Lysaght is a former sports editor with The Crier. He also covered Plymouth and Plymouth Township government.

Reading some old newspapers recently brought me back to October 1985 I was sitting in Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurie Breen's office.

Back then, Breen and the township board wanted two mills for the police and fire departments. Breen told me he'd hire three firemen and three policemen if voters approved the millage. The new hires would replace police and firemen who quit or retired.

And if voters said 'no' to the millage? Breen talked of losing Fire Station 2, and running only one of the two township ambulances. A 'no' vote would force Chief Carl Berry and his new police department into dire straits.

A committee of township do-gooders was formed to lobby voters to approve the millage. Township firemen even got into the act, canvassing neighborhoods even picketing township hall carrying signs that said: "Save our fire department."

Breen, a consummate politician had a convincing argument. Voters approved the millage.

Plymouth city and township voters have always supported their police and fire departments. And Politician Breen knows a good pitch when he hears it.

A year-and-a-half later we learn Berry got his three policemen but Fire Chief Larry Groth didn't get his new firemen.

What's up Maurie?

From Breen comes muffled talk of eligibility lists. Hiring three firemen has become an issue in Breen's contract talks with the firemen's union.

Politician Breen must be wagering on the brevity of township voter's memories. A riverboat gamble, for sure.

Concerning three new firemen: It seems Politician Breen violated a golden rule of politics — he didn't deliver the goods.

BRIAN LYSAGHT

Committee ignored Main Street solutions

EDITOR:

The Main Street Committee that formed in November to study the cruising problem through downtown Plymouth during the summer nights finally turned in their report.

The committee, consisting of Plymouth business owners, students, residents and the police, spent several months of research and study before the paper was submitted to the city manager. The report was believed to contain a compromise between what the cruisers and the committee wanted. City Manager Henry Graper said he thought the report was put together well and said a great deal of it would be implemented.

However, students with the committee look at the report as a positive move but more or less, one-sided for the adults. If the report is two-sided, then why are 13 of the 14 solutions for the anti gathering/cruising committee? Many of the preventative include a residents-only parking ban of some downtown side streets; a parking plan for businesses that close in early evenings; a revised 'trespassing ordinance' in place of 'loitering' and also the removal of some benches along Main Street.

One of the main recommendations was the use of "firm, fair, consistent 24-hour enforcement of traffic laws" by the Plymouth police. The trespassing ordinance would eliminate the warning used by police last summer before a citation was issued, plus it will require less police time in court and allow for easier prosecution.

I do not feel the solutions were studied at all!! I feel they should look into why the people are hanging out in Plymouth. When I was growing up here, there was nothing to do during the summer months once the city cut out funding for activities at the city parks. At night there was nothing except roller skating, if you could afford it and you were any good. Even my mother said there were always things to do in their day, like school dances, sock-hops, etc.

I also do not support the cruisers, seeing how most of the people aren't even from Plymouth, but neighboring cities. The main people who started the cruising and organized it were over 21 and I feel they could have been dancing and having a good time at some local nightclub instead of trying to party with minors downtown. I know the city is not responsible for opening things for students and young adults to do, but what would be wrong with a little funding for a dance downtown at The Gathering or some other designated area once a month for a small cost?

Find something for the kids to do — and the cruising stops — GUARANTEED!!!

CRISS KARASSY

YEAH MAN, THAT BAN ON SIDEWALK SURFIN' STINKS. BUT EVERYTHING'S COOL NOW 'CAUSE WE'VE FOUND AN AWESOME REPLACEMENT. WE TORE THE WHEELS OFF OUR BOARDS. SO LOOK OUT TONQUISH CREEK! 'SCUSE ME MAN ... SURF'S UP!

Ban boards!

Hackey Sack is hardly dangerous.
Frisbee playing presents only minor hazards.
Skate boarding is a different matter.

When the Plymouth City Commission voted to ban skate boarding (and roller skating) from the downtown, one commissioner, Karl Gansler, opposed the move. His logic was that while skate boarding was sometimes hazardous, it was just one more "anti-young people" rule.

That theory was fine... but only in theory.

Just as with the origins of most ordinances and laws, the actions of a few spoil things for the majority.

"Skate punks," as the more rowdy of the hang-10 sidewalk types are called by "straighter" downtowners had become a threat to themselves as well as others. The prohibition was justified to anyone who watched one of the youngsters skate down the Central Parking Lot ramp into traffic or down the wheelchair ramp into pedestrians.

If Gansler's concern for the youngsters' recreational needs is shared by the commission, rescinding the anti-Hackey Sack and anti-Frisbee ordinances might show young people the city's heart is in the right place.

Essa is Cantonite 1st, developer 2nd

It was at the end of the fourth paragraph where I realized that Frank Essa had come to terms with the basic elements of his life.

As I read Essa's correspondence, which had come into my possession, it was obvious that this man had reached a delicate balance few ever achieve. His strong convictions will stand, even while showing the gentle surrender to his marital instincts.

All of this goes to explain how Fountain Square came to be built on Ford Road and why Frank Essa won't sell his house.

Essa is a Cantonite first, and a developer second. As he explains in his writings, he decided to be a "pioneer and a gambler" by building the Mans Do It Center building in 1971, which was then the F.D.R. Motorcycle Shop. Essa had built his house in Canton two years before because he liked "the country living and all that fresh air."

Essa's story fits in well this week,

To the point

By Dan Ness

with the other stories on grassroots organizations in our community. Essa doesn't run an organization, as far as I know, but he runs businesses and he's lived in Canton since the days there were only about 7,000 other Cantonites.

"Moving into Canton was the best thing I've ever done, after living in five other communities," the man writes.

Essa writes that his Mans building was the biggest commercial development on Ford Road at the time. He and his two sons used to hunt wild game on Ford Road, carrying their shotguns all the way up to Canton Center Road.

Essa still has wild game on his home property, which he describes in the fourth paragraph of his recollections. It is also that same paragraph in which his writing reveals a man who learned long ago you can only worry so much before realizing everything will be all right in the long run. "I live on eight acres full of trees, and with all this construction, the poor rabbits and other animals have no place to go," Frank starts.

"I've had offers from builders to sell part of my acreage for development, but these poor bunnies were here before me and now I want them to stay. They drive my wife crazy by eating all her flowers, but what the hell."

Having been married for 35 years to the wife driven crazy by bunnies in the garden, I know Frank wouldn't take his role of bunny protector to the extreme of really driving his wife crazy. He's reached that plateau of understanding between his wife and the bunnies, and both parties will be all right, I'm sure.

Some of that attitude must rub off on his projects, too. He's building a new business center, Fountain Square, right next to the Mans Do It Center where he used to hunt with his boys. AAA of Michigan and Speedy Printing have signed up as tenants, Frank writes. They should know what type of a guy they're renting from.

"I've found from a 7,000 population to over 50,000 that the people that have moved here are very friendly and nice to talk to," Frank writes. "I am proud to be a Cantonite."

I think others are proud that Frank Essa is a Cantonite, too. And I know for a fact there are a few bunnies hopping around that don't mind him either.

With malice toward none

The Community Crier-COMMA, were luckier than we thought.

At Saturday evening's black-tie Adcrafter benefit for establishment of an advertising professorship at Wayne State University, Dick Purtan's dart hit our card.

One of three entries purchased by The Crier-COMMA, won the top prize — a 1988 Baretta coup with a blue fox fur in the backseat. There were three separate entry cards — one with Phyllis Redfern's name (that one won), one with Karen Sattler's name (she had helped organize the Adcrafter benefit), and one with mine.

Phyllis didn't believe the Saturday night phone call.

By Sunday morning, the car and fur were planned for a re-raffle amongst Crier-COMMA, department heads and employe donors to the professorship.

When Dan Ness, Crier managing editor, heard about that plan Sunday, he said, "If it were my commune, I'd be driving the car."

My nine-year-old daughter agreed. "Why are you holding a drawing, Dad?"

But, as Phyllis insisted (that's why she's general manager and not Dan), this company approaches things a little differently. Since the company had put in the bulk of the three tickets, we'd give our key folks and those concerned with the professorship, a shot.

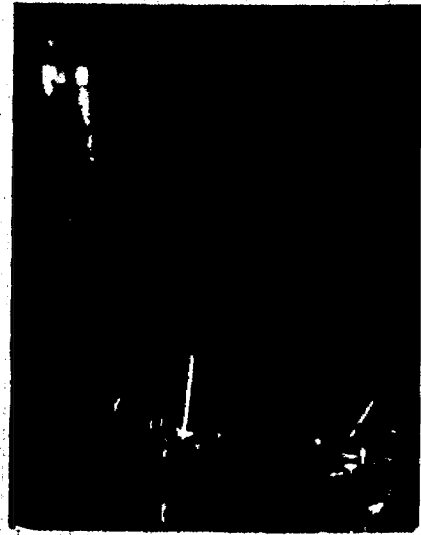

Fellow Adcrafter Jim Tomlinson, a Plymouth resident who sells space for Time-Life magazines, drew the names out of a hat.

Car winner: Claudia Hendries.
Fur winner: Liz Conlon.
Overall winner: our staff.
Biggest winner: the Adcrafter professorship.

A winner

Gearing up for Geer.

The wonderful old schoolhouse is well on its way to becoming what some people are calling a "showpiece."

Okay, maybe its not well on its way, but at least things seem to be shaping up.

The Geer committee has just about completed its work with a architect devising both a plan of action for repairing the 150-year building and coming up with assorted ways to raise money to fund the repair.

The committee will present its information to the Plymouth-Canton School Board at a special workshop session, probably during the first week of May.

It will seek some kind of direction from the board as well as approval to go ahead and begin further fundraising efforts.

With any luck those fundraisers could begin in earnest this summer.

Maybe, just maybe, even some preliminary repair work on Geer will be completed this summer. That would give the structure a chance to survive yet another Michigan winter.

What kind of work needs to be done to make that survivability possible?

The roof needs to be fixed to stop damaging leaks. The basement of the place of is already under water, further undermining the foundation of Geer and increasing the chances that fixing up the school will be a costly endeavor.

Costly yes, but well worth it.

All it will take is some commitment by the school district, and a little help from the district's friends.

Geer is an old building. It must be treated with the best TLC (tender loving care) the district can command. Once fixed it must stay fixed.

And there's the rub -- Geer will continue to cost the district money long after repairs are completed.

Still, the only alternative is the wrecking ball. And that would be a waste.

We talk a lot about the "quality of life" in The Plymouth-Canton Community. Geer is just another aspect of that theme.

Let's get in gear for Geer.

Cover young teams

EDITOR:

In response to Marty Tungate's column dated April 1, 1987, I would like Mr. Tungate to recall that on many occasions during our post-game conversations I had excitedly mentioned the great success of my freshman volleyball program at Salem.

Your column (which was brought to my attention by one of those players since our copy never got to the door) seems to leave out the fact that when this particular varsity coach reported any scores for the junior varsity or freshman teams the response has always been, "Gee, that's terrific but we really don't have enough space on the page to report all the j.v. and freshman scores."

I realize that you were not the one on the opposite end of the line many of these times as you had already left the office by the conclusion of our Monday night matches. Perhaps you should discuss why the freshman volleyball team never got recognized in The Crier with Ken Voyles before you put the blame on me.

According to you, Mr. Tungate, I must not care enough about the future of my program to acknowledge the accomplishment of a very talented freshmen class. Correction, those players and parents of this team should know that the varsity coach has done her part in reporting their successes. I was only cut short by the length of a column inch and a sports reporters' choice of newsworthy material.

There was a time when area newspapers thought enough of the j.v. and freshman teams to give the scores. I know, because I was a part of it from your end of the line, Mr. Tungate. In the future, maybe a special season-ending box score should be done so that our younger teams are not overlooked. Not just volleyball, but all the j.v. and freshman teams at Salem and Canton, because there are a number of successful squads at the CEP beneath the varsity level.

Oh, one more thing, I believe that The Crier is on the mailing list for "Bump, Set, Spike," our monthly newsletter. As my parents and players are aware, the freshmen have been headline news with their success. Maybe you should check the mail more carefully this month.

Former mayor donates land to 'Wildlife'

BY MICHAEL BLEDSOE

Nearly 30 years ago, while canoeing down the Waiska river in Michigan's upper peninsula, life-long Plymouth resident and real-estate attorney Perry Richwine came upon a "beautiful way to go."

"I was with my daughter Mary Louise at the time, and we came to a bridge," Richwine recalled. "I liked the looks of the land, and I asked the woman living there if she'd like to sell it. She said she'd like to sell the whole damn place."

Perry and Janet Richwine recently donated this land in Chippewa County and 38 acres in Cheboygan County to the Michigan Wildlife Foundation.

A former mayor of Plymouth in 1950-51, Richwine is the son of a harness maker and was born 1905 on what is the site of the First Federal of Michigan on Penniman Avenue.

The Foundation's president, Paul Wendler, said some of the donated land will soon become a Michigan Wildlife Foundation Memorial Forrest.

For $15 the non-profit Foundation, which is an endowment for the Michigan United Conversation Clubs, will send you a package of 10 live trees native to Michigan. For $25 the Foundation will also plant a tree of your choice in the Memorial Forrest.

"You couldn't believe the response we've gotten," director of grants and programs, Carol Bambery, said. "I've got 500 names of people who want trees planted in memory of their loved ones."

The one-and-a-half years old trees are nine to 12 inches tall and can be expected to grow one foot the first year and another foot the next.

Trees offered in the Foundations package include Red Maple, Colorado Blue Spruce, Red Oak and White Flowering Dogwood. The Foundation plans to erect a plaque on the site honoring the contributing members.

Although the 38 acres in Cheboygan County has been earmarked for a Memorial Forrest, Wendler said the Foundation has not decided the fate of the Chippewa County land.

"We may leave it as it is," Wendler said. "We have not made a study of the area. People in the area and other factors will determine our use of it."

Because of its proximity to I-75, the Cheboygan property is ideal for the Foundation, Wendler said. North-bound travelers can easily visit it.

"When they open it up to the public it's going to be beautiful, just beautiful," Richwine said. "I hate to tell you how many farms I've bought over the years. I guess I have a weakness for it."

Gonna be beautiful

Engagements & Weddings

MacNiven to marry

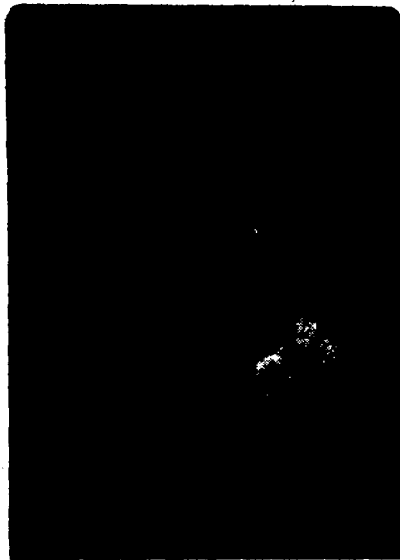

Susan MacNiven, daughter of Malcolm and Carlane MacNiven, of Plymouth, will wed Robert Goudeseune, son of Robert and Barbara Goudeseune, of Canton, on Saturday, April 25.

The ceremony will be performed by The Rev. Edward Coley at Newburgh United Methodist Church.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Salem High and a 1986 graduate of Eastern Michigan University (EMU) with a degree in interior design. She is currently employed at Hillside Contemporary-Furniture of Bloomfield Hills as an interior designer.

The groom is also a 1980 graduate of Salem and a 1986 graduate of the University of Michigan - Dearborn with an accounting degree. He is employed at the downtown Detroit office of the National Bank of Detroit as a trust auditor.

The couple will honeymoon in

Susan MacNiven

Florida and eventually live in Southfield, where Goudeseune currently resides.

White toots for Woody

Diane White, a former Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Marching Band trumpet instructor, is currently touring with the Woody Herman Big Band as their assistant lead/second trumpet player.

Originally from Tomah, WI, White completed her undergraduate studies at the University of Wisconsin - La Crosse. She then received her master's and began her Ph.D work at Eastman

School of Music in Rochester, NY.

White is currently taking a leave of absence from her administrative duties with the Chicago Pops Orchestra and from her teaching position at Chicago State University to tour with the Herman band.

The band will perform in Michigan tonight (April 15) at Howell High School. The concert begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are $7.50.

Derkatch, Barnes to wed

Emil and Fran Derkatch, of Westland, announce the engagement of their daughter Karen Lynn Derkatch to Michael Steven Barnes, son of Farris and Helen Barnes, of Tiptonville, TN.

The bride elect is a 1981 graduate of Westland John Glenn High and is currently attending Eastern Michigan University where she is pursuing a degree in nursing. She is employed at the Middlebelt-Hope Nursing Center in Westland as a ward clerk.

The groom to be is a 1981 graduate of Canton High School and of Schoolcraft College. He is employed by the State of Michigan Department of Mental Health in Ypsilanti as a nurse.

An early May wedding is planned.

Stanley - You old devil you!

Do you remember Stanley? Stanley is the name of the machine that used to let cars in and out of the Central Parking Lot. There's no doubt about it, there were times when Stanley and I did not get along well — like the time I worked until 2 a.m. and stupid Stanley didn't want to let me out of the parking lot. Although we did not always agree, Stanley was always nice about letting me park in the parking lot all day.

When the new parking deck was built Stanley was replaced by a cousin or someone who looks a lot like him. I don't know where the city managed to find this new machine, but it doesn't have any of the charm and personality that Stanley had.

Since the parking deck has been completed, a lot of the rules have changed. Unless you pay $120 a year for a parking pass, you can only park for three hours on the lower level of the deck. I realize you can pay your quarter and park all day on the top level, but then you have to figure out how not to fall down those wretched steps or slide down the ramp.

Two years ago I paid for a parking pass. It was nice not having to dig for a quarter everytime I went in the lot. And except during special events in town, I always had a parking place.

Then I noticed that everyone who paid a quarter to get in the parking area had the same privileges, because the city wasn't giving out parking tickets. If it was cheaper to pay a quarter or two a day than $120 a year, why bother with a pass? So last year I didn't.

At the beginning of this year, parking tickets started appearing on windshields. Not only was I paying two quarters a day, but I managed to time it right to get a ticket besides. After a couple of days of it costing me $5.50 a day, I decided to break down and buy a parking pass.

A week after I bought the pass, the stupid machine refused it so I had to dig through my purse for a quarter. That upset me a little, but what really makes me mad is the fact that it has been free parking for the last month or two. I'm also irritated by those people who are getting away using last year's pass, and nobody has gotten a ticket in weeks.

Even though I was dumb enough to pay for a parking pass, I was hesitant to "rat" on those still getting by with last year's pass. All it took was an "I told you so — I told you not to waste your money." Darn, I hate it when he's right!

Okay City of Plymouth, what's the deal? I suppose after I paid for the year, you didn't need anymore money so everyone else gets in free. Perhaps it's a case of the equipment being broken. If that's the problem, it has been broken for a long time and I think it only fair that those of us with a pass get an extension on our pass for the length of time the machine is not in operation.

Make up your mind City of Plymouth and decide — either everyone pays for parking or no one does. The same should go for parking tickets — either ticket on a regular basis or forget it.

U.S.S.R.

The U.S.S.R. It need not sound forbidding. You know that many important political decisions come from the Kremlin, but beyond politics, Russia has a heritage encompassing a wealth of culture and art.

The Armoury in Moscow has many of the jewels, gold, and silver collected by generations of Russian czars and czarinas. The Tretyako Art Gallery is the home of the world's largest collection of Russian paintings. The Ostankino Palace depicts neo-classical architecture and the Kushovo Palace is devoted to Russia's beautiful porcelain.

Peter the Great's Window of the West, Leningrad, is Russia's most magnificent city, rich in museums and art from the 10th century to the present. The Hermitage Museum, once the Winter Palace of the Czars, has a collection of gold including the rare Scythian Gold.

A visit to the U.S.S.R. will prove to you that the art of the Russians is as much a part of the country as politics. Take your vacation in Asia's "Bear" country!

Group wants some books out

BY KEN VOYLES

When Diane Daskalakis was trying to come up with a name for a new organization devoted to opposing what she calls "vulgar and immoral teachings" in the Plymouth-Canton Schools she wanted to use the word Christian in it somehow.

"I was looking for a pleasant way to use Christian that wouldn't offend too many people," she said.

But then one day, as she recounts it, God gave her the name Citizens for Better Education, and it has stuck ever since.

"This group is for all people," Daskalakis explained. "I am dealing with the entire town, not just Christians. We care about all the citizens."

Daskalakis admits she is waging her war against the school district because of her faith and what God has told her to do. Many members of the grassroots organization are involved for the same reason, while still others are just frustrated by the feeling they aren't getting anywhere with district officials. "We're all doing this for our own reasons," said Daskalakis. "We've found no one willing to support us on the school board. We have no representation."

That's one of the major complaints of Citizens for Better Education (CBE), a group that includes nearly 60 active members, along with another 1,190 local residents who have signed petitions supporting its cause.

The group formed earlier this year to support Daskalakis, who single-handedly took on the schools last November by filing complaints against various teaching materials.

"The school officials and administrators were not listening to our individual complaints," Daskalakis said.

Some of the active members of the group met recently at Daskalakis' local business (and now the group's informal headquarters) to discuss their reasons for getting involved in a grassroots effort.

Williams Buswinka, 91, the oldest active member of the group and a vocally-charged speaker at board meetings, said he sometimes has a hard time sleeping because of what's going on.

"I think this group is in the majority," he said. "But we're in the minority as far as speaking out. We can't debate with the current board, and you can't solve anything unless you talk back and forth."

Bob Anderson, who will seek a school board seat during the upcoming election, said he became involved because of "responsibility."

"As citizens we're accountable for what goes on in the district," he said. "I feel responsible as a citizen."

Jerry Raymor, an unsuccessful candidate for the board in 1986, said he became active with the group after one of Daskalakis' appeals to the public.

"I'm very concerned about the board and administration taking God out of our school system," he said. "Instead they're teaching secular humanism."

Raymor said he felt his unsuccessful bid for a seat last year was really a victory because it created community awareness. "Even though we lost, we won," he said.

Annette Tefft said she had heard stories about the district but didn't believe them until one of her children was shown "Tales of Winnie the Witch."

"I couldn't believe it when I saw it," she said. "It really upset me, so I got involved. I'm not mad, just frustrated."

The group -- composed mostly of local adults -- meets on a regular basis, often at Daskalakis' home or business. It also gathers at local churches.

An advisory committee, made up of The Rev. Marshall Gentry and Frank Krajenke of the 700 Club, works to maintain a framework for the group.

"It's unfortunate this had to happen," Gentry said. "A lot of teachers in the district are doing a good job, but some of them are pressing views contrary to what kids learn at home."

Gentry said he joined the organization after local residents started coming to him for advice. "Being people who have expressed concern about life, family and home, we've made ourselves known to Diane," he said. "It's not that she's been looking for us. People come forward."

Many members of the group wanted to make it clear that they are not against the board. Gentry, in fact, would love to sit down with the board informally and discuss the issues. "They should stop being so defensive," he said.

The CBE publishes a semi-monthly newsletter distributed throughout the community by volunteers. "We took a lot of flak for the first one," said Daskalakis. "Then people started to come in with stories. And they keep

Designing a mall

BY DAN NESS

The residents of Westbrook subdivision may experience a feeling of deja vu the first time they walk into Canton Corners shopping center next year. After all, they helped design the mall.

Those residents got to help modify site plans for the mall through a committee formed by the Canton Board of Trustees in November. Because of the involvement of residents from that subdivision, Canton Corners mall will look significantly different than originally proposed.

When the JFK Company bought two parcels of land at the southwest corner of Ford and Lilley roads last year, it discovered that there were complicated legal entanglements tied to the use of the property.

The JFK Company wanted to build a shopping mall. Westbrook residents didn't want to be neighbors to a gray monolith. Because of their involvement, they will not be.

To help weave around the legal matters regarding the property, the Board of Trustees formed a committee to help influence the eventual design of Canton Corners. The committee consisted of Canton Trustee Stephen Larson; Planning Commission Chairman Richard Kirchgatter; Joe Kosik, Jr., the developer from the JFK Company; Jim Pappas, his architect; and Mike Martin and Jim Kromberg, from Westbrook subdivision. Canton Director of Community and Economic Development David Nicholson was also a part of the panel.

"I was very leery of the committee" initially, Kosik said. "There's always a problem with building something by committee. But I really lucked out, because the people I worked with were really good."

No one was forced into forming the committee, Kosik said. "It was a voluntary thing to do on everyone's part. The board just said, 'Hey, let's put everybody that has an interest together and work toward a solution.'"

"Under the circumstances, it was the best thing to do," Kosik said.

Kosik's reservations were quickly dispelled after the first meeting of the committee in December. "They threw suggestions at us, we threw suggestions at them, we gave it to our architect and gave him three weeks to modify the plans."

The committee liked what it saw on the first revision, according to Kosik. "We kind of anticipated what they would want." In fact, the process of including neighboring residents in the design discussions actually sped up the process, Kosik said.

"I didn't want to keep going back to a zoning board to find out what the people wanted. This committee allowed us to streamline" and eliminate "arguing in front of boards," Kosik said.

Instead, when the residents met in committee, they heard Kosik saying, "I think I can come up with a design that will address some of your concerns."

Some of those concerns were: a rear wall of concrete facing their homes, with no landscaping or design treatment; the noise of delivery trucks and garbage trucks coming and going at Canton Corners; and a big flashing-light sign advertising the mall on the street.

Kosik's plan addressed all of those concerns. Rather than a plain wall in the rear facing the neighborhoods, there will be an intermittent brick wall, with landscaping to "soften" the effect. There will be signs on the businesses but not a huge, towering sign above the mall. There will be increased landscaping around the entire mall. There will be enclosed truck docks, to make it more quiet. And the schedules of garbage and delivery trucks will be modified to reduce late-night noise.

"They didn't want it to look like a traditional center," Kosik said. The problem he faced was working with a 180,000-square-foot building. The eventual design betrays the size of the center, Kosik said.

"You may see a big building, but the impression is that it's not one big store."

This "toning down" of Canton Corners started with neighbors being concerned about their newest neighbor. From the grassroots level, Canton Corners will look the way the developer and residents want it to look.

House savers rally in Plymouth

BY T.M. SMITH

Dedication is the key to organizing a successful grassroots organization.

According to Cheryl Sznyszewski, the organizer of Friends of the Wilcox House, dedication is the most important element of getting a group headed in the right direction.

"The biggest key to the whole thing is having someone who really, really cares. As members begin to lose faith, someone has to be there to pick them up," she said.

Sznyszewski got the Friends of the Wilcox House organized more than a year ago, after it was announced that the historic Wilcox House in Plymouth would be demolished to make room for a condominium project.

That news upset many people, in particular Sznyszewski, who decided to do something about it.

"I talked to a couple of other people who were upset about it, and then I took out an ad in the paper asking people who might be interested to come to a meeting."

She said 25 people showed up at the first meeting, which was more than she expected, and the group grew from there.

Today there are estimates of 75 members, and although the effort has slowed because of stalls in the project, Sznyszewski said nothing has been dropped.

She also explained how the group evolved from several people "brain storming over coffee" to a much more regimented style of business.

"Just before the project began to slow, we were really going. We had elected officers of the club, and were getting into using Robert's Rules of Order and keeping minutes of the meetings -- we were getting very formalized," she said.

Even outside of the meetings, Sznyszewski said that the work of the group was ongoing.

"Communication in citizens groups is very important. My family was always asking when I was going to get off the phone. I was talking to people every night, until 11 or 12."

And the message was getting through to the right people.

She said she talked with many members of the media, members of city council and state and even national law makers -- all in an effort to save the house.

At one point the Friends had a plan drawn up by the Wayne County Parks Department, looking at several possible sites to have the house moved to.

"It just goes back to really, firmly believing in your cause," she said. "There are going to be people who are highly critical and you have to get by that."

Even today, with the project at a standstill, Sznyszewski keeps the flame burning on the issue.

The meetings have stopped for the time being, but the cause has not been forgotten.

"I think we were very successful in our project. I still do not want to see the house demolished, and I am very interested in keeping up the organization."

A self-contained sub

BY DAN NESS

You can't get more grassroots than your average subdivision homeowner's association.

And when it comes to those homeowner's associations, it would be difficult to find one more active than the Sunflower Village Parks Association in Canton.

"It's really like a community within a community."

That's how the president of Sunflower Village Parks Association describes the common thread that binds the members of that homeowner's association.

"What we've got is a mix of gals and guys with different career backgrounds, all inputting with a common goal, which is what's best for Sunflower and its residents," said Vic Gustafson.

"We pride ourselves on that." Gustafson presides over one of the biggest -- if not the biggest -- neighborhood groups in The Plymouth-Canton Community. The association, which formed about nine years ago, represents more than 950 homes. There will be about 200 more homes by the end of this year.

It is not a loose association.

There is the annual Sunflower picnic, the annual Sunflower Run and the annual Sunflower tennis tourney for residents. Sunflower residents keep informed on neighborhood goings-on by reading the Sunflower News, the bi-monthly newspaper of the homeowner's association.

"You've got a group of active people there," Gustafson said. "We're not just active in Sunflower, we're active in the community. We take a professional business approach to the running of the subdivision, with each of us having our areas of responsibilities."

Gustafson is confident of the key to Sunflower's success as a neighborhood organization -- positive relationships with all it comes into contact with.

"We're very upbeat people," he said. "Working with people from a positive standpoint is the big secret. A good working relationship with the community is so key."

As president of the homeowner's association, Gustafson does not hesitate when replying to the question: How does one know what more than 950 homeowners are thinking on a particular issue?

"Simple. Your telephone keeps ringing."

Gustafson also stressed that the Sunflower Village Parks Association thrives on non-confrontational interaction. There is no "bashing" of other interests, or "drawing of guns," as Gustafson describes it. Sunflower's homeowner's association goes about business as a business does.

"That's just the way we operate."

Final parent-toddler class for New Morning preschool

The final session of New Morning School's Parent-Toddler Class will begin on Thursday, April 30.

The introductory preschool class is for two and three year olds and their parents. During the spring session, classes will feature weekly field trips to community sites.

There is a Thursday night class from 6-7 p.m. (for toddlers 24-36 months old) and a two Friday morning sessions from 9:15-10:15 a.m. (for toddlers 24-32 months) and 11 a.m. to noon (for toddlers 30-36 months).

All of the sessions are $28 for seven weeks.

Field trips tentatively planned include Maybury Park, Yankee Air Force, Dominoes Farms, swimming at Murry Lake, Ann Arbor Hands-on Museum, and a parachute and scavenger hunt.

Lynda Zahm is the course instructor. She is a New Morning teacher who holds degrees from Wayne State University and Eastern Michigan University.

For further details call New Morning School at 420-3331. The parent cooperative is located at 14501 Haggerty Rd. in Plymouth Township.

Lions to conduct White Cane drive

The Lions Club of Plymouth will conduct its annual White Cane Drive on Friday and Saturday April 24-25 in the shopping centers and on street corners in Plymouth and Northville.

The Lions Club has provided glasses for needy Plymouth and Northville school children and large print books for the libraries in the two communities.

The proceeds from all donations will be used to continue the many Lions Club projects which are familiar to Plymouth and Northville area residents. These projects include:

- Leader Dogs for the Blind;
- white canes and Braille watches for the blind;
- Michigan Eye Bank Research Center building fund;

• glasses, eye examinations, hearing aids and hearing exams for any needy child or adult in the Plymouth and Northville communities. More than $2,000 is spent annually for children's eyeglasses by the Lions.

- Penrickton Center for blind and deaf children;
- Welcome Home Apartments for the blind.

Carpenter fete brings City to say farewell

BY T. M. SMITH

Last Friday Plymouth's Cultural Center was a "Who's who" around noon-time for people in the City of Plymouth.

The big event was the retirement of one of Plymouth's finest -- police officer Lt. Dan Carpenter.

The luncheon affair was attended by members of the city commission, the mayor, the city manager, city employes and friends who all showed up to pay tribute to Carpenter's 28 years of service as a Plymouth Police officer.

During those many years of service Carpenter served the department in many roles. He was especially remembered for his dedication to the younger members of society.

He served for many years as Plymouth's juvenile officer, as well as duty time in the detective bureau, firing range instructor and patrol supervisor.

"He was always had a real commitment to the youths," Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers said.

But Myers said he will be remembered most for the kind of man he was, as well as the kind of police officer.

"First and foremost, when you think of Dan Carpenter, you think of his sincerity. He was a very sincere man. He really cares about people in general."

As a tribute to his retirement, the luncheon was a sending off for the officer -- with gifts from the city, his fellow officers and friends.

CEP drops pole vault

BY KEN VOYLES

The pole vault is out.

Both the varsity boys track teams at Salem and Canton will opt out of any pole vault competition this spring, said Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Athletic Director Paul Cummings.

"It's strictly a safety decision," Cummings said. "Between the type of training necessary and the problems maintaining the proper equipment we've decided to drop it this year. There are just too many accidents possible."

Cummings said nearly 100 schools in the state have already dropped pole vaulting for safety reasons this spring.

Salem and Canton are not alone in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) conference.

Apparently both Walled Lake Western and Walled Lake Central have also dropped pole vaulting.

Northville and Westland John Glenn are still considering doing so also, said Cummings.

"We'll just have to forfeit the pole vault this year against any teams we face that offer it," said Cummings, who added that the conference would take a formal stand on the issue after this year's season.

"We want to be fair about this," he continued. "We don't want to shortchange any teams with or without pole vaulting."

Cummings said the CEP track coaches have reacted in a "very positive" manner toward the move.

Canton man charged

BY DAN NESS

An 18-year-old Canton man was arraigned on April 8 on charges of negligent homicide in connection with a fatal car accident on Ford Road April 7.

Susan Hebbler, 48, of Dearborn Heights, was killed when she swerved to avoid a car in her lane and struck a semi-trailer truck about one-quarter mile west of Canton Center Road on Ford Road on April 7, according to Canton police.

Hebbler was driving east on Ford Road at the time of the accident, according to police. Another car was traveling west in Hebbler's lane, passing two cars and the semi-truck, according to Canton Police Information Officer David Boljesic. Hebbler swerved into the westbound lane, colliding with the truck.

The truck driver was treated and released from Oakwood - Canton Health Center.

Mark Aichele was arraigned in 35th District Court in front of Judge John MacDonald. He was released on $5,000 personal bond. A preliminary exam will be held April 20.

Deaths

Croll, volunteer educator

Majorie L. Croll, 46, of Plymouth Township died April 11 in Ann Arbor. Services were April 14 at First Presbyterian Church in Plymouth with the Rev. Mark Morningstar officiating.

Mrs. Croll was born April 7, 1941 in Chicago. She was a volunteer with the Plymouth-Canton School District, active at Allen School as a math tutor, TAG volunteer, member of the bucket brigade and was president of the PTO for two years. She was also a substitute teacher for the schools.

Some of her other involvements include being a member of the First Presbyterian Church, TAG advisory Committee, the A.A.U.W. and the Arts Council.

Survivors include: husband George Croll; daughter Jennifer; son Paul; parents Mr. and Mrs. Rollin H. Simonds of East Lansing and brother Richard Simonds of East Lansing.

Burial was at Riverside Cemetery and memorial funds have been established with the First Presbyterian Church and the Educational Excellence Foundation. Local arrangements were made by Schrader Funeral Home.

Langkabel, homemaker

Ruth Langkabel, 60, of Plymouth died April 7 in Plymouth. Services were April 10 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church with the Rev. Richard Perfetto officiating.

Mrs. Langkabel was born in 1926 in Tawas City, MI and came to Plymouth in 1952. She was a member of the Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, and was a homemaker.

Survivors include: husband Leigh Langkabel of Plymouth; sons Joseph of Highland, Kevin of Detroit, Leigh of Plymouth and Paul of Plymouth; daughters Connie and Ruthie, both of Plymouth. Also surviving were five grandchildren: Carrie, Cherie, Brian, Dustin and Kristen; five sisters and three brothers.

Burial was at Riverside Cemetery, with memorial contributions accepted in the form of mass offerings. Local arrangements were made by Schrader Funeral Home.

Ethier, born in Canada

Horace J. Ethier, 84, of Canton Township died April 7 in Ann Arbor. Services were April 10 at Schrader Funeral Home with the Rev. Timothy Hogan officiating.

Mr. Ethier was born in 1902 in Canada, and came to Plymouth in 1938. He was retired from Burroughs in 1964 after 45 years of service. He formerly sang with the 'Plymouth Coraleers' and was a artist by hobby -- painting in oil.

Survivors include: daughter Jacqueline Weise of Canton; granddaughter Debra Masta of Garden City and two great grandchildren. Also surviving was a brother and a sister, both of Canada.

Burial was in Riverside Cemetery, and memorial contributions can be made to the Michigan Heart Association.

Steiger, former resident

Adeline Steiger, 92, of Tampa, FL died April 8 near her home. Services were April 13 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church with the Rev. Timothy Hogan officiating.

Mrs. Steiger was born in 1894 in Detroit, and came to Plymouth from there. She was a resident of Plymouth until moving to Florida.

Survivors include: niece Leona Schomberger of Plymouth, along with several other nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions can be made to the V.F.W. National Home, or mass offerings. Local arrangements made by Schrader Funeral Home.

Leonard, Yacht member

Norman W. Leonard, 75, of Plymouth died April 4 in Wayne. Services were April 7 at Schrader Funeral Home with the Rev. Timothy Hogan officiating.

Mr. Leonard was born in 1911 in Detroit, and came to Plymouth in 1962 from Redford. He was a member of the Tonquish Creek Yacht Club, and was cited by the Plymouth Jaycees for his volunteer work.

Survivors include: daughter Norma Kinden of Garden City and son Patrick Leonard of Farmington Hills. Also surviving were three grandchildren.

Burial was at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Southfield.

Chiefs fall to N'ville softball team Monday

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Canton's girls softball team was dumped by the Northville Mustangs, 16-7, Monday night.

The Chief pitchers gave up a combined total of 16 walks and 11 hits. "We just can't give up all those walks if we want to win," head coach Max Sommerville said.

The Mustangs were all over the Chiefs until the fourth inning, when Northville changed pitchers.

"When they went to a new pitcher, we had a little better luck," Sommerville added.

The Chiefs went on a rampage in the fourth inning, as they scored all seven of their runs in the top half of the fourth.

Laurie Madson started the game for Canton. She lasted all of three innings. Madson was then relieved by Sherri Arello, who finished the game for the Chiefs.

"It was a tough loss, but Northville earned the win," Sommerville said.

On Friday, the Chiefs got their first win under their belt as they pounded Walled Lake Western 9-3.

"We played very well in that contest," Sommerville said.

Madson was the starting pitcher. She went the distance, only walking five batters while she picked up the win.

The Chiefs were letting their bats do the talking in the game as they exploded for all of their nine runs in the fifth inning.

Kelly Lyngenfesler sparked the attack with a bases loaded single.

"That hit really helped us out," Sommerville said.

Kelly McCumber played a fine defensive game, according to Sommerville, as she helped turn two double plays. The second double play ended the ball game.

The Chiefs are now 1-3 on the year, but according to Sommerville, the young Chief team is getting better and better all of the time.

"The girls are still working hard, and playing hard," Sommerville said. "We have a lot of games left, and this team is constantly improving."

CEP kickers battle to a 1-1 tie on Friday

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Canton's girls soccer team met up with neighbor rival Salem on Friday, and like any other Rocks-Chiefs sports clash, it was an up and down battle ending in a 1-1 tie.

"It was your typical Salem, Canton contest," Salem head coach Ken Johnson said.

Julie Stabnick got things rolling for the Chiefs. She struck first for Canton early in the game to put them in front 1-0.

"We played a hard fought game," Canton head coach Don Smith said. "Everyone on the team gave it 100 per cent in game, and that was really nice to see."

Canton was attacking the ball quite well, according to Smith. "The girls were always going after the ball," he added.

But the Rocks were not to be held scoreless as Jenifer Belhart put one into the net. Michelle Minton assisted on the goal for the Rocks.

For the remainder of the game neither the Rocks or the Chiefs were able to generate a goal and they went home with a 1-1 tie.

"I think our girls played a fine game, both offensively and defensively," Johnson said.

The Chief's defense played a strong game, according to Smith. Cheryl Nippa, Shelly Tutor, Molly Menard, and Erin Morgan led the Chiefs on defense as they held the Rocks to only 15 shots on goal.

Last Wednesday the Chiefs met Livonia Churchill. The Chargers were just a little too much for the Chiefs, winning it 2-0.

"Churchill is a very good team," Smith said. "They (Churchill) attacked the ball quite well, and were a bit more aggressive than we were."

On that same day the Rocks took on and shutout Livonia Stevenson for the first time since 1983, by a score of 3-0.

"It was a great game for us. We played very well," Johnson added.

Minton led the Rock's scoring attack, as she came up with a hat-trick, scoring all three goals. Assists came from Terri King, Lisa Hysko, and Jill Estey.

One big loss occurred in the Stevenson contest, Estey injured her knee, and will be out of the Salem lineup until after spring break.

"It's tough loss for us, Jill is great player, and we'll miss her while she's not in the game for us," Johnson said.

The day after the game with Canton, Salem took on top state contender Troy Athens.

The Rocks gave Athens a battle, but lost the contest 1-0.

"Athens is good team, and it was nice to see the girls play so well against them," Johnson said.

On Monday, state rankings were released. There were five of the top ten teams in the state from the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA). Salem was ranked third in the state, while Canton was ranked fifth.

The Rocks are 3-1-1 overall and 3-0-1 in the WLAA, while the Chiefs are currently 2-1-1 in the conference.

Win season openers

CEP net teams start strong

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

Both Salem and Canton have started the spring tennis season on the right foot. The Rocks are 2-1 thus far, while Canton's boys team is 2-0.

The Rocks, led by co-captains Mark Rearick and Ted Hanosh, beat Walled Lake Central, 7-0, Monday for their most recent win.

Bob Breach and Wade Garard beat their no. 1 doubles rivals 6-1 and 6-0, while Jeff Stomber and Lem Yeung were successful at no. 2 doubles, 3-6, 6-2 and 7-6.

Rich Cundiff won at no. 1 singles 6-2 and 6-4, while Rearick also beat his Central foe (at no. 2 singles) 6-2 and 6-1. Hanosh won at no. 3 singles, 7-5, 4-6 and 7-6.

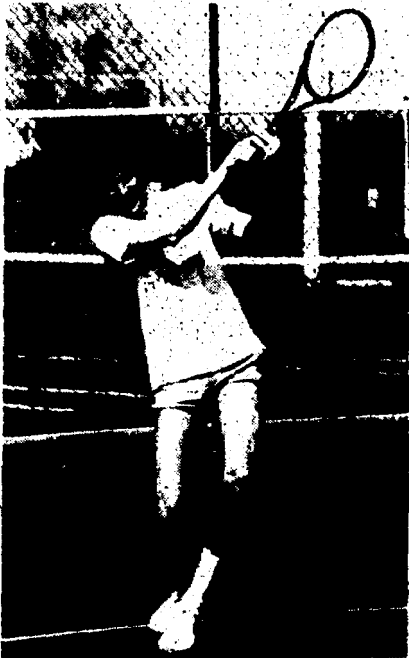

Canton has also been successful in the early going this spring, racking up two wins in two matches.

The Chiefs, led by junior captain Mike Burt, have beaten both Walled Lake Central, 7-0, and Walled Lake Western, 6-1.

"We hope to be competitive in the league," said veteran Canton coach Jim Hayes.

Canton's tentative line-up is as follows:

Burt is Canton's no. 1 singles man, while Dan Oriandi, a sophomore, will fit into the no. 2 singles slot and Steve Schmitt will play no. 3 singles.

Ehren Koelsch and Rich Gurchek are the school's no. 1 doubles pair, while Jim Allen and Jeff Williams will play at the no. 2 doubles spot.

Tony Spagnoli and Dan Nowicki will play no. 3 doubles for the Chiefs.

According to Hayes, Canton is young but experienced on the court as well. The Chiefs return eight lettermen from last season.

SALEM

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem boys track team is getting geared up for a season which head coach Gary Balconi hopes will be a successful one.

Last year the Rocks were 4-2 in dual meet competition, a season Balconi was happy with, but one he hopes his team can improve on.

"I think we're going to get better and better as the season goes on," Balconi said.

This year the Rocks' three captains should bring some good leadership to the squad, according to Balconi.

Senior captain Brian Neuhardt is probably the fastest sprinter in Plymouth's history, according to Balconi.

Chris Hill, senior, and Jeff Armstrong, junior, will also aid the team with their leadership as captains, and both are expected to have fine seasons Balconi added.

The Rocks are in pretty good health right now, but they do have their share of sore legs, and aches and pains, said Balconi.

Salem will be strong in many areas this year.

In the high jump senior Doug Soho, and sophomore Mike Albertson will anchor the team with help from senior Dave Collins and senior Rich Goodman.

In the long jump Shawn Hunter will lead the attack for the Rocks. Hunter has already leaped 22 feet this year, and is looking real good according to Balconi.

Jay Baylock, Romolo Maura, and Jeff Justice will be flexing their muscles in the discus and shot put events.

While back on the track junior, Kevin Jones, Bill Atwell, and Doug Vergari will lead the team in the distance races.

Juniors Alan Rye and Brian Grapentein should run the half mile in good times, according to Balconi.

There are also other members of the team who will lend a hand for the Rocks this season.

Mike Park, Keith Smith and Shawn Sims could give the Rocks some needed support. And freshman letter winner from a year ago J.P. LaRoche, will also add strength to the Rocks' squad.

"This should be a good year for us," Balconi said. "If we stay healthy, and continue to improve, we could go a long way this year."

CANTON

BY MARTY TUNGATE

The defending Western division champions of the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) — Canton's girls track team — may have a chance to repeat as the division champs again this spring.

Last year the Chiefs ended their season with a 5-1 dual meet season, but this year could be different, as head coach George Przygodski said.

"We have a few holes to fill this year," Przygodski said. "But I think we have the talent to fill those holes."

The team, which is itching to get the season under way, is one of the larger groups at Canton in quite a while.

"We have a lot of bodies out this year, and it should help us a great deal," Przygodski added.

The Chiefs will be led by senior captain Angie Miller, who captured first place in the Michigan Indoor Track Club Association high jump this winter.

The Chiefs will also be led by senior captain Tricia Carney, who is the defending conference champion in the 400 meter sprints.

Junior Tonya Walaskay is looking to help out the Chiefs in the long jump, plus she also holds the school record in the 110 hurdles, with a time of 17.4 seconds.

"Tonya will really help out the team this year," Przygodski said.

Distance running could be a strong point for the Chiefs this year, as it will be led by freshman Lori Penland, junior Karen Blouch, sophomore Cindy Spessand.

In the shot put and discus the Chiefs will be led by freshman Susan Ferko, and senior Vicky Minar.

Miller will be the top leaper in the high jump, closely followed by senior Janet Armstrong.

In the sprints senior Yolanda Horton, junior Heather Miller, and freshman Kristi Drugar will also compete for the Chiefs.

"I think this going to be a pretty good team this year," Przygodski said. "We're in a tough conference, but I like to think we could compete with them."

Although the team will be a young one, Canton could yet retain its division title in the WLAA.

Depth to help Salem girls tracksters

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

Depth is of extreme importance when it comes to a track team, or for that matter any sport, but especially in track.

Which is why track coaches love to see as many kids out on the track as they can get, and Salem girls track coach Fred Thomann is no exception.

Last track season the Salem track team was very large, and again this year the school will field a team of about 50-60 girls.

Kristen Hostynski, and Lisa Mickey are the co-captains for the team.

Hostynski, a senior, is a key hurdler and long jumper for the team, while Mickey, also a senior, is a distance runner for the Rocks.

Preview 1987

SALEM

Other contributors to the team will be Brenda Boyd, a senior distance runner. Jenny Sample and Kim Mishner are junior standouts in the distance events. Shannon Donnelly and Traci Thomas are the sophomore distance runners and Amy Hobgood is a freshman standout for the Rocks in the distance events.

In the sprint events Thomann will turn to Jenny Smith, Heather Harwood and Leigh Zelek to get the job done.

Keri McBride and Nicole Wygorik are the hurdlers in addition to Hostynski which Thomann plans to count on.

Bennett honored by Alma

Mark Bennett, a 1984 graduate of Canton High, was honored at the Alma College 1987 Men's Basketball Awards program recently.

Bennett, a six-foot, two-inch guard and forward, earned his second varsity letter at Alma.

He shot 87.5 per cent from the free throw line during the season, which ranks him seventh on the all-time Alma College free throw percentage list for a single season.

Bennett is the son of Daniel and Sharon Bennett, of Canton.

He is a junior majoring in business administration at Alma.

Millington: 'I question everything I see' newspapers.

"I guess I just can't help myself," Millington said. "Every problem is a challenge, and I like challenges."

In a sense, Millington's life has been a challenge. As a graduate of the seventh grade, Millington began work before he was a teenager. By the time he was 16, he had a full-time job at General Motors, and before long was marching into the plant manager's office with new ideas.

"I question everything I see, and if I see a better way, then I'll tell somebody. I have enough confidence in myself to be able to talk to anybody," Millington said.

"I never took a blueprint as a final word. Once the engineers gave it to me, I would look for a way to improve it."

That same attitude has carried through to Millington's personal life, and his intense involvement with politics.

"I'm financially minded. Not because I'm good at it, but because the other 95 per cent (of the people) just aren't interested."

In fact, over the years many of Millington's public comments have come in the form of questions on tax increases.

"I used to love to watch the school board. I didn't want them to get more than they needed," Millington said with a smile. "They always asked for twice as much as they needed, but never had to cut a program."

But Millington has served on the other side of the fence as well.

He was a trustee of the Plymouth Township Board for eight years, and chaired almost every committee appointed by the township.

The first project Millington involved himself with after moving to the township in 1949, was forming the Community Improvement Association in 1954, which he was the president of for 10 years.

"That was my first taste of politics. We had 125 members, and we got them on different boards and helped guide the township," Millington said.

Since that time Millington picked up steam, as he involved himself with seniors programs, county programs, recreation, sewer or any issue that needed a solution.

"I have a habit of trying to fix other people's problems," Millington said. Even today, in his recliner, surrounded by notebooks, newspapers and old stories, Millington enjoys relaxing in his "work chair" and reading the newspaper looking for items of interest. He still writes letters, and keeps very active in community affairs.

"What I like to do is think I'm helping younger people. When I was young older people helped me, and I learned a lot from them. This is just my way of giving something back," Millington said.

'I'm concerned about the children' coming in." Sharon Kozub said she joined the group because she was upset over what was going on in the district. "I just feel the negative approaches to teaching need to be changed," she said.

Another member, Judy Brilla said, "Unless parents get involved things will not get better. If you can't stand up and make your vote count, don't complain."

Like Tefft and Brilla, many other CBE members have children in the district. Some, like Gentry, have withdrawn their kids from the schools.

"We're not mad," said Buswinka. "We're just in the process of waking up."

"I'm concerned about the children," said Milly Lewis. "I was aghast that this material was alright to show in the schools."

Mary Dahn, another school board candidate, said she read the group's first newsletter and was so "appalled and shocked" that she joined. Some of the funds needed to support the group come from member donations, but Daskalakis admits nearly 90 per cent of the funding comes out of her own pocket.

And grass roots organizations can be expensive, she added.

"Before you ever organize you should make sure there is a need," said Daskalakis. "If you can't find people with a similar concern there might not be much you can do."

"Historically we've done nothing as Christians," said Raymor. "We've kept our mouths shut hoping the system would take care of itself."

"But it hasn't."

Canton sewer situation

resolution, which is part of the municipal compliance plan for Canton, would come in June, "if all sides agree to the language," Knueve said.

"Things have been working out well so far," Knueve said. "We're optimistic that this will lead to a solution."

The DNR had refused to issue sewer construction permits to developments in Canton since November, citing a lack of sewer capacity. Township officials disagreed sharply with the DNR regarding the sewer capacity issue.

Canton is also one of three communities, along with Northville and Plymouth townships, that formed the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA). The WTUA communities will be sending its sewer water to a treatment plant in Ypsilanti after a system is constructed.

Henshaw retires from CEP

Before he arrived in Plymouth-Canton, Henshaw served with the U.S. Army's Medical Corp during the Korean War.

"I originally wanted to be a doctor," he said, adding that he gave up the idea when daunted by the time and expense involved.

Besides teaching Henshaw has also been known for his community service and volunteer work with the Civitan Club - a group he's belonged to for 15 years.

Henshaw has also worked with the local YMCA Board, as an Indian Guide leader, and with the Special Olympics.

"The Special Olympics have been the most dear thing to my heart," said Henshaw, who has had two children of his own go through the school district. Henshaw will be kept busy this summer as president of the Fall Festival Board. He hasn't made any specific plans once that project is finished.

"It's totally open right now," he said. "Except we plan to stay in Plymouth for the immediate future. I'll do some more volunteer work, maybe at a hospital."

Eventually Joe and his wife Janet may leave the community for parts north or south.

For now, though, the familiar fatherly figure will remain a fixture in The Plymouth-Canton Community, recognized as an unsung hero both for his teaching and his community service.

Addenda & errata

Salem softball player Denise Tackett was incorrectly identified in a cutline in the April 8 edition of The Crier.

Angie Miller finished second in the high jump at the Michigan State University Spartan Relays.

Christian Hebel, from Plymouth, was misidentified in the April 1 edition of The Crier. We regret the gender mix-up.

HI MOM! HI DAD! (Bet you were looking for this!)

Jayne, your new home is nice.

Colleen - good luck on the new job!

Congrats Salem Mock Trial Team - 5th in state.

Ed, please tell me again what you just said - slower - how much have you had to drink?!

Ed and Karen - wow, what an exciting Saturday night!

Ed Wendover is afraid of the rain - maybe because it will mess up his hair.

HAPPY 40TH BIRTHDAY UNCLE DICK!
 Love,
 Deb & Ron

Karen, Michelle, Melissa and John, this is REALLY the last curio you'll ever get, because now I'm gone too! Love, Colleen

 HI Uncle John - I love you! John Neal
 Erich I'm proud of you! Love you Laurie
 Ok, Ok, just who is this Dick Klippstein person with the bunch of Buffet albums?

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
 Holy Spirit, You who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and You who are in all the instances of my life with me, I in this short dialogue want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank You for your love toward me and my loved ones. Person must pray this 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After the third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be, then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. C.H.

Skip CLAPTON FOR GOLF league? Bruce and Steve must be crazy! What about their sock drawers?
