Former supervisor McEwen dead at 87

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for the "Mayor of Plymouth Heights" — one of Plymouth Township's most colorful characters.

John D. McEwen, former Plymouth Township Clerk and Supervisor died Friday at his home in Plymouth Township. Visitation will be held this evening at Schrader-Howell Funeral Home, where the funeral will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

A staunch opponent to combining the township and city of Plymouth, McEwen was elected mayor to Plymouth Heights — a city that existed only as a stall tactic to annexation.

McEwen served in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II, and was a member of both the VFW and Elks Club. He was an employe of Wayne County in the early sixties when he became clerk in the township.

He took over the position of clerk to fill a term left vacant by the death of Fred Miller. After fulfilling that term, he was elected to a second term in 1964.

Soon after his election, he was asked to fill the supervisor's seat, after the current supervisor, Roy Lindsay, died. When that term was over, he ran for the seat again and was elected supervisor in 1966.

While McEwen was in township office, there was a push to incorporate the eastern part of the township into the city of "Plymouth Heights." This proposal

Canton officials deny nepotism in bid process

Canton administrators deny favoritism after awarding the Summit on the Park and Pheasant Run Golf Club food and beverage concession contract to Summit Cuisine — a division of Cregar Enterprises run by Matt Durack — brother of Canton Administrative Services Director Dan Durack.

Dan said he was not involved with the bid proposal evaluation process and had nothing to do with Summit Cuisine receiving the bid.

"I stayed a million miles away from that," Dan said. "The board knew he was considering submitting a proposal."

When Matt was contacted for this story, he said Dan was "a distant relative," and would not say exactly what their family relationship was. "(Dan) wasn't involved with anything that had to do with anything," Matt said regarding the bid process.

Of the five bidders chosen as finalists, Cregar Enterprises' revenue estimates were the least financially profitable to Canton.

Cregar estimated $204,800 in profit going back to Canton for the three-year contract under their initial bid. As a company, Cregar actually expected to lose money their first year. Final profit estimates under the negotiated contract are not yet available, according to Canton Community Center Manager Debbie Bilbrey-Honsowetz.

The other bidders were Great Events, Katherine's Catering and Special Events, Canteen and Marriott. Cregar and Great Events were the finalists in the bid evaluation process.

Great Events proposed a commission schedule of 12 per cent of the base food sales, 70 per cent of the room rental charge, 80 per cent of the bar sales at the Summit and 60 per cent of the bar sales from the Pheasant Run clubhouse for a total estimated return of $1,384,740 back to Canton over the three-year life of the contract.

Although many Canton administrators were involved in the food and beverage contract proposals, the final decision to recommend the Cregar bid came from a committee consisting of Municipal Services Director Aaron Machnik, Chief Financial Officer John Spencer and Honsowetz.

Ash charged in Arts Council embezzling case

BY ALEX LUNDBERG

A signed complaint and warrant has been sent out from 35th District Court through the Michigan State Police (MSP) for the arrest of former Plymouth Community Arts Council Treasurer Gerald Ash.

The complaint and warrant, signed by Judge Ron Lowe, charges Ash with four counts of uttering and publishing (in this case, writing checks known to be false) and one count of embezzling.

According to Lowe, two of the checks were written to Discover Card Services, one of which was endorsed by Ash rather than Discover. The two other checks were written to Sparr's Flowers and River's Edge Marina Inc.

All four of the checks also bore the forged signature of PCAC Executive Director Randy Lee. As of presstime, Lee could not be reached for comment.

Lowe said the charge of embezzling, which was only specified as being over $100, carries a penalty of 10 years in jail or $5,000 in fines. The four counts of uttering carry a 14 year penalty each.

According to the MSP, the amount in question is approximately $35,000. The MSP said that Ash would be arraigned later in the week.

Lights rejected for Mayfair Village Subdivision

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

Turn out the lights.

The Canton Board of Trustees rejected a petition from residents of the Mayfair Village Subdivision to create a special assessment district for the installation and maintenance of streetlights.

Trustees rejected the proposal following the public hearing Tuesday. Opponents of the project, which would have cost each homeowner in the subdivision a one-time installation charge of $20.84, and $21.41 each year, showed up at the meeting in force and voiced their concerns with the tax district.

Dave Thomas, president of the Mayfair Village Subdivision homeowners association, said assessment districts should be created only when a strong majority of homeowners support the project. 215 Mayfair residents responded to the streetlighting survey.

108 voted in favor, 107 were opposed.

"In my mind," Thomas said, "it is a very close call. I would rather see an overwhelming majority one way or another before putting the (tax) burden on the residents."

Of the seven residents that spoke up at the meeting, only one supported the lighting proposal.

Ron Kretschmer said he supported the assessment for safety reasons. "I have young children," he said. "Safety and security is very important. Sometimes you can't see the children playing or they can't see you."

Thomas asked Canton Public Safety

Department Director John Santomauro if lighting subdivisions reduces crime.

"We've had this issue raised before," Santomauro said. "In Canton, we've found there is no difference."

Mayfair Village Subdivision is located near the corner of Joy Road and Morton Taylor.

tract with Cregar — a contract where Cregar would agree to pay Canton 19 per cent on all "inside catering" revenue. Inside catering is defined as all food and beverages prepared at the Summit on the Park and Pheasant Run Golf Club and served on site. The contract also calls for eight per cent commission on all "outside catering" revenue. Outside catering is defined as all food and beverages prepared at the Summit on the Park and Pheasant Run Golf Club and served off site.

Honsowetz said she did not know Matt was Dan's brother until after the final decision to choose Cregar was made.

Machnik said no special consideration was given to Cregar and many criteria other than finances were used to evaluate the bids.

"As with any bid," he said, "we went out and got the best qualified at the best price."

Spencer said Matt worked his way up through Cregar and is a long-time employee of the company.

According to the bid proposal, Matt has been with the firm for 22 years, starting out at the General Motors Management Center as a dishwasher. He has a degree in hotel, restaurant and institution management.

The Cregar contract was unanimously approved by the Canton Township Board of Trustees at its meeting last Tuesday.

was put to a vote, along with a vote for the mayor of the new city.

McEwen was elected the Mayor of Plymouth Heights, but voters rejected incorporation of the city, and so McEwen's new title left him with no city to rule.

This situation led Fred DeLano, editor of The Plymouth Mail (a newspaper formerly published here) to dub McEwen "Emperor of Plymouth Township." The former supervisor loved to keep that joke going — especially when the Delano family moved in next door in later years.

McEwen retired in 1970 to his home in Plymouth Township. He loved to recount stories of the old political days while hosting friends in his back yard.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, and the many friends he made over the years.

Fireworks spark lawsuit in Canton

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

Burda Bros. of Canton and their attorney Hugh Davis hope their fight to legalize the sale of fireworks causes a legal revolution this Fourth of July.

Canton officials and representatives of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office said if anyone buys illegal Class B fireworks from Burda Bros., they will be prosecuted.

According to Canton detective Rick Pomorski, five individuals from Burda Bros. have already been charged with sale of illegal fireworks. The five charges will be grouped for a common court date Friday before Judge Ron Lowe in the 35th District Court.

According to Michigan State Police Fire Marshall Capt. Wade Schaefer, sparklers and smoke snakes are a few of the items that can be legally used by consumers in the State of Michigan. He said devices that explode in the air, rise off the ground, or when exploded make a loud noise are prohibited.

Davis said Burda Bros. is not selling any fireworks that are not federally approved.

"We've let everyone know that we're going to fight these charges on legal grounds," he said.

Burda Bros. was denied a fireworks display permit at Tuesday's meeting of the Canton Board of Trustees.

The permit was filed by Elissa Burda on behalf of the American Fireworks Users Association — a group the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office says is a front to sell illegal fireworks.

Burda Bros. proposed a group fireworks display to be held on July 4 between 9:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. at a three-acre site on Michigan Avenue. Customers purchasing fireworks would join the American Fireworks Users Association and gather at the site to light the fireworks under the supervision of Burda Bros. employees.

"These kinds of schemes have been struck down time and time again," said Chief Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor George Ward. "They are trying to fall under an exemption that isn't

Ann Arbor Road plan moves forward

BY PETER BRODERICK

Ann Arbor Road and Plymouth's downtown area have caused several community entities to cooperate in a way that has never been attempted before.

The City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and businesses all over the community are involved in a program to revitalize the "Ann Arbor Road corridor," while making it consistent with the basic themes present in downtown Plymouth's streetscape.

The Ann Arbor Road Business Team, a committee of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, has been working on the idea since January, according to chairperson Kelly McCarty.

According to the township's Director of Public Services James Anulewicz, five competing architecture firms came together at a meeting June 7. "The group met in an extensive, intensive experience," said Anulewicz. "The group came up with sketches and written documents that are both being refined." He said that the conclusions the group came to will be presented to the community in the next few weeks.

"It's important for the community to remember that there has to be this talking stage," said Anulewicz. "It's a tool to get us moving in the right direction."

There are four main ideas that the group came up with as high priority for the development of Ann Arbor Road and the entrance to the downtown area.

First, "Create an improved business climate through organization and enhancement of the physical environment." Anulewicz said this consists of setting up guidelines for businesses and landowners to give the area "cohesiveness."

Second, "Strengthening the connection between the Ann Arbor Road corridor and downtown Plymouth." As the main entrance to the downtown area, Anulewicz said Ann Arbor Road should be consistent with Main Street and downtown. "It's like saying your house and your driveway are separate."

Third, "Create a system of linked 'focal points' along the Ann Arbor Road corridor." Anulewicz said that "focal points" are still being defined, but the main three will be the intersections of Ann Arbor Road with I-275, Main Street and Sheldon Road.

Finally, "Create a more unified landscape theme while providing for individual business expression."

"This is not duplication," Anulewicz said, "but a blending and coordination that leads to a complimentary situation for the entire area."

He said that part of the "coordination" would be to give developers a limited palette of styles to choose from. That way, when landscaping, building or remodeling are complete, there will be some consistency in the area while individual businesses keep their own distinct look.

The project is currently still in planning and development stages. Anulewicz said he expects to see diagrams, sketches and a written document from the architects in a few weeks.

Ann Arbor Trail pedestrian island court date delayed

The show cause hearing for the Plymouth Downtown Development Authority and City of Plymouth regarding the temporary restraining order stopping the construction of the pedestrian island on Ann Arbor Trail has been moved to July 14.

The hearing was scheduled to take place last Friday, but was moved to give the DDA and city more time to prepare for the court date.

The case was initiated by Bill Beitner, owner of Beitner Jewelry, to stop what he feels is an unnecessary and unsafe pedestrian island.

DDA officials said the pedestrian island will slow traffic, making the crossing safer.

The Plymouth Community Chorus (PCC) embarks on its maiden U.S. tour tomorrow, with a show in Pittsburgh. From there, the PCC travels to Washington D.C. for a Friday afternoon performance at Mt. Vernon. Saturday's itinerary includes a morning tour of the White House followed by a performance on the Capitol steps and at the Lincoln Memorial. The PCC will also lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The tour wraps up Sunday with a 25-minute performance prelude to the Eucharist service at Washington National Cathedral — the second largest in the U.S. — a truly great honor. The PCC is extremely grateful for the community support which made the tour possible.

The Plymouth Playscape received its finishing touches last weekend, when squares engraved with the names of those who contributed funds were put in place.

The Big Band concert held in Northville last month raised over $1,200 for Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan. The concert, organized by band member Bob Williams, was held in honor of Marie-Claire Williams.

Kiwanians celebrate 70th anniversary

BY BRIAN CORBETT

There are over 170 clubs and groups in The Plymouth-Canton-Northville Community, the purpose of many remain unknown to residents. That is why Dave Wright and the rest of the Kiwanis Club of Plymouth held a reunion recently honoring longtime members, celebrating its 70th anniversary and publicizing its mission. "People don't what we're about," Wright said. "Heck, I was one of those guys. I always used to go the Pancake Breakfast... (Current Kiwanis Club president) Bob Gall goes to the same church, and that's how I got involved. Then, I brought it up to my wife, and she comes out of the woodwork saying her father was Kiwanis; her father recruited half these guys."

The reunion dinner, held at the Mayflower Hotel, recognized constituents who have been instrumental in the development and perpetuation of the club.

"A lot of people had not seen one another for a while," Wright said, "some came from another state. They had a fantastic time reminiscing."

As Wright watched the parade of honorees, he realized the Kiwanis Club was aging; that it is lacking a link to the younger generation. "We need new blood. There are very few of us under 50," Wright said. "The old-timers have the resources, but they're physically unable to do it."

Wright is referring to the labor performed in the construction of brick walks and benches in Kellogg Park, a shelter in Plymouth Township Park and, most recently, The Plymouth Playscape. Also, Kiwanis has funded The Gathering, the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps and the Plymouth Symphony through a variety of fundraisers. It sponsors Boy Scout troops, scholarships and families in need. "Whatever's good for the community," said Wright. "It's all that type of stuff: something that isn't funded by local governments, and is a community service, we get involved."

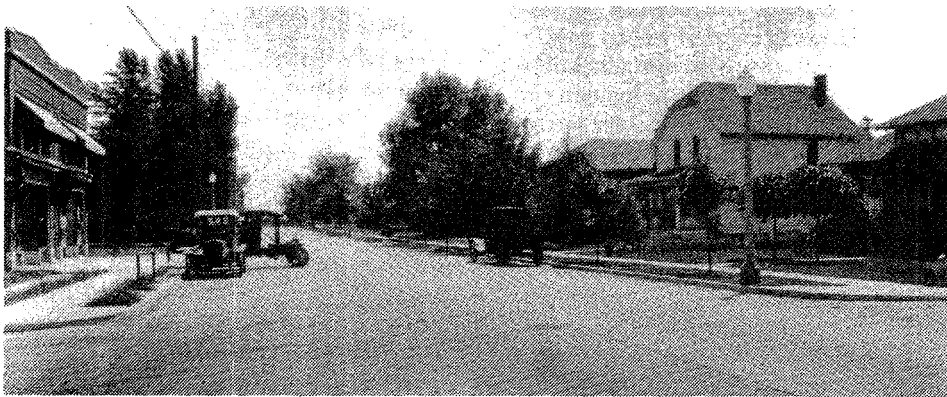

The next major community event is the Pancake Breakfast at the Fall Festival. It is an opportunity for Kiwanis to keep in public eye.

"We have to promote what we've been, what we are doing; keep our name out there," Wright said. "We have to get that age group down... We need to attract interest. This isn't something you jump up and join."

Library offers circus reading atmosphere

BY BRIAN CORBETT

There is a circus-type atmosphere at the Dunning-Hough Plymouth District Library.

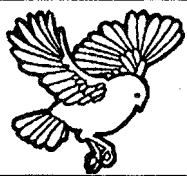

It is summertime, and reading programs are about to get under way. For ages 12 and under, there is "Books under the Big Top," young adult readers can try to solve a mystery in "Murder Under the Big Top" and, for the first time ever, there is an adult program: "Run Away with the Circus." Said adult services coordinator Geraldine Barlage: "Things don't slow down here in the summer. We don't like to get them too far away from reading."

Returning again this summer are programs for readers from preschool to 12th grade. "Murder Under the Big Top" is a program based on the game "Clue." Those readers who solve the mystery, while reading at least six books, are eligible for the drawing. "As they submit each reading," said Barlage, "they get a choice. So after each mystery book, they get a clue."

"Books Under the Big Top" is a traditional summer reading program for children between the ages of six and 12. The "Read-to-me" program for children six and under, provides an opportunity for family members for spend time together. "It's particularly designed for their age group. It's usually a mother or father reading," Wright said. "Though, we frequently have a big brother or big sister."

Adults will be able to continue reading for their young children, but they will also be allowed to get involved personally for the first time. "We've been wanting to do it for a couple years, we just don't have the staff," Wright said. "So we approached the Friends of the Library about covering the costs... We were just waiting for the opportunity." Wright estimated over 300 adults have shown interest since June 1.

Curbing costs

Keeping pace with the growth of a family can be costly, Plymouth resale shop helps families get along

BY BRIAN CORBETT

Melanie Jeong ought to know — she has three kids. Buying clothes for rapidly growing children is costly. So two years ago she opened Bearly Worn Consignments, 294 S. Main St, and began reselling kidswear and maternity items. It has been so successful that Jeong recently completed an expansion that doubled the store's space. "It worked out perfect because the florist was moving out when we wanted to expand," Jeong said. "We were outgrowing our space."

The increased floor space allowed Jeong to add more items. "I used to carry children's clothes, maternity, toys and baby equipment," she said. "And now I carry women's clothes... We had a lot of moms shopping, and they said it'd be nice to have more women's clothes."

But before you drag out those dresses from 1970, be forewarned: Jeong has a stringent set of requirements for accepting clothes. "Kids clothes are so expensive to buy new. Most of the clothes I have look brand-new because I'm real picky," she said, "and you get them for half the price."

All items that pass Jeong's approval must be in "like new" condition. Toys must have all their pieces, clothes must have no stains or mending, be freshly cleaned, and in style and season. Jeong will buy children's clothing outright any season. "We consign and buy outright," Jeong said. "You make more money through consignment. We buy more outright up to size eight in children's clothing. After size eight, and all women's clothing, is on consignment."

For items sold under $50, the consignor receives 50 per cent of the selling price. For items $50 or more, the consignor will receive 60 per cent of the selling price. "I pay people fairly," Jeong said. "I pay people top dollar for name-brand items."

Jeong started her resale business as a compromise to her lifestyle, not knowing it was becoming a surging national trend. In 1987, resale shops topped out at $3.5 billion. By 1992, sales had climbed to $5.7 billion — a 62 per cent increase. "I used to shop resale for my own kids," Jeong said. "I wanted to open a business where I could have my kids with me... There are stores popping up everywhere."

Some items in high demand include OshKosh clothes and Playschool toys. If you are looking for something specific, be sure to notify Jeong. "We keep a wish list, like if people are looking for certain items," she said.

"Like one lady who likes European-style clothes, whenever it comes in, I call."

Bearly Worn Consignments has definitely found a niche in The Plymouth-Canton Community. "We're outgrowing this space already," Jeong said, referring to the expansion.

Collectible shop will feature appraisals

BY BRIAN CORBETT

Start digging through your closets, in your attic and under your bed for those childhood memories: Barbie dolls, GI Joe's and other action figures. This Saturday at the Robin's Nest, 640 Startkweather in Plymouth's Old Village, Paris and Susan Manos will be signing books, and giving free doll appraisals from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"These are our first big ones," said owner Jerry Sindici, who plans on scheduling more signing sessions. "It's being advertised, even in Royal Oak. There's a buzz all over."

The Manos have authored six collectible books, a majority devoted to Barbie and Ken dolls. "She has the most extensive collection of both," said Sindici. "She buys and sells... She does every type of doll." Sindici said Susan owns every item in her books.

In addition to autographing, the Manos will assess the price of dolls and figures, which can be surprisingly valuable. "There's this little Roman Holiday Barbie outfit, it's worth up to $3,000," Sindici said. "And you want to know something? It's in everybody's closet. If they want to bring it in, we'll tell them what they have. It depends on condition, and they can learn about Barbie. Everything in this store is a learning experience."

Sindici said action figures are enjoying a current surge in popularity among collectors. "GI Joe is the hottest collectible right now," he said. "Everybody's played with GI Joe, Batman, action figures; there isn't a Baby Boomer alive who hasn't."

Adding to the excitement are the numerous door prizes — up to $200 in value — that Sindici is offering to visitors. Those who decide to stop by have the chance to see an alternative antique store. Sindici has been improving the building since the spring, and it is just now starting to pay its dues.

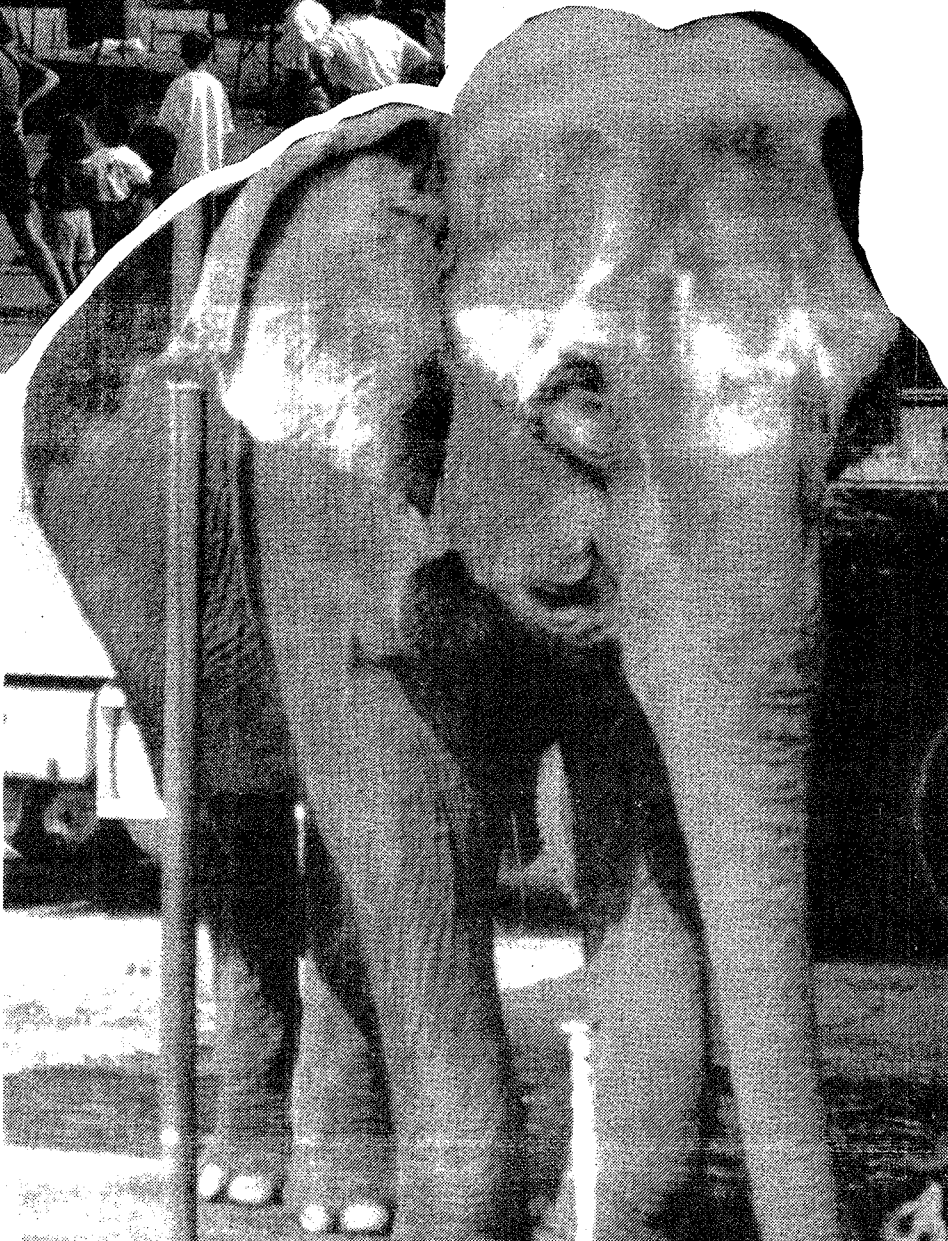

When Sindici moved into Old Village, he recalled the area's glory days when it was the premier antique shopping center in Michigan. Sindici said he hoped Robin's Nest would spark a revitalization.

Robin's Nest will continue to lead Old Village when it hosts Timothy J. O'Callaghan, a historical writer who researched Henry Ford's investments and creations in aircraft during the first half of this century — one called "Ford's Flying Wing" bears a striking similarity to the Stealth bomber.

Circus comes to town

BY MATT HUCAL

When it comes to a close knit group of people at the workplace, the staff and family of the Walker Bros. Circus are beyond compare.

The circus was in town yesterday performing in the parking lot of the Unisys building in Plymouth Township after much anticipation and excitement in the community.

It was quite an event for the area since it's been a while since a circus has been around, but for the many people responsible for putting the show together, it was business as usual.

The Walker Bros. Circus was established four years ago, moving about eight months out of the year starting every March with help from sponsors like the Jaycees and the Lions Club.

They travel all over the country nonstop, working seven days a week.

When the last show ends at 9:30 p.m., it's down with all the tents, pack everything up, and on to the next city. They arrived in Plymouth at 4 a.m. Tuesday and started putting up the big top and all the surrounding tents at 7 a.m.

The staff is usually finished a little after noon, then it's nap time.

One show started at 5:30 p.m. and another at 7:30 p.m. — when the shows are finished, it's on to the next city to repeat the process once again.

The Walker family began the circus and as of now, seven members are involved, with John and Jerry Walker as the co-owners.

The circus performed a show that included clowns, horses, a petting zoo, and just recently added were two performing elephants who also gave rides to willing participants.

Living on the road in trailers with the same people almost year round can be strenuous, but they deal with it in stride.

"We usually arrive in places real early in the morning, so we don't have a normal schedule like most. But we have never had any big problems with it," Jerry Walker explained.

While attending circuses it may seem like the atmosphere is always fun-loving, but behind the scenes a lot of effort is extracted to give each city a good performance night in and night out.

Schools mull alternate funding

No verbatim millage request will be sought according to Little

BY ALEX LUNDBERG
In the aftermath of the June 12 defeat of the 2.3 enhancement millage, the Plymouth-Canton School district now has to think of a different way to provide funding for the "three T's."

One of the selling points of the June 12 request is that after 1997, there will be no district-specific millages anymore. After 1997, all millages raised will be shared with the whole county. At least half of locally-approved millage funds will go to Wayne County.

According to P-C Schools Superintendent Charles Little, the failure of the millage was a learning experience.

"A lot of people supported the millage, I wish the majority of them did," Little said. "I think that people want to support the schools, but they need more confidence in the district."

"Everybody lost something last week. The value of homes is connected to the image of the schools."

While plans are still up in the air, Little said that there will not be a verbatim repeat of the June 12 millage request. "People would be asking themselves, 'which part of no doesn't the board understand? The schools just don't get it.'"

Little did say it was possible that another millage request might come next year.

"We might ask for some millage, a different amount and a different amount of time," Little said. "There would need to be more information out, people need to know that the district is spending more efficiently than the others in the area."

Will the fall of the millage, not only will the three T's go unfunded, but so will a lot of other projects not covered under the request (repairs, furniture, other infrastructure needs).

"Those projects are still on the list of capital projects for the future," Little said. "After we get a projection of growth in Canton we'll probably have to do more building of some kind."

"We don't have the money to do anything with CAP (the Class-size Action Partnership), the biggest part of the budget is personnel and there is nowhere else that we can make cuts," Little said. "We can't cut at a level that will raise millions."

One thing that Little said would be a real boon to the district is the ability to hold a gap election — a millage that would stay in Plymouth-Canton alone after 1997.

"We have to get permission to hold these gap elections," Little said. "Some of the high-spending districts are going to be able to hold enhancements and keep all of their money after the 1997 deadline. We have to organize a campaign to have these elections — but it would be better if it came from the citizens rather than from my office."

Double decker bus to serve City once again

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

Plymouth's double decker bus will once again be cruising city streets. The Plymouth City Commission voted Monday to sell the bus, which has sat in disrepair for the past four years, to the London Double Decker Bus Company for $1.

In return, the bus will be available to the city without charge for 50 days of use during the 10 year period of agreement. The company will restore the bus to working condition — at an estimated cost of $25,000.

The city will use the bus for the Fourth of July, the two-day Art in the Park festival and the three-day Plymouth Fall Festival.

Mayor Doug Miller said the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club — two of the major contributors to the original bus acquisition project — have no objection to the sale.

Commissioner John Vos said he is glad the bus will be used again for city functions.

Heat prompts odd/even water use schedule

BY ALEX LUNDBERG

Residents of the City of Plymouth, Plymouth and Canton Townships are being asked to be frugal with their use of outdoor water now that the hot and heavy days of the summer are officially here.

Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton residents are being asked by the Detroit Water and Sewer Department and the Michigan Department of Public Health to go to an odd/even water use schedule. Those residents with odd-numbered addresses are supposed to use outdoor water on odd numbered days — even numbered addresses are supposed to water on even-numbered days.

According to City of Plymouth Director of Public Works Paul Sincock, it's a side-effect of the summertime weather.

"The demand for water over the 122 communities that the Detroit Department of Water and Sewer serves is up at this time," Sincock said. "There's a lack of rain and more of a desire for people to keep their lawns and gardens up. It may be exceeding their capacity."

According to Canton's Assistant Superintendent of Public Works Joe Teramino, the request comes down on all communities using the Detroit water system.

"It's probably county-wide," Teramino said, "all of the communities that are using Detroit's water."

According to Teramino, it is only a request.

"We are not going to be enforcing this

"This is one of my pet projects," he said. "I'm glad it's not going to just sit there and decay anymore."

The restoration of the 1966 Bristol Double Decker Bus is expected to be complete within six months.

Liberty Fest starts Friday

The 1995 Canton Liberty Fest — in its fourth annual appearance — is sure to be bigger and better than ever before.

The three-day family oriented festival is set for this weekend, beginning Friday at about 7 p.m.. Events will be held on the festival grounds throughout Heritage Park, behind township hall along South Canton Center Road (between Summit Parkway and Proctor Road).

In its first year in 1992, the festival drew more than 35,000 people to Heritage Park, more than 25,000 alone to the Saturday night fireworks display. Despite inclement weather last year more than 40,000 residents and visitors from neighboring communities visited the festival site and the same number is expected to attend again this year.

There is no admission to enter the festival grounds and most of the activities are free of charge this year. Parking will be available in areas around Heritage Park, Township Hall, the Canton Public Library, the police station and Canton Historical Museum. There are events for young and old alike, lots of music, food, a classic car show, a fine arts show, arts and crafts booths, a mini-midway for kids, and much, much more.

with tickets if people don't abide by it," Teramino said. "It's not one of our ordinances."

Teramino also said that there has not been any complaints of loss of water pressure yet.

According to Plymouth Township Public Works Manager, Tom Hollis, Plymouth will not be ticketing as long as things go well.

"Right now it is temporary and voluntary," Hollis said. He admitted that that could change if people do not abide by it. "It could become mandatory if Detroit thinks there is a problem, then there is an ordinance we can enforce."

Hollis said that this usage schedule was in effect last year, but not much in years past.

As of presstime, the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department could not be reached for comment.

Fireworks spark legal debate in Canton intended for them. It's intended for municipal fireworks displays.

"If you (Canton Board) issue this permit, it will be null and void when you issue it."

Canton Public Safety Department Director John Santomauro said regardless of the legality of the fireworks being sold, the group display would be a public safety hazard.

"These are not the type of fireworks we remember as kids," he said. "This is a law enforcement nightmare. What benefit is there to Canton (if the permit is issued)?"

Davis said he has tried to work with Canton concerning the fireworks situation since last year.

"They sit there and act like the priests of the Inquisition," he said. "They continue to cling to their ignorance. These are internationally regulated fireworks."

At a hearing Friday before Judge John MacDonald at the 35th District Court, bond was set at $10,000 for the charges brought against Burda Bros. employees.

Davis said it was a confiscatory bond — meant to punish Burda Bros. in advance — and hoped for a $1,000 bond.

"This whole thing is an attempt to intimidate," said Davis. "It's ignorance that creates all this weirdness."

Santomauro said, "The bottom line is simply this: If you possess illegal fireworks, the Wayne County prosecutor will prosecute."

Pretenders to contenders

After a season that started with tag of 'rebuilding team' Canton softball squad showed power, expertise

BY BRIAN CORBETT

In a peculiar way, Canton softball coach Jim Arnold is glad his team lost in the first round of regional competition at Novi on June 3, and it is not because his coaching commitments were cutting into his fishing schedule.

Actually, the fact is he would probably still be cleaning his yard from another toilet paper sneak attack from his team, just like the drubbing his shrubs received after his team won the district title versus Churchill. "I guess I'm lucky in a way," Arnold said. "The toilet paper's still falling."

The toilet paper prank was just one example of a team that was young, but thrived off its youth.

A team that was inexperienced, but learned from its mistakes. A team that was tagged with the term "a rebuilding season" in response to a roster that was filled with underclassmen, but went 22-13 overall (9-7, third in the Western Division) and won the district title.

"At the beginning, we thought we had a real good chance of going far," Arnold said.

"We had a lot of new girls, and they had to get to know me. We knew the talent was there, it finally came together at the end."

The Chiefs started on the road to the regionals in April, but took a couple wrong turns in the early going, including a loss to eventual division champion Harrison.

Canton's evolution from pretender to contender occurred at the Chelsea Invitational on April 29 when Canton defeated Chelsea and Trenton, 2-1.

"Then, I think we started to realize: 'Hey, we're pretty good. We can play with anybody.'"

The next weekend was the Bedford Tournament, a good showing for the Chiefs and a new middle name for pitcher Jackie Nicastrì.

She threw a no-hitter versus Milan, and Jackie "no-hit" Nicastrì began rolling off the lips of every Canton fan.

A week later was the Canton Classic Invitational. Nicastrì threw another gem, this time against Detroit Country Day.

Canton finished third behind state semi-finalist Lincoln Park and regional nemesis Belleville.

Several sophomore team members became key contributors. "The surprise this season was how the sophomores stuck together," Arnold said.

"They showed a lot of motivation for sophomores. That'll help them out for next year." After that, Canton caught fire defeating arch rival Salem, winning the district and advancing to the regionals. The success was a result of team and individual efforts.

"Some of the individuals we had were just outstanding, a kid like (Jenny) Sikora who led our team with a .495 average; that comes out and gives it all every game. Amy Lagrow, who just did a fantastic job as a sophomore catching. Nicastrì, she kept us in every game all the time."

Other standouts included all-conference first baseman Amy Price, Nicole Kovachevich, Shelly Budski, Shana Bidwell and Denise Butske.

Many of these players will return next spring to form a team that, undoubtedly, will be one of the elite teams in the conference.

The buddy system

Plymouth residents keep an eye on each other as they prepare for Grand Rapids 24-hour national road race

BY BRIAN CORBETT

The buddy system.

It makes it harder to quit, and drives two individuals to diligently practice and workout.

Plymouth residents Rob Gribble and Trevor Loe have employed this training tactic to prepare for the National 24-Hour Challenge bike road race last weekend in Byron Center, MI, which is 10 miles south of Grand Rapids.

"We're a team, but we're opposite," said Roe, a 1990 Salem High School graduate and marketing major at EMU. "I'm more the roadie, he likes the off-road stuff. We both like this one though because we like the distance events."

The National 24-Hour Challenge is a non-stop bike race around the boundaries of Kent County. The goal for each rider is to accumulate the most miles possible. "Obviously, it's 24-hours. It's quite demanding," said Gribble, who has endured extreme heat, downpours and even tornadoes in the three years he has participated.

Gribble has averaged 215 miles in those years, finishing as high as third.

"I should be up there again this year," he said. "I've trained a little bit harder. Like, last year, it was hot and I got heat stroke. I'll pace myself better this time."

Gribble and Loe have trained for the event together by riding 26 miles every other day.

"That's nothing. It sounds like a lot," said Gribble, a 1991 Salem graduate and current Lawrence Tech student, "but it's nothing compared to what we're going to do."

The National 24-Hour Challenge consists of three routes. The 115-mile loop will take up a majority of the race, a 24-mile loop will lead into night and a six-mile loop will confine the racers to Byron Center during darkness as a safety measure.

"The main thing is that everyone gets through the event, and no one is injured," said Diane Obermeyer, who founded the event with her husband, John.

"The next important thing is personal accomplishment." Said Loe: "It's a lot more difficult. You can't compare it to any other race because you're not out against anybody else, you're racing yourself."

In order to finish first out of all the age divisions, Gribble and Loe would probably have to accumulate 450 miles, which they both readily admit is out of the question.

"It takes a lot to do stuff like that," said Loe. When they finally reach that plateau, they will be able to qualify for the Race Across America. "That's a ways away," said Gribble. "That's nuts."

Heritage Park to host soccer camp taught by Detroit Rockers

BY BRIAN CORBETT

A goose will be landing in Heritage Park in Canton this Monday.

Brian "The Goose" Finnerty, the star goalkeeper for the Detroit Rockers, will serve as head instructor for a soccer camp starting Monday and ending Thursday.

"I've been doing this for five years," said Finnerty. "This will be my fifth year that we've been doing these camps with Total Soccer."

Total Soccer, an indoor soccer facility leader, is sponsoring the camp in conjunction with the Rockers — an indoor soccer team in the National Professional Soccer League (NPSL.)

The camp is open to players of all ages and skill levels. Camp participants will receive a free replica Kendis NPSL soccer ball, sports tickets and other prizes.

But the Rockers' camp is not about quantity, Finnerty said, it is quality. "It's not all the giveaways, a lot of the camps do that," he said.

"But we have professional coaches here the entire time. You can't beat this staff... It's not just a guest appearance, it's full instruction."

Some of the other team members that will join Finnerty include Pato "The Magic Man" Margetic, "The Tower of Power" Sean Bowers and local products Lars Richters, Dominic Scicluna, Doug Landefeld and Brian Thiel.

With such a large coaching staff, Finnerty is able to cater to beginning, intermediate and experienced players.

"What we do is break down the kids into age groups on the first day, and 90 per cent of those kids will stay in their age groups for the entire camp," Finnerty said.

If a youngster exhibits an athleticism that is inadequate or overpowering to their peers, he or she may be moved into a more appropriate group — upon parent approval.

When things get underway, participants can expect a different teaching method from Finnerty and his staff. "It's more soccer fun than skills," Finnerty said.

"The kids are going to learn a lot, but they're not going to learn by dribbling through cones.

"That's the easiest way to teach somebody: let them have fun. I know I have fun when I practice. These kids will play a lot of soccer related games."

At the conclusion of camp, participants will have new friends and a better understanding of the game.

Finnerty will be able to see the results in their playing ability, and in the stands when camp participants come to watch him tend net for the Rockers.

"For me, it's not only at the end of the week you see a little bit of difference," he said, "it's six months later when they come up to you and say, 'Wow! It really works. What you taught me in camp really works.'"

Fun run

More than 1,000 runners from all over the state and other states showed up for the Plymouth Family YMCA's 16th Annual Run this past Father's Day. The event, which is one of the top 50 of its kind in the state, was the biggest yet for the YMCA. All funds generated by the race went to benefit the Y. (Crier photos by Carly Grisius)

Driving range to benefit Special Olympics

BY BRIAN CORBETT

Just another drop in the bucket.

For the second consecutive year, Jean Wright, owner of Tri-Kor Golf and Country Club, 5994 Gotfredson Rd. in Plymouth, donated 25 cents for every bucket of golf balls hit on Memorial Day weekend to the Special Olympics.

"There's a need to help the organizations that help people achieve a lifestyle,"

Wright said. "It gives everyone a chance to compete."

Last year, Wright donated to Special Olympics, the National Arthritis Foundation and the Make-A-Wish Foundation. She decided to hold another fundraiser this year because of "the enthusiasm of the people."

Also, making donations is a way of repaying the community support she has received in the eight years Tri-Kor has been in business. The results were, once again, rewarding.

"We had a very fruitful event at Tri-Kor," Wright said. "We appreciate the support from the community. We had a great time."

Tri-Kor features grass tees, mats, sand traps and a putting green. It is open seven days a week, 7 a.m. until dark.

Business owners express anger over lawsuit

EDITOR:

Regarding the Streetscape Island on Ann Arbor Trail that Mr. Beitner is so opposed to, as business owners in the downtown area we are appalled at his course of action (filing an injunction to stop the construction of the island) at this stage of the streetscape project.

The streetscape project has been in process for over 5 years. During the past two years the project has intensified to where numerous public meetings have been held to keep us informed of what the progress has been. Information supplied by Steve Guile at the DDA has been more than sufficient in keeping us informed of all aspects of the project. Mr. Beitner, where were you when these public meetings were held?

The Island on Ann Arbor Trail is one of the most vital aspects of the entire project. Why? Attempting to cross Ann Arbor Trail at Forest is like making your life into your own hands as motorists fail to observe pedestrians as they try to cross. Shoppers in the downtown area must feel safe. The primary objective of this entire project is to make the area pedestrian friendly, not to make our town a general thorough fare. Experts have already approved this element of design and do not agree with Mr. Beitner's "unsafe theory."

Therefore, as business owners we strongly OPPOSE Mr. Beitner's actions of filing an injunction to stop construction of the Ann Arbor Trail Island or any other part of the streetscape project. Our concerns are from the view points of our customers. The Streetscape Design gives the customers what they want, a safe pedestrian-friendly area to walk, stop and to feel safe!

EDITOR'S NOTE: This letter was signed by six business owners on Penniman Avenue, 14 from Main Street, nine from Ann Arbor Trail and 25 from Forest Avenue.

Neighborhood bands together to find lost tot

EDITOR:

On Monday evening about 6:15 there was a knock at our door that my wife Nancy and I will not easily forget. It was Sheri across the street asking if we had seen Lena, her two and-a-half year-old daughter. I was just talking to Sheri and her two daughters minutes before and now Lena was missing.

We looked in both houses then started asking all the neighbors. The neighborhood came alive, it was unbelievable how everybody rallied together, people who had never met were all working together. It made me very proud to be part of that community.

I must also give a big round of applause to the Canton police — they were outstanding — within two minutes of the phone call they were there. About one hour after this started, Lena was found safe and sound by her father Mike at the top of a playscape that have in their backyard. Three different people looked in that same place — it seems Lena was moving around. I think she was scared with everyone yelling her name.

I just wanted to send this letter so that I could say how proud I was of our small community at the corner of Longwood and Edgewood and the Canton Police. I'm also happy that there can be a happy ending to what starts as a tragedy.

Voter apathy caused millage to fail

EDITOR:

The enhancement millage lost by 197 votes! It infuriates me that there may have been 198 Plymouth residents in support of the increase, who didn't exercise their right to vote. Had those people done just that, the children of Plymouth-Canton schools would have gotten new textbooks and computers, and their teachers would have gotten tools and training. The Plymouth-Canton schools spend $5,500 per student per year. Livonia spends $1000 more per student!!! If Plymouth residents don't support the schools by passing very much needed millage increases, the quality of education will not improve. Therefore home values may decrease, and Plymouth may lose it's appeal as a great community and wonderful place to raise a family. Please consider this with the next millage increase.

Clock remains symbol of Plymouth

Although Plymouth's clock has moved to its new home at the corner of Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail, it still remains the symbol of the city.

The clock was purchased for the city by Harold and Geneva Guenther in memory of their son Peter.

For years, the clock stood on its stone base along Main Street at Kellogg Park, standing guard and always keeping perfect time.

It is possibly the most recognized symbol of the community.

At its new home, the clock will be even more visible. From either direction on Main Street, the clock is the centerpiece.

Plymouth Downtown Development Authority officials made the right decision to move the clock.

The symbol of the community should be in the most visible location in town.

The gift of the Guenthers keeps giving. As Geneva says,

"When you give a gift, it's forever."

What better way to symbolize forever than with a clock — and what better place for that clock than at the crossroads of Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail — the center of town.

As the Plymouth Streetscape continues, lets remember some of the history of our community. Without the gifts of others, Plymouth would be just another city.

Flag Day event ignored by community

EDITOR:

It was an overcast and chilly day on June 11th. In Kellogg Park the Elks Lodge was holding its annual Flag Day dedication ceremony. The history of the Flag was eloquently given by Mr. Franz Brenner and the soloist Mr. Magyari sang superbly.

As a spectator I was moved by the reminder of what the American flag - our country's banner - means to me, but I was also saddened that so few people came to participate. I guessed there were more people participating in the ceremony than there were spectators. As I sat there listening to the tributes to the flag I could see people walking along the sidewalks around the park and didn't detect any interest or curiosity on their part as to why several proud standard bearers held flags.

Only one walker showed interest - a young father with two children in a stroller. What a sad tribute - so little interest in the one symbol that is recognized throughout the world - the American flag. Thanks Elks - a great presentation.

Attorney supports Whyman's court stance

EDITOR:

I applaud the courage Representative Deborah Whyman has demonstrated by introducing legislation to correct a fundamental flaw in our Court system.

The present system provides for two separate Courts, of equal authority and overlapping Jurisdiction, (Recorder's Court and Wayne County Circuit Court), that simultaneously serve Wayne County, however, all Wayne County voters elect the Wayne County Circuit Court Judges but only Detroit voter's elect the Recorder's Court Judges.

Unless an affirmative election is made within a short period of time in a Wayne County criminal case, you can have a Recorder's Court Judge hearing a case involving an alleged crime committed outside of Detroit.

The result is a Judge hearing the case who is not accountable to the people affected by their decision.

Critics who have alleged a racial motivation for Representative Whyman's proposed legislation:

1) Miss the fundamental point of making elected public officials accountable to the persons they represent;

2) Are prematurely speculating on the racial make-up of the future

Wayne County Circuit Court; or

3) Have a vested interest in the present flawed system.

If Ohio voters could elect both Ohio and Michigan Judges but Michigan voters could elect only Michigan Judges, but could be forced to have their cases heard by an Ohio Judge, would there not be an outcry to correct the injustice?

Sweet act causes sweet tooth

EDITOR:

While standing in line at the "Breadwinner" on Saturday, June 10th, a wonderful thing happened.

I was talking with the gal in front of me when her son and husband came in.

The gal said, "Do you want a Scotchie cookie? The reply was, "Yes, and a chocolate chip also."

I then said, "The white chocolate cookie looks good, I'll take one of those!"

We had a good laugh and she left the store.

Much to my surprise the clerk handed a cookie to me and said the gal left 60 cents for a cookie to give to the lady behind her. What a wonderful way to start a weekend. Thanks a lot, I enjoyed the cookie!
