

Art in the Park returns to downtown Plymouth

BY SONJA MAGDEVSKI

Dianne Quinn radiates with energy and excitement when she discusses Art in the Park, the annual art festival in Downtown Plymouth that she founded fifteen years ago. And with good reason. It was rated one of the top art festivals in Michigan by AAA magazine, next in line only to the Ann Arbor Art Fair.

Her first festival in 1980 had only 30 artists and it rained all weekend. She advertised with flyers and collected good artists to display their work. The city did not even know what was going on in the park. She did not plan for the occasion to turn into an annual event. She did not even have plans for the year after her first show. Quinn says she began the show because, "I love what people do with their hands and minds. Arts and Crafts people need an outlet and the festival seemed the best way for them to display and sell their work. It is excellent exposure and so much fun."

The fun from that rainy weekend 15 years ago has turned into a national event bringing hundreds of artists from across the country to apply for a position in the show. Three hundred and fifty artists and craftsmen from over 100 cities throughout Michigan and 100 out of state artists from over twenty-one different states will display their work this year. "Because of the notoriety of this event within the artist community, we get better and bet-

Horvath named vice president, Maloney treasurer — Artley remains president, Davis secretary

BY BRIAN CORBETT

The Plymouth-Canton School Board elected officers at Monday's regular meeting.

The election filled the positions of outgoing vice president Sue Feiten and treasurer Roland J. Thomas for 1995-96.

Trustee Mark Horvath was unanimously elected vice president after being nominated by secretary Sue Davis. Horvath's School board term ends in 1998.

Later in the meeting, Horvath nominated trustee Michael Maloney for the position of treasurer. Maloney, who was sworn in as trustee on July 1, was also unanimously elected.

President David Artley and secretary Sue Davis were elected to their positions for the next year. Artley and Davis were also elected with no dissenting votes. "I think we're fortunate to have competent School board members," said P-C Schools Superintendent Charles Little, "who are really committed to have kids learn."

The newly aligned school board then moved to approve a resolution that will approve new boundaries for two precincts involving Plymouth Township. The School board moved to keep schools' enrollment area in line with voting areas, which are being moved because of a new Michigan law that states boundaries can longer be non-geographic regions. "That's the reason it's being done," said Little, "it had to be moved to a road."

The resolution is also an economic move to save money on duplicate mailings. All residents living in the two precincts will receive a notice. "It's one

PCAC's Ash may be placed in 'diversion program'

BY PETER BRODERICK
AND ROB KIRKBRIDE

The legal fate of Gerald Ash, who allegedly embezzled as much as $40,000 from the Plymouth Community Arts Council while serving as the group's treasurer, is expected to be decided this morning.

The PCAC and their counsel, Eric Colthurst will meet with representatives from the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office to determine whether the case will be brought to court or be placed in the "diversion program."

Under the diversion program — which was requested by Ash's attorney according to Colthurst — Ash could pay the entire amount allegedly taken from the PCAC in exchange for immunity from prosecution and a clear criminal record.

Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Clay Davis, who heads the diversion program said that although Ash has not officially applied to the program, his application was "imminent."

Little reflects on first year as superintendent

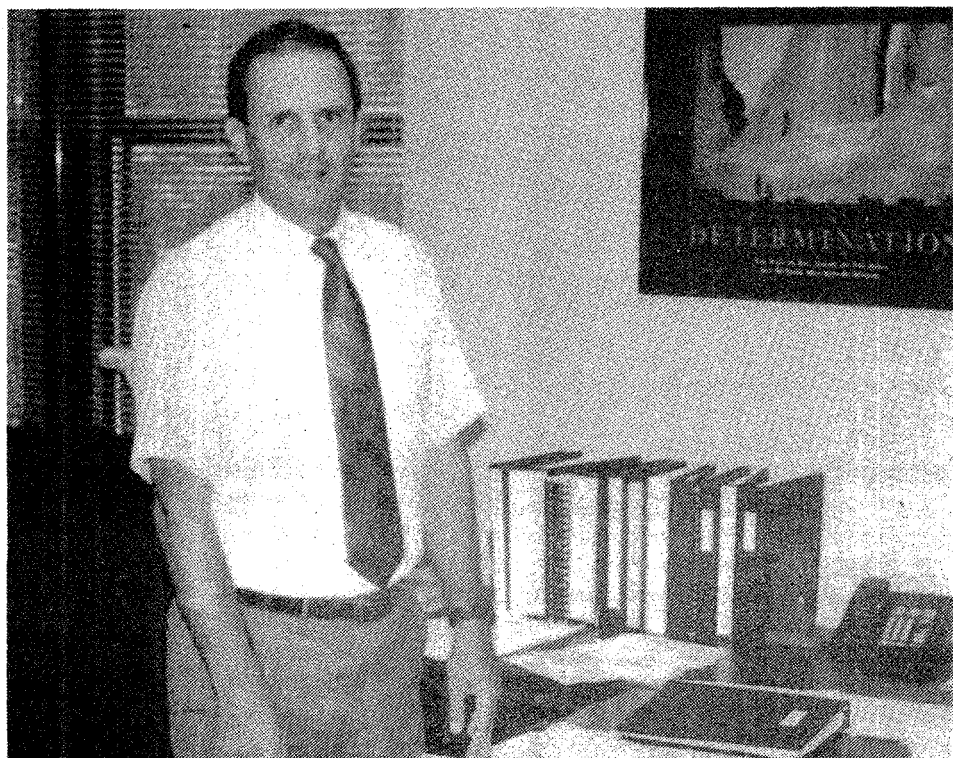

BY BRIAN CORBETT

Time flies.

Just ask Plymouth-Canton School District Superintendent Charles Little, who just completed his first full year on the job. "The speed of the year has been rapid to say the least," Little said. "It went by in a flash."

Little assumed the the P-C Schools' most important post on July 10, 1994. He was originally scheduled to serve until 1997, but after receiving an excellent rating from the School board's evaluation committee, Little's term has been extended to June 30, 1999. The extra two years will allow Little to continue working toward the completion of numerous goals drawn up by a community committee last year:

- Strengthening communication and interaction between the schools and parents. "We have to do more things where people take ownership for the school district," Little said.
- Improving teacher instruction. "Certainly, I want to have a balanced approach to what I do," Little said, "but the district needs to move toward an instructional program."
- A long range plan that will cover many areas in consideration, such as, proper staffing.

Plymouth-Canton Schools' Superintendent Chuck Little has had some success in his first year — he has also suffered a few setbacks. (Crier photo by Peter Broderick)

"I hope that everyone in the school district knows our business is teaching and learning," Little said. "That's what this year's centerpiece was... We've got to emerge as one of the top districts in the state."

Little's short superintendent history has contained some surprises, some setbacks and some success. It is all part of the job, Little maintains. "I don't think I've been surprised by the specter of the job, that doesn't surprise me at all," Little said.

A few notable occurrences: P-C Schools Assistant Superintendent for Business and Operations Ray Hoedel announced his retirement, the voters denial of a request for a 2.3 mill enhancement for instruction in June and the passing of Proposition A, which revamped public school funding by rolling back state allocation of funds to those previous to the inclusion of property taxes. "Every district surrounding us has more money," Little said. "We've basically been penalized for having good management."

Currently, the P-C School District spends $5,400 per student. "There is a high degree of uncertainty in support and direction from Lansing," Little said. "There's money being taken from district."

But the money loss has not effected the schools quality. "I've been in a lot of classrooms, and I've seen a lot of good teaching," Little said.

Twp's Keen-McCarthy: 'We don't have a prayer of winning this...'

Temple Baptist's lawsuit may be key in battle over land use, citizens voice outrage

BY BRIAN CORBETT

At a special Plymouth Township Board of Trustees meeting at Salem High School on Thursday, the Temple Baptist Church submitted a revised plan for the worship center they hope to build at the corner of North Territorial and Ridge roads.

It was an attempt to bring a compromise settlement in a lawsuit Temple Baptist has filed against the township, and to reconcile with township residents angered over construction of the worship center in an overwhelmingly residential area.

The battle began last fall with Temple Baptist's initial plan calling for a 244,300 square foot building. The Township's Planning Commission denied the proposal, so Temple Baptist filed suit under the Religious Freedom Restoration Act — a 1993 federal law designed to protect church events that coincide with the parishioners religious belief. In essence, the suit charges the city violated Temple Baptist's religious freedom. "If it wasn't a church, we'd have a different situation," said Carol Rosati, counsel for the township.

Said Township general attorney Timothy Cronin: "The netting effect is that it removes the municipality's control... zoning does not apply."

Also in the lawsuit — due in federal court on Sept. 1 — is $5.2 million in damages should Temple Baptist lose its potential buyer for the building it is leaving because of the delay caused by the township. However, the Temple Baptist does not wish the problem to be resolved by winning a lawsuit said Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy. "The Church wants to come here and attract membership," said Keen-McCarthy. "They feel if they compromise, they won't be viewed as the bad guy."

The revised proposal was scaled back by 26 per cent to 180,000 square feet, and includes numerous restrictions and requirements for special events, landscaping and on-site capacity. Open space has been increased by 11 per cent and pavement reduced by 27 per cent. Cronin, Rosati McCarthy, and Township director of public services James Anulewicz urged residents to accept this proposal. "We'd have a very difficult time — a very difficult time — proving what we have to prove to get around losing this case," said Cronin.

Said Keen-McCarthy: "We don't have a prayer of winning this lawsuit, and pardon the very bad pun."

But that did not satisfy a majority of the approximately 70 people in attendance, who prodded Township officials to continue the battle. "I've seen nothing here tonight to change my mind," said one man.

"Basically, our complaint is the size of the project," said Patrick Van Tiem, a resident of Plymouth Commons subdivision which shares a property line with the church.

"And it's not just on Sunday, they talk about Sunday School" added Sandra Progar, referring to Baptist tradition that calls for frequent gatherings during week nights and weekends that residents allege would increase traffic in the area dramatically.

Still other residents, convinced it is a done deal no matter what they do, stated their worries about enforcing the restrictions included in the consent agreement currently being considered.

"Are we going to pay somebody to police the church? The notion of that seems way out there," said Robert Richards.

Several suggestions submitted by residents at the meeting for additional provisions, will be taken into consideration by the township. The matter will be discussed again at the township's next board of trustees meeting on July 25.

ter artists all the time. I no longer have to collect artists. Now, internationally award-winning artists call me to be in the show," said Quinn.

The incredible increase in the show has brought about incredible responsibilities. Quinn plans year round for this event and decided to quit her other work to concentrate on Art in the Park. The flyers once used for advertisement have now extended into posters, postcards, t-shirts and television commercials. The organization of food and entertainment are also large, time consuming projects besides all the arrangements for the artists concerning their locations and special requests.

Quinn works with the entire community to prepare for the show. She considers all the suggestions local businesses have and tries to include everyone in the fun. Her first few volunteers have grown into dozens of people helping to keep the show safe and smooth. "The volunteers who want to be here for the show make it happen. It is so much fun and we have worked so hard through the years to make this event what it is today."

Art in the Park will be held on July 15 and 16 from 10 a.m. to 7 a.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Original paintings, photography, stained glass, pottery, jewelry, sculptures, art wear, furniture and floral designs are only a glimpse of all the work that will be displayed and available for purchase. Clowns, magicians, mimes and hands on art activities will be included in the park, along with kite displays and unique tents in the shape of castles and other designs for children to see.

The entertainment will be located in all areas of the show and will include The Mike Berst Dulcimer Group, Chautauqua Express, The Vocal Arts Ensemble of Michigan, Bakra Bata—a steel drum band from Seattle, Washington—and Americamanta which is Andes folklore.

more step in collaboration between the school district and the community as a whole," said Davis.

There was some concern that the confusion about where to vote may occur with school enrollment too. "This is a real irritation to people," said Maloney.

Maps will be made available at the each polling station and at the E.J. McClendon Educational Center, 454 S. Harvey St., Plymouth.

Principals hired for Bentley Elementary, Central Middle

BY BRIAN CORBETT

The School board approved the contracts for 12 Plymouth-Canton Community Schools employees on Monday night, including the hiring of two new principals.

Paul Reeves, assistant principal at Central Middle School, was approved for the position of principal at Bentley Elementary School. Barbara Church, an area coordinator at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park (PCEP), was selected as principal for Central Middle School. "I think both of them are going to do wonders for the district," said trustee Barbara Graham.

Reeves and Church were chosen by a committee of seven people, including two teachers, two parents, a support staff member. Dr. Tom Tattan, executive director for instruction, said the process worked well and the interviews were conducted in a professional manner. Superintendent Charles Little said approved of the process also, saying, "I'm sensing some ownership on behalf of these stakeholders."

Reeves began his educational work in New Boston Schools in 1981-82 as director of the bands. Since then he has attained a bachelor's of arts in education from WSU and a master's of arts in educational leadership from EMU.

He joined Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in 1986 at East Middle School.

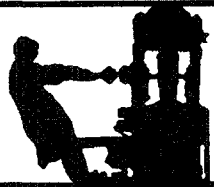

Church is a 17 year veteran of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

She has regularly taught math and science while working at three middle schools before becoming curriculum coordinator for science in 1986. She added mathematics to her curriculum in 1989, and was named area coordinator/assistant principal at PCEP in 1992.

Canton expects Ameritech construction this summer

Company will offer 800-number to answer customer questions during hook-up

The Canton Board of Trustees was expected to approve a cable franchise for Ameritech New Media Enterprises at last night's public hearing, which means construction of the system will likely begin this summer in neighborhoods throughout Canton.

Besides Ameritech's cable plans, residents should also be aware that the current Omnicom Cablevision system will be upgraded within approximately the same timeframe.

The first Ameritech construction — of what is expected to be a year-long building program for Ameritech New Media — will begin in areas along Sheldon Road between Ford Road and Warren Avenue. Ameritech will concentrate its work in public easements throughout the areas it plans to locate the cable lines — much of which is expected to be buried. The company's construction program calls for the use of "nodes" which can link up to 500 homes. Several "nodes" will be completed at any one time.

While the work in the subdivisions will follow public easements, residents also need to understand that those easements often run through their back or side yards, staff in Canton's Engineering Division explained. Other construction in the community will follow current Ameritech overhead wires, usually along major roadways.

Ameritech's initial goal is to construct its system south from Joy Road all the way to the line of Palmer and Proctor roads by the end of this year.

The rest of the system — to the southern boundary of the community — will be completed during the first quarter of 1996. That general schedule is subject to change, depending on the density levels in various parts of the community and practical field construction considerations.

Ameritech will be responsible for restoration following any work in the easements.

Residents with questions, concerns or problems during the construction will have several avenues to get help, either dealing directly with Ameritech and its contractor, NST, or dealing with a member of the Canton staff who will be assigned to be the municipal liaison. Ameritech is expected to use doorhangers to announce its schedule in each area and have an 800-number phone line available for concerns, questions or complaints during the construction.

Canton officials said they will work with homeowners associations, the media and the business community to keep residents informed on when they should expect construction in their part of the township.

Information will be released through the newspapers, the monthly FOCUS newsletter, the government cable channel, and homeowners' associations and their newsletters.

Negotiations with Canton's current cable provider over a franchise renewal are continuing with a final agreement possible later this year.

Omnicom, which is being purchased by the Continental cable system, is preparing to upgrade its current cable system throughout the community. That construction is also expected to begin later this summer. In practical terms, said Canton Engineering Division staff, residents in some areas can expect to see both companies working in the public easements.

Shrewsbury seeks access from Ameritech

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

Where's the public access?

That is the one question representatives of Ameritech are trying to answer regarding their tentative cable television franchise agreement with the City of Plymouth.

Plymouth City Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury said he is concerned that the Ameritech plan does not offer specific public access channels controlled by the public.

Under the Ameritech deal, the city will receive access to two channels. One channel will be reserved for government access and the other for education, the content of which will be regulated by the city.

Larry Monroe, a representative of Unicom, the cable consortium's consultant, said additional channels would be offered by Ameritech if public access was demanded.

"It has been a distinct pleasure sitting down with this company (Ameritech)," he said. "This franchise has been negotiated in 30 days, start to finish. It sets a new standard nationally.

"The bottom line is we strongly recommend this franchise."

Under the Plymouth City Charter, the franchise agreement must remain on file with the clerk for 30 days. There would also be an additional reading of the franchise during the 30 day wait period.

The city commission could feasibly approve the franchise at their Aug. 7 meeting.

The franchise was approved by the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees last week and was expected to pass the Canton Board of Trustees last night.

Northville introduced the ordinance at their June 27 meeting and was expected to adopt it last night as well.

Marching on

To commemorate 25 years of parade excellence, the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps is planning a reunion

BY ALEX LUNDBERG

The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, a group made famous by marching to the beat of the same drummer, has run into an interesting problem.

Now that past members have moved on (presumably they found new drummers to march to), organizers of the Fife and Drum Corps' 25 year reunion next summer have the unenviable task of getting all of the former members together.

According to Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps President Tom Quay, the organizational wheels are already turning.

"We put the word out to all of the members we could find," Quay said. "There are ads running on cable TV, in the newspapers and in the 'Ancient Times,' a fife and drum quarterly newspaper."

Currently, the plan is to hold the reunion in the near future, with a picnic and some fife and drum playing by both current and former members.

All of the members that Quay could find could be a large number of people. Quay said that this year there are 39 members of the Corps.

That number fluctuates from year to year and has been as high as 60 members in some years.

"Over 25 years, figuring that membership goes up and down," Quay said, "there could be as many as 800 former members of the Corps out there."

Quay said the main event at the reunion would be a muster, a mass performance.

"The last muster we had was at last year's Canton Liberty Fest," Quay said.

The problem with having a muster is not that there is a lack of talent, there is however a lack of fifes and drums.

"The logistics are being worked out right now," Quay said. "Most people who can play probably have their own stuff, Dress that horse!

Parade regular Charlotte Austin, of Plymouth, will now make her brightly colored designs for horse and rider available to the public. Along with Arabian designs, she is also offering a line of western showvests and apparel.

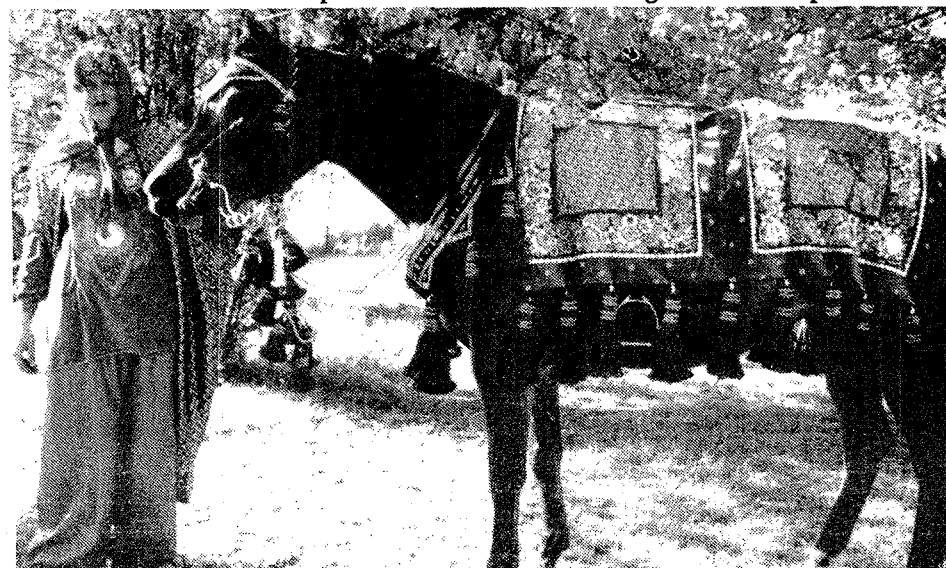

Former Fife and Drum Corps members interested in going to the reunion can either contact Reunion Organizer Mike Conte at 455-5298 or write at P.O. Box 70-1776, Plymouth, MI, 48170. (Crier photo by Carly Grisius) but right now we only have nine snare drums and we have six players."

But there won't be a talent problem.

"Once you learn to play you never forget," Quay said. "There is also some talk about forming an alumni corps."

Getting down to business

Neighbors in business

Tom Carroll, Chief Executive Officer of AmeriSpec Home Inspection Service, has announced the appointment of Plymouth resident Rick Bowling to the President's Advisory Council. AmeriSpec, a franchiser of home inspection firms, is the largest in the world with nearly 300 offices in the United States and Canada. Bowling will be responsible for representing the interests of the Midwest region which stretches from Texas to Michigan. "From Bowling's first year, when he was awarded Rookie of the Year, he has been a major asset to our organization," Carroll said. "Rick has consistently been not only a top performer, but a technical and marketing resource to numerous franchisees around the country."

In conjunction with the Professional Allied Florists Association of Metropolitan Detroit, Victor West, owner of Wesley Berry Florist of Plymouth, awarded Don and Kathy Shumaker of Plymouth a free weekend at Mackinaw Island's Mission Point Resort.

All members of the Florists Association invited customers to enter the contest.

In a related story, when West ran a contest to re-name the store (the store will soon be renamed Vanessa's Flowers — after West's daughter), Marguerite Poole of Plymouth won a dozen roses each month for a year. While her suggestion was not used, her name was drawn at random from the 80 participants in the contest.

The association is a 41 year-old voluntary group of Metro Detroit florists who seek to improve industry conditions. West has been a member of the association since his shop opened in 1992.

Orthopedic surgeon Dr. David Janda, of Plymouth was reappointed to the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports. The council advises the Departments of Public Health and Education in the coordination and development of statewide physical fitness and health programs.

Janda serves as Eastern Michigan University's Team Physician and President of the Institute for Preventative Sports Medicine.

Artistic support

Plymouth craft gallery chosen one of top 400 in the nation by most critical group in art business, artists

BY ALEX LUNDBERG

After 12 years of running his own business and 16 years in the art world, Penniman Showcase owner Scott Smith has been recognized by the most important people in his business.

The artists.

The Penniman Showcase was honored as one of the top 400 craft retailers in America by a balloting held by Niche Magazine (a craft retailer's trade publication).

The voting, which was done by 2,500 craft artists, was based on performance in buying, payment, marketing, store presentation and community outreach.

According to Smith, the award was not one he thought he would get.

"Being recognized by the artists is very flattering," Smith said. "I did not expect that."

According to Smith, being recognized by the artists comes from his recognition of his customers.

"It's respect, you have to treat the customers well," Smith said. "It's a simple theory of business: offer things at a good price with good quality."

"If you give good, you get good," Smith said. "It's the same in life."

Smith said he loved it when people come up to him and ask when his store will be open for business. "They look in the window and assume that the business is new, not one that has been here for 12 years." The award comes on the heels of 16 years in the art business which started in 1979 when Smith was working at Greenfield Village weaving baskets. After leaving there and selling his work to galleries for a time, he opened the Penniman Showcase in 1983.

According to Smith, the move to open in Plymouth was not viewed as a good one. "There are a lot of people who said that a store like this would never work in Plymouth," Smith said. "When I moved in the store wasn't even done yet. There were no windows and the floor hadn't been poured yet."

Since then, the Showcase has done good business, but Smith said he liked being on the other end of the art retail world.

"I miss doing my own stuff, most of what I do now is display and presentation," Smith said. "But I love my customers."

Clothier offers women what was a luxury for men only, a made-to-fit suit

BY ALEX LUNDBERG

It used to be that the only people who had individually tailored clothes were very rich men.

At Lauren Lein Inc., located at 580 Forest Place in Plymouth, a well-made suit is something a woman can enjoy as well. The clothing design and production company makes made-to-order clothing for women.

According to Tina Sherfield, manager of the Forest Place shop, all of the clothing will be made here in Plymouth.

"A customer comes into the shop, they look at designs and samples, and then we do a fitting and measuring," Sherfield said. "Then the clothes are made and the customer gets the clothes within four weeks."

Sherfield employs three seamstresses and two alterations people. All of the finishing sewing, putting together the clothes, is done by the seamstresses at home.

While getting clothes custom made and fitted is not cheap — items run between $50 and $500 apiece — the quality is worth the cost.

"It is on the high end for sure, but you get what you pay for," Sherfield said.

"Personalized fitting and service."

Sherfield said Lauren Lein also has a line of ready-to-wear clothes, "Lauren Lein To Go," that comes in several sizes and is less expensive ($49 to $189). The company is currently looking for representatives to sell the ready-to-wear line of clothes.

The business, started in a home in Westland, now has sales reps in Chicago, Bloomfield Hills and West Bloomfield. Sherfield said Chicago has been a source of a lot of business.

"We did it to expand the company," Sherfield said, "there is a larger market of professional women there. That's the clientele we're looking for."

According to Lauren Lein, owner of the company, getting professional women into better clothes is the whole idea.

"Nine years ago, I figured it was time for women to have the same luxury as a man," Lein said.

"My dream was for a woman to be able to have a suit that was specifically tailored to her."

Lein also said that her target market, professional women, were people who did not have time to shop.

In the future, Lein said she wouldn't mind seeing an expanded business.

"Having a retail outlet would be wonderful, but the business has been growing slowly," Lein said. That's the way that the fashion business is.

"I'm in for the long haul."

KIDS CHECK OUT THESE 2 BONUS'ES!

This year's coloring book was illustrated by COMMA, freelance graphic artist Kelly Quashnie.

Kelly is a Canton resident, and will be entering her senior year at Ferris State University's Visual Communications department in the Fall. This is Kelly's second coloring book for The Crier in as many years.

According to Kelly, she was interested in art as a career since junior high school.

"I've wanted to be in art as a career since the seventh grade," she said. "That was when I first learned that you could make a living as an artist."

While her job at COMMA, last summer was her first using her artistic skills primarily, other employers have also made use of her ability to draw.

Kelly had this advice for kids interested in art as a career:

"Enjoy it, and practice a lot. No one starts out being able to draw well," she said. "Educate yourself."

Plymouth poetry group continues to grow

The Plymouth Summer Celebration of Poetry is in full swing.

Hosted by Rod Reinhart, Episcopal priest and Plymouth poet-in-residence, more than 40 writers and their friends gathered at the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company on July 6 to hear the poetry of local writer, "ann" E. Horvath and the compositions of Detroit poet, Glen Manisto.

The Thursday night program continues this week with the political satire of Rudy Simons and the human rights poetry of Eugene Perrin.

Reinhart and the Plymouth Poets also hosted the First Annual Michigan Christian Poetry Festival. Crowds gathered on Sunday, July 9 at St. John's Episcopal Church to hear Jim Toy, James Beates, Gimbu Mullugatta, Jeff Hildebrand and Reinhart share their poetry.

Toy's poetry revolved around the cathedrals of France. Beates' poetry was a prayer for people living with AIDS. Hildebrand's writings recounted God's faithfulness amid many recent and difficult changes in his life. Mullugatta, leader of the Christian Poet's Society, performed poems and songs praising God for leading him through the struggles of inner city life. Reinhart read his poem, "Spiritual Aerobics for the Twenty-First Century," the title poem of his new book published by Operation Dome Press. Through the poem, Reinhart warns contemporary Christians not to be caught up in the modern culture of violence, prejudice and spiritual laziness.

Reinhart's parents, Pauline Reinhart Dawson and Galen Dawson, were on hand for some humorous poems. Trudy Maughan, Patt. Trama, Dwayne Browdwn, David Townsend and several others also shared their poems.

One Detroit writer said that he was so affected by the Christian Poetry Festival that he hoped to devote much more of his time to writing poetry on deep, Christian themes. Richard Kelch, a registered nurse at Northville State Psychiatric Hospital said, "This is a great spiritual experience for me. I'm glad Christian poets have their own state-wide festival now."

The good news continued for the Plymouth Poets. Reinhart learned last week that he was awarded a $500 grant from Poets and Writers Inc. based in New York City in recognition of his work with the Plymouth Poets.

The Summer Celebration of Poetry is already sponsored by the Plymouth District Library, the Detroit Friends of the Library, the Broadside Press, the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, and a number of other groups. Reinhart said he is glad the Plymouth poetry scene was receiving such an important national sponsor.

The First Annual Michigan Mystical Poetry Festival will be held on Sunday, July 30 at St. John's Episcopal Church.

Commissioner supports streetscape dialogue

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

The Plymouth Streetscape project is not supported by everyone — and Plymouth City Commissioner Bill McAninch said he hopes those differing opinions are at least listened to by the public and city officials.

McAninch was referring to the temporary restraining order and injunction hearing concerning the pedestrian island on Ann Arbor Trail initiated by long-time Plymouth business owner Bill Beitner.

At the Plymouth City Commission meeting last Wednesday, McAninch said that although he does not support Beitner's contention that the island would be dangerous to pedestrians and impede traffic, he does support Beitner's right to voice his concerns.

"Anyone who has touched the streetscape project in the last two years has gotten their heads bashed in," McAninch said. "There's a little bit of an emotional feeling there."

"(Those directly involved in the streetscape project) are not as patient or empathetic as they could be."

McAninch said Beitner had every opportunity to voice his opinion during streetscape planning sessions — and in his opinion should have.

"We ought to find a way to deal with the situation to take some of the heat out of it," he said. "I think we ought not to be silent — and find a way to be compassionate."

New Canton business aims to serve growing population of in-line skaters

BY PETER BRODERICK

Fred Hoshowski and brother Rich Bushart are pioneering a new type of sports business, and starting it all off right here in Canton.

The brothers are partners in their store, "Bladesports" in the Coventry Commons shopping center at Morton Taylor and Joy roads. The store will focus on one of the fastest growing trends in recreation: in-line skating.

According to Hoshowski, Bladesports will feature every aspect of in-line skating, from recreational skates to "roller-hockey". The store will also have a complete service center for skates and equipment which will handle repairs as well as routine maintenance. Bladesports will also make special orders for customers looking for items that are not held in stock.

"We were both into in-line hockey," said Hoshowski. "We could never find (equipment). We felt a real need the metro Detroit area for a shop like this."

Hoshowski, 27, is a graduate of Wayne State University with a degree in Elementary Education. Bushart is a 22 year-old Northwood University Alum, graduating with a degree in Marketing Management.

"We started talking about a store about eight months ago," said Hoshowski. Bladesports should be ready to open sometime next week.

Dearborn, are looking forward to working in The Plymouth-Canton Community. "The Canton/Plymouth Area seemed to be the best location. It's central to Livonia, Westland and Ann Arbor," he said.

Hoshowski said this is a perfect place for a shop of this nature. "In-line skating is pretty big around here," he said, citing the many roller-rinks that now feature in-line hockey leagues.

Hoshowski said the shop will start off with a focus on all aspects of in-line skating, but will expand certain areas depending on customer interest.

ROADRUNNERS organize N'ville run to benefit charities, scholarship

Beep, Beep.

The 12th annual Roadrunner Classic will take place Saturday, July 22 in Northville. Sponsored by the Redford Road Runners, the race has been voted as one of the top of its kind in Michigan.

The highly popular Classic will feature two new courses this year: a revised, faster eight kilometer course through downtown Northville for runners and wheelers, and a five kilometer race/walk for competition or just for fun and fitness.

For the third year in a row, the Classic will take place in Northville, after a nine year tour in Livonia. Participants have said they enjoy trekking through the city's quaint streets and beautiful neighborhoods. Much of the eight kilometer course takes advantage of Northville's natural rolling topography.

That means a lot of great hills for those who like the inclusion challenging of terrain in their races.

More than 1,000 participants and their families turned out for last year's Classic; this year's race is expected to exceed that mark. But the fun doesn't end after the races are over. A post-race party will take place under the stars with plenty of food, drinks, dancing and a deejay. It has been described as a "festival" atmosphere by those who have previously attended.

Proceeds from the Classic are used to fund a scholarship, contributions to churches and Detroit area charitable organizations. The Redford Road Runners have been in existence and in the area for more than 10 years.

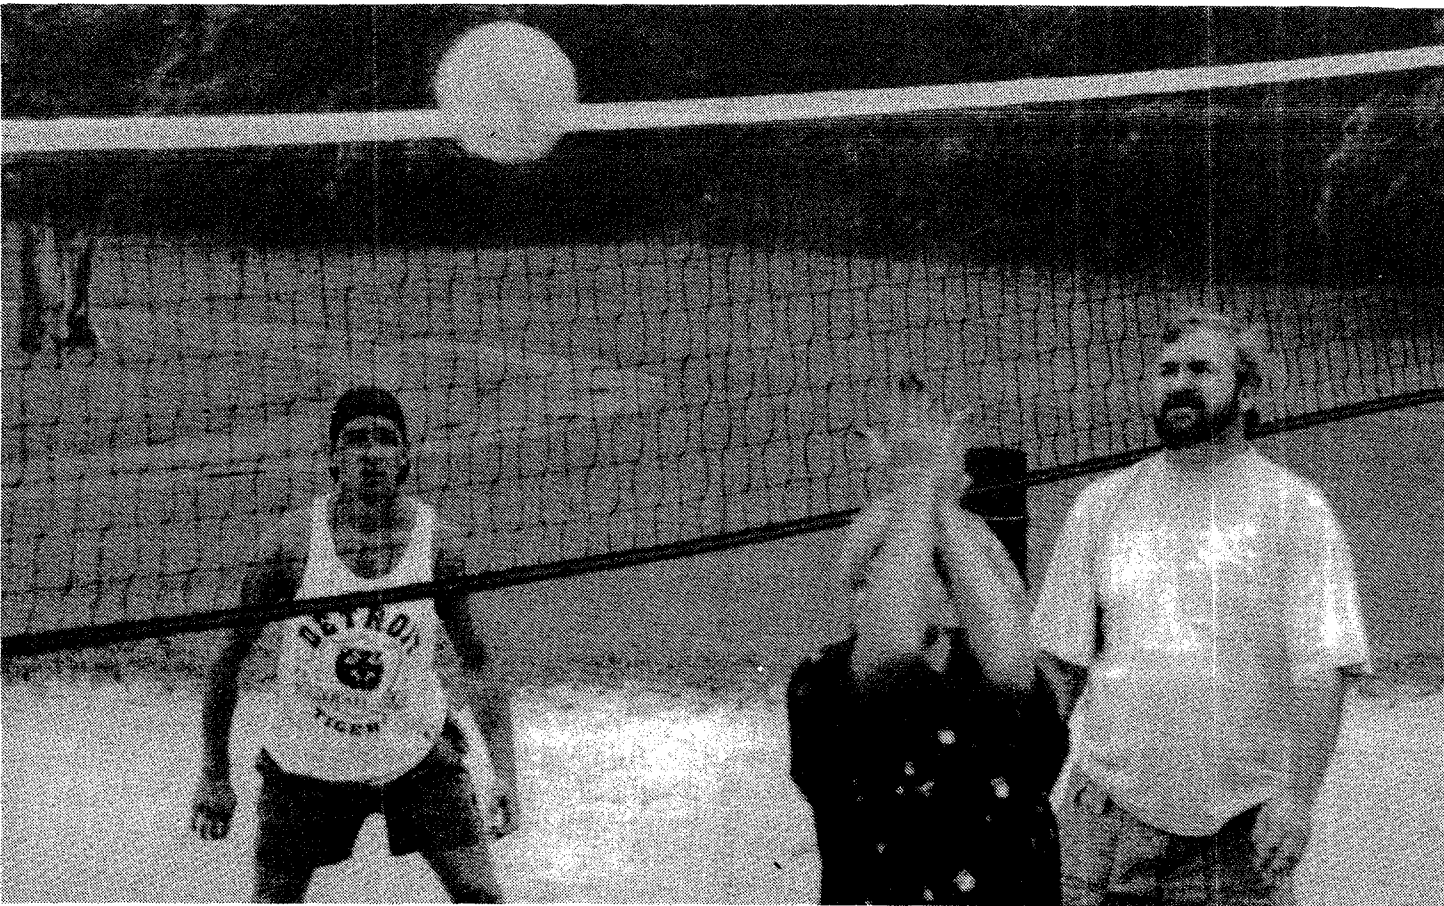

Their membership includes runners, walkers and joggers of all ages and fitness levels.

The Classic starts at 6 p.m. on Saturday, July 22 at Northville's Community Center. For prices and registration information, call Running Fit-Northville at (810) 380-3338.

Ludington to Canton

The Canton Parks and Recreation beach volleyball program has become a huge success. To have a beach volleyball league, a beach is needed. Canton transported sand from Ludington, on the shores of Lake Michigan. Last year was the first year the league operated and it has grown consistently with plans of expanding the program next year. Beach volleyball league is a hit...in Canton

BY BRIAN CORBETT

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department has proved you do not need a beach to have beach volleyball.

Every Sunday and Monday eight coed teams and eight mens teams bump, set and spike through sets of volleyball on a sand court. "It's been great," said Bob Dates. "It's a beautiful court. It's going real well so far."

The 16 teams is a dramatic increase, from last year's men only pilot program, to this year's inclusion of coed teams. "There was an interest expressed in that," Dates said, "and we intended to offer it."

Because of the ongoing success, Dates said the Canton Parks and Recreation Department is planning on offering a league exclusively for women and building another court. "We've got a plan to add another court," he said. "It's just a matter of making it into the budget."

But if the current court is any indication, Canton Parks and Recreation is committed to the sand volleyball league. It is surrounded by trees that provides shade to spectators lounging on a berm encircling the playing surface, which is also high quality. "We did some research into the sand sense it seemed to be so important," Dates said.

The search led Dates across the state to Lake Michigan shoreline city of Ludington. The fine grains of sand do not get hot, and dries quickly with the assistance of an in-ground drainage system. "We put quite a bit of effort into it," Dates said.

The leagues, which were formed after Dates had witnessed success in other cities' sand volleyball programs, attract some competitive players. "They're some pretty good players," Dates said. "The best part is, so far, is that it still seems the most important ingredient is to have fun."

The teams battle the beach until the first weekend in August. "We don't go farther than that because a lot of people go back to college," Dates said. "It's a just a nice summer event."

Commission race is a sleeper without Jones, McAninch

The sleepest Plymouth City Commission race in recent history is blazing across voters' attention like watching golf on television.

It's so boring that candidates even passed on marching in the July Fourth parade, where politicians are usually more plentiful than police on horseback or Harleys.

Part of this may be laid to the fact that two of the Commission's more historical hard-line questioners are retiring.

Bob Jones, who can be called the

BOB JONES

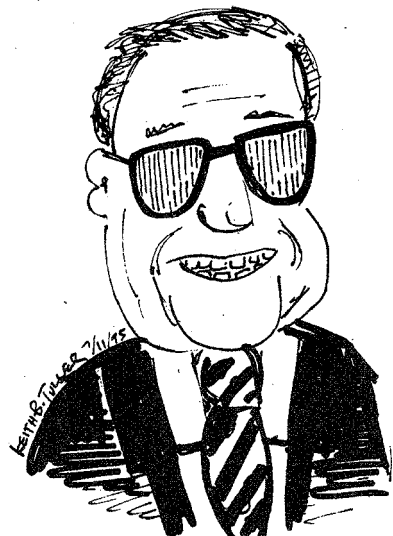

With malice toward none

By W. Edward Wendover

original whistle-blower on former City Manager Henry Graper, will be spending more time in Harbor Springs. His courage to ask questions used to drive Graper wild.

And his ability to bring coalitions together made him the mayor after a bitter election. In that voting, Jones finally vindicated his "non-campaigning" campaign and returned to the commission after Jack Kenyon narrowly edged him two years earlier.

Jones' input will be missed.

Also retiring is Bill McAninch.

Although he's not been able to agree to disagree agreeably at times like Jones has, he still is one who is not afraid to ask unpopular but necessary questions.

As one city-watcher said, "At times I couldn't stand him, but now I'm sorry to see him go."

McAninch followed his wife to the city commission. (Bev McAninch went on to be mayor as well). Both of them represented the citizen-homeowners contingent while at city hall and both were staunch protectors of the Bill of Rights — although they did it in their individual ways.

Political mailing misrepresents record

EDITOR:

Recently, constituents throughout the 18th House District received a mailing from the state Republican party which misrepresents my record of support for job creation and working families.

I'm writing to set the record straight.

The mailing criticized me for not voting for a Republican bill (SB 322) earlier this year which provided unemployment tax breaks to business. The mailing failed to mention several important facts:

1. I voted to support working families, and give tax breaks to business. The Republican bill cut unemployment benefits for laid off workers by more than $500 million over five years.

I supported an alternative bill, which provided more than $700 million in unemployment tax breaks to business, and protected unemployment benefits for laid off workers.

2. The Republicans cut unemployment benefits when it wasn't necessary.

With more than $1 billion in the unemployment trust fund, the Republicans could have both protected workers and helped business by supporting the alternative bill.

They didn't. House Republicans rejected the bill on a party-line vote.

While I stood up for both business and working families, the Republicans abandoned hard working families,

Quinn deserves praise for dedication to art festival

Hats off to Dianne Quinn and the organizers of Art in the Park, scheduled for this weekend in downtown Plymouth.

Quinn has once again put together a first class festival — despite streetscape construction. She has worked diligently with the Plymouth Downtown taking money from their pockets when it's needed most.

Now they play the dirty little political games my constituents — Democrats and Republicans — tell me they're fed up with.

I stand by the facts. I stand by my record of support for jobs and working families.

The show must go on

YMCA Family Fun Days could have been fun...if they would have happened

It could have been fields of fun.

But carnival promoter Mike Watts, Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport fixed based operator Doug Kitze and Wade Shows pulled the plug on the cord that would have lit up a midway and powered amusement park rides for up to 12 hours a day over four days at the Airport — the scheduled host for Plymouth/Canton YMCA "Family Fun Days." Citing soggy ground that caused grave safety concerns, potential damage to the airport's property and bleak weather forecasts for the next few days; the festival was canceled with no chance of returning to The Plymouth-Canton Community until next summer.

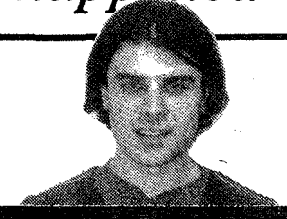

What Watts, Kitze and Wade Shows entered was a Catch 22: They did the right thing, but they also did the wrong thing. First off, they should be commended for making safety the first and utmost priority. I would too. They also worked for several days trying to make the field dry by pumping water out.

But after that, the festival's organization leaves something to be desired. For instance, if Mettetal had the possibility of flooding, why was it settled upon as the site? Yes, I know it is summer. It is not supposed to rain. But this is Michigan, and the only predictable thing about the weather here, is that it is unpredictable. Secondly, every good plan has an equally effective back-up in case of an emergency. Why not secure a strip mall parking lot?

Thursday morning. And let them know two to three days in advance. They could still pack up from their previous show, and go straight to the Plymouth-Canton destination with all their rides.

The festival could have been downsized in other ways by cutting back on entertainment, concessions and other activities because — correct me if I wrong — the main reason people go to carnivals is for the rides. Finally, I am not an "all-or-nothing" person, I believe in salvaging what I can. If the carnival had to be held at Mettetal, and the ground was too wet to support the rides; how about still having the airplane rides? And the "Y" activities. The entertainment too.

Watts has said that Wade Shows will make a donation to the Plymouth-Canton YMCA. But I have a feeling it will not equal what could have been raised if the carnival was still held in some altered form.

Voters lucky P-C school tax failed

EDITOR:

I did not vote for the school tax increase and I'm still glad that it did not pass.

First of all the school board called it an enhancement, not what it really was - a tax increase!

Secondly, why isn't there enough money in the budget for books when there is plenty for salary increases?

I'm angry the board gave Mr. Little a pay raise at his already inflated salary. $110,210 is ridiculous.

If all the administrators gave up 10-20 per cent of their paychecks there would be enough money for books.

Streetscape is hazardous to pedestrians

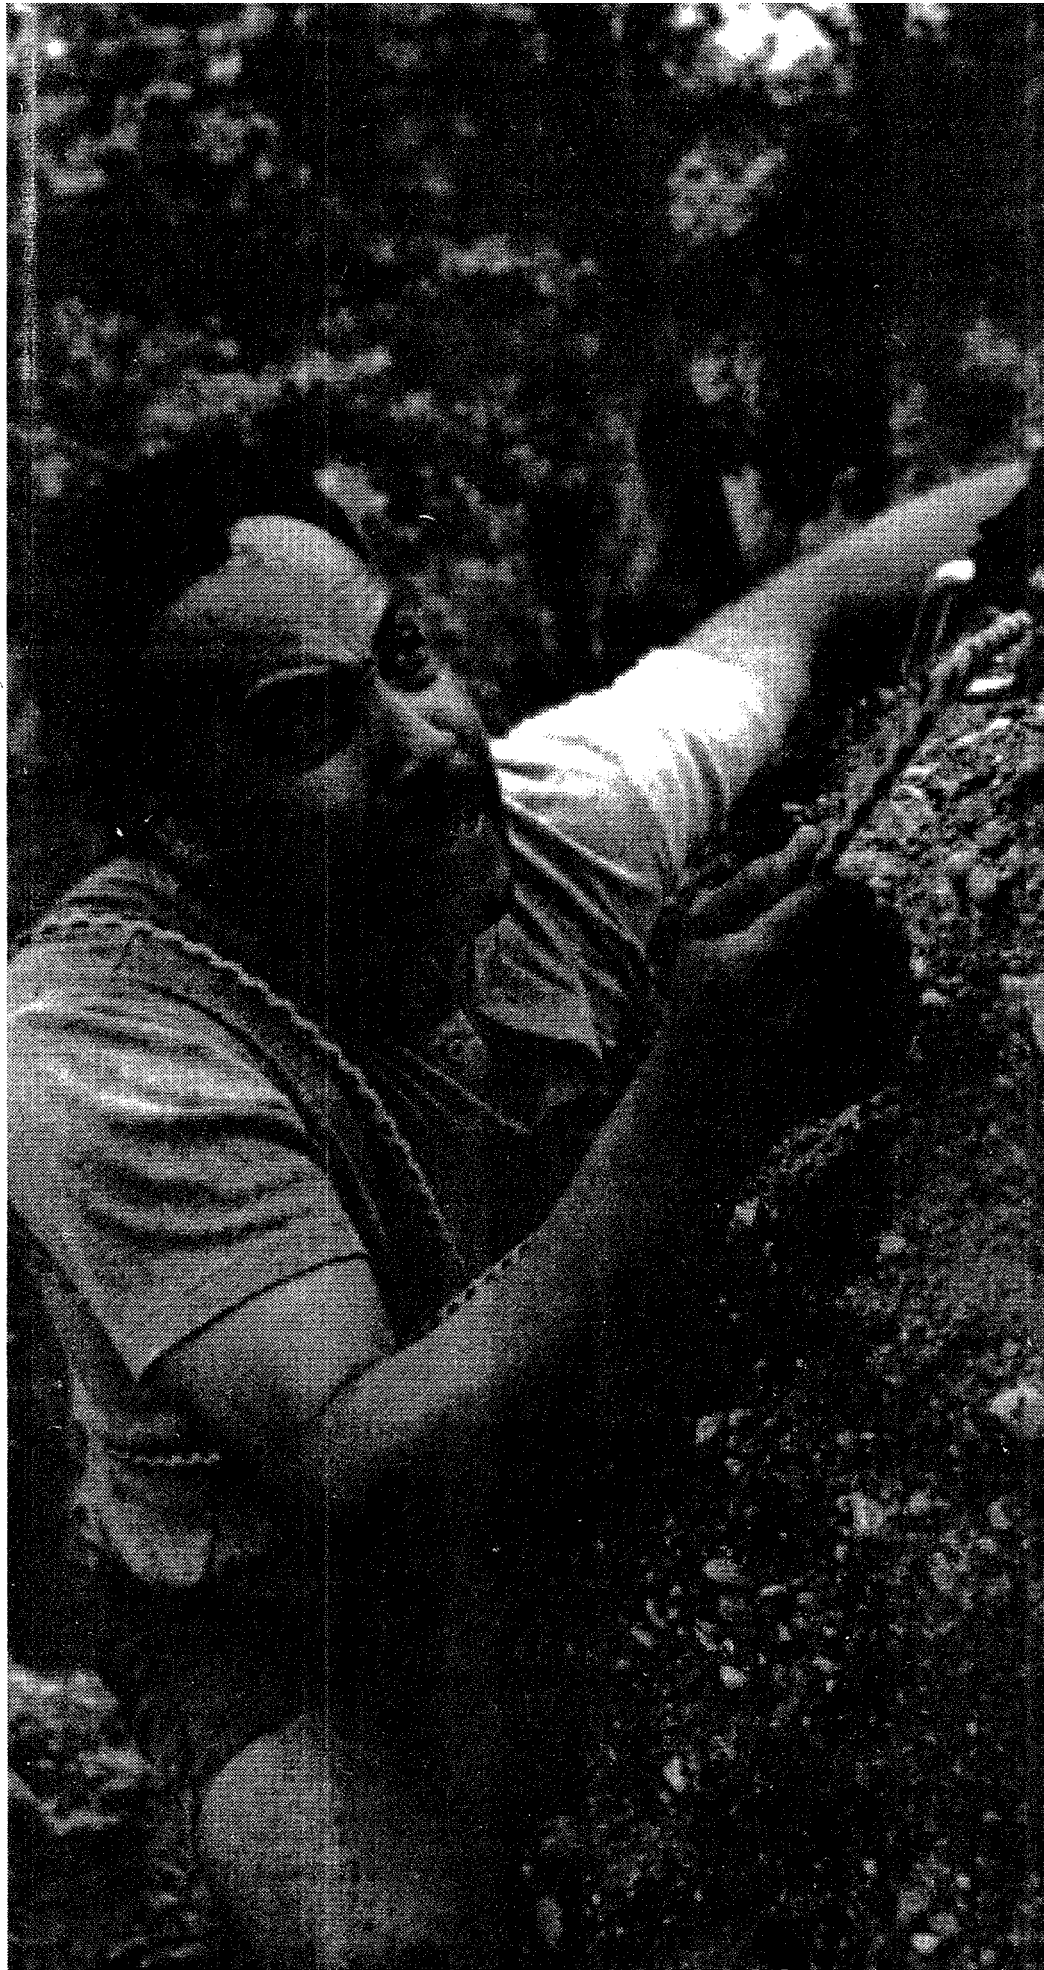

Plymouth Streetscape construction is moving right along, but not fast enough for the elderly and handicapped in our community. Many new curbs and sidewalks have been installed in the downtown area — unfortunately, not many of the curb cuts have been made. Walking around streetscape construction can be hazardous.

City and DDA officials should meet with the construction company to finish sidewalks and curbs enough so they are not dangerous. Walkways at the corners of Main Street and Penniman Avenue and Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail should be set up so pedestrians do not have to walk in the road to cross.

Living on the edge and defying the odds can be fun in recreation. And rewarding in business. But deadly where your health is concerned.

We've outlined some heart health risks in this ad. Take a look at them. And don't decide to ignore them.

- Smoking: Did you know that the average smoker dies 7 to 8 years sooner than the non-smoker?
- Blood Pressure: Did you know almost 58 million people have high blood pressure?
- Cholesterol Level: Did you know that for every 1% you lower your blood cholesterol level, your risk of heart attack drops by 2%?
- Stroke: Did you know that almost one-third of the people who suffer a stroke each year are under the age of 65?

O.K., risk takers...here's a real challenge.
